John J. McGraw Has Gone.
Pu-Yi Prays, Fasts.
Britain Claims All.
F. D. R. Says Something.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

JOHN J. M'GRAW, baseball player of renown, is dead, only sixty.

A fiery baseball fighting man, McGraw won victories in the line of throwing a ball, hitting it with a club and running around bases. Every newspaper praises him on its front page and he is entitled to the glory. He knew what interests the people.

PU-YI, ONCE heir to the throne of China, cast aside by China's republic, now chosen to be Japan's dummy emperor of Manchuria, whence his ancestors came, passed his twenty-eighth birthday.

He did not, as is done in New York, "throw a big party," but spent the day in meditation, prayer and fasting. He hoped thereby to please the different gods—there is a considerable assortment of them—interesting to inhabitants of his new domain.

He becomes Manchukuo emperor, which means the intelligently chosen pawn of Japan in its program of expansion, on March 1. Until then he will go through "a process of purification."

WHILE THE young emperor prayed, thousands of detectives hunted through the city of Hsinking, looking for anybody "planning to assassinate the future sovereign."

Prayer, fasting and meditation can do much, and Pu-Yi will need all that they can do.

He himself selected the various rites of purification and enthronement, dating back three thousand years.

GREAT BRITAIN will again remind Uncle Sam that the "Little America," which Rear Admiral Byrd is exploring and mapping out really belongs to England.

"Little America," says England, is part of "three large sectors around the south pole" that belongs to Britain because she saw them first.

There will be no war about it, probably, because the poles, as they shift, move slowly. Our north and south poles require seventeen thousand years to make a complete sweep of the heavens, and the day is far off when today's south and the north poles will be part of a warm climate, with other spots on the earth, as north and south poles, taking their places.

Before the thousands of years shall have passed, the British Empire certainly, and the United States probably, will have ceased to exist under their present management and ideas.

HOWEVER, there might be gold, and there surely is oil beneath those cold lands, deposited there in ancient days of heat.

Mr. Rockefeller's organization has already located oil wells within the Arctic Circle, although it is not thinking of laying pipe lines yet.

British diplomacy, like that of the Vatican, looks far ahead.

NEXT SATURDAY President Roosevelt ends his first year as President, and in this last week he makes a suggestion that may be the beginning of important developments. He would have the United States consolidate control of communications by wire, meaning, presumably, telegraph and telephone, and radio.

The President says:

"I have long felt that for the sake of clarity and effectiveness, the relationship of the federal government to certain services known as utilities should be divided into three fields — transportation, power and communication."

A NEW agency to be known as "the federal communications commission" would be established, and should have "full power to investigate and study the business of existing companies, and make recommendations to Congress."

Utilities men will study those words carefully.

How far away are we from the first real step toward government ownership of natural monopolies?

A HANDSOME young moving picture actor, appearing "in person" on a New York stage, caused a rush of ladies, many of them middle-aged.

A foolish policeman, who put himself in the way, was run over, knocked down, trampled on, his uniform torn. Awhile recuperating, he might read Euripides' "Bacchae," and learn just what ladies, middle-aged and others, can do when they start.

THE STAMPEDE to see the handsome young actor does not mean that women are foolish. It means that many ordinary American husbands are dull.

If these rushing ladies really knew the young actor well many of them might say:

"Give me back my own dull old husband; I've changed my mind."

GIFFORD PINCHOT, announcing his candidacy for Senator from Pennsylvania, against David A. Reed, now Senator, says:

"As a Republican Senator I will work with President Roosevelt to restore prosperity, instead of snapping and snarling at the President's heels."

Senator Reed, who knows politics, will study this statement thoughtfully This country is really beginning to take an interest in politics and its own government. The good old party label, with its "pointing with pride and viewing with alarm," has lost its importance.

CRANES TODAY LIFTING THE DEATH COACH FROM THE ENGINE BURIED IN THE MERCHANT ST. TUNNEL .... NOTICE HOW A HURTLING CAR HIT BUILDING

LAST BODIES BELIEVED FOUND BY RESCUERS SEARCHING RUINS

In the awful ruins of a disastrous train wreck on the North Side rescuers today dug for the twisted bodies of the missing.

Nine dead and two score groaning, injured passengers already had been lifted from the piles of wreckage left when a fast Pittsburgh-Akron passenger train shot off the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad, ripped a corner from a building, crashed through guard rails and fell into the street.

All this happened at the Merchant Street Viaduct, facing West Park, and just a few hundred yards from the Federal Street Station, at 9:30 o'clock last night.

Among the dead were members of two Pittsburgh blue-book families—F. R. Dravo, elderly head of Dravo Contracting Company, and Mrs. W. Miller Wardrop, both of whom had boarded the eastbound train 15 minutes earlier at Sewickley.

BODIES OF TRAINMAN FOUND

A body believed that of W. M. Shaw, the engineer, of New Castle, was found this afternoon.

The body of the eighth victim, O. C. Douthite, fireman, was recovered a little earlier after workmen with acetylene torches had cut their way into the locomotive which had crashed through all barriers and plunged into the mouth of the tunnel in Merchant street.

A numbered key, issued by the railroad to employes, helped to identify Douthite, whose home was in Youngstown.

The fatal wreck was one of the worst in the history of the Pennsylvania system.

The all-steel train, eastbound, was rumbling along three blocks west of the Federal Street Station when the locomotive and five coaches following were derailed.

FROZEN SWITCH BLAMED

The cause was not definitely known. Railroad yard workers were inclined to blame a "frozen" switch.

The engine hurtled over the side of the Merchant street viaduct. The coaches, tearing along at different angles, ripped out rails, sliced off a corner of the candy factory of the D. L. Clark Company and piled up, demolished.

Virtually all of the passengers were injured. Thirty-nine had been accounted for in hospitals or at emergency stations, today, many of them critically injured.

Among the injured was Walter C. Shank, 55, of 1529 Garfield avenue, conductor, a veteran of 33

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—A $55,000,000 liberalization of benefits for World War veterans was voted into the independent offices appropriation bill today by the Senate without a record vote.

The Steiwer - Reed - McCarran amendment, restoring pre-economy disability rates and ratings, was adopted while only a handful of Senators were in the chamber. Administration leaders made no effort to force a record vote, since they were defeated yesterday 51 to 40 on the first point of the liberalization program.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Postmaster General Farley's order cancelling all domestic air mail contracts was defended at the Senate air mail inquiry today by Karl Crowley, Postoffice Department solicitor.

Under cross-examination by Senator Austin (Rep.), of Vermont, Crowley charged that Former Postmaster General Walter F. Brown acted in collusion with air mail officials. Crowley asserted:

"There was a definite, positive agreement between Brown, his associates and persons receiving air mail contracts that they would receive them without competitive bids."

Austin accused the witness of "trying to be a mind reader" and "putting his own interpretation on other men's motives."

COLD SETS NEW RECORD HERE

As a stinging cold pushed the thermometer below zero to a 63-year-old weather record today, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman warned of a flood menace from the swollen rivers.

A bright sun failed to cause any appreciable rise in temperature during the day and a low of zero was forecast for tonight.

It was 3 degrees below zero at 8 a. m., the coldest February 27 in the history of the local Weather Bureau. The next coldest comparable date was in 1900 with 2 above.

An inch of rainfall would turn the ice-choked Monongahela and Allegheny rivers into raging torrents, according to Brotzman. But the danger would be relieved if a mild thaw gradually melted the ice and snow during the next few days, he explained.

Eighteen hundred CWA workers were ordered to work at noon clearing the snow-covered streets. The men will work in two shifts of 12 hours each today and tomorrow, under authority of the state CWA.

BRIEF RIDE KILLS 2 NOTABLES

A 20-minute train ride cost two prominent Sewickley society residents their lives in the North Side wreck.

F. R. Dravo, president of Dravo Contracting Company, and Mrs. W. Miller Wardrop, wife of the assistant to the Pennsylvania Railroad's general manager, boarded the train at Sewickley simply to ride to Pittsburgh, where they were to change trains for Washington.

Had the highways been less icy probably they would have motored to Pittsburgh.

Because they were to be on the train only a few minutes, they took seats in the day coach — which proved the death car.

J. D. Berg, a business associate of Mr. Dravo, identified his body as it lay in the wreckage.

Mrs. Wardrop was identified

Social Barriers Down As Death Rides Rails

By MARGARET GARRAHAN

Death and a common sorrow last night felled the barriers that separate social strata.

Anxiety tracing the face of each, smartly clad society matrons stood side by side with ragged, shabby men in hospital corridors to await word of their loved ones caught in the claws of catastrophe.

It was the aftermath of terror-striking, death-dealing seconds, when the Pennsylvania Railroad's luxurious Akron-Pittsburgh Express slid from its gleaming rails to become a heap of wreckage on North Side streets.

In a split second the comfortable train which had spelled safety above all other forms of transportation in one of the area's heaviest snowstorms of all time became a tossing, roaring prison for scores of passengers, replacing confident ease with tumultous fear, death and torturous injury.

Survivors, when they heard how the cars had piled up; how the dining car, in the center of the train, had hurtled 100 feet beyond the locomotive, and how the engine itself had plunged into the middle of the street from an overhead bridge—prayed aloud in thanks for their escape.

LIGHTS WENT OUT

Few had more than a vague idea of the disaster. One said:

"It happened so quickly I couldn't realize what it was for a moment. There was a bump and the lights went out. And that was all I remember."

Leonard Miller, the Negro cook on the dining car, described it as follows:

"The train jolted and the tables and chairs started walking around. The windows fell out at the first jolt. When I came to I was on the floor and the car was standing on end. I crawled down the aisle and squeezed through the door. It was bent and twisted. And when I got out there was the door of a house right in front of me."

LANDS IN STREET

The dining car was thrown on an angle, landing on end in Martindale street, within a few feet of an apartment house. Several children were playing in the first floor front room at the time.

Milton A. Jones, a salesman, of Chicago, commended police for their quick action in the emergency, commenting:

"If it had not been for the police I would never have made it when the steam boiler broke."

Another passenger declared the train "was going faster than any other I've ever been on—around 80 miles an hour it seemed to me."

LAST RITES FOR DYING

Confusion reigned for hours following the wreck, but rescue workers dug into their task of extricating victims with organization that was amazing, pausing only in the biting, dismal cold for the warmth of an occasional cup of coffee.

Police, firemen, railroad workers and volunteers strove as one man to wring from the chaos a vestige of order. Nurses and internes from a half dozen hospitals stood by to render immediate aid as injured were pulled from the wreckage, and in the midst of all a dozen clergymen hovered over the dying, administering the last rites.

Injured were rushed to hospitals in all available vehicles, while a number of passengers who escaped unharmed picked up their baggage and ran for the nearest taxi immediately following the wreck.

PITIFUL REMINDERS

Comments by rescuers were few. They spoke of bodies tangled between seats and in corners, and of blood . . . Then they plunged into their work once more.

Bit by bit pitiful reminders of men and women and boys, who but a few moments before had faced life with zest and home with joyous longing, were piled up in a desolate heap of salvage. A diary, to be written in no more; a wallet and a woman's dusty purse; a torn bit of leather that had once been a CCC boy's bag. And on top of all, the boy's new blue lumber jacket—too new to bring memories, too old to bring anything else.

PITTSBURGHERS IN OHIO WRECK

The North Side railroad wreck last night was the second railroad accident in 24 hours in which Pittsburgh residents suffered injuries. Yesterday afternoon three persons were killed and four injured near Delphos, O., when the New York to Chicago Express of the Pennsylvania railroad struck a truck.

George Lehman, 54, engineer, and Andrew Palmer, 30, the fireman, both of Fort Wayne, Ind., and Philip Lang, Chicago, the truck driver, were killed.

Mr. and Mrs. George Prescan, of Freedom, Pa., and Mrs. Rose Kubacki, of Pittsburgh, passengers on the train, were injured, as was Earl Swanson, helper on the truck.

The crash derailed eight of the 10 cars of the train.

FLYER BEHIND TIME

He had left Akron in charge of the train, No. 1638, at 6:15 p. m. It was slightly behind time when nearing Pittsburgh. No stop was scheduled at the Federal Street Station and the flyer was reported to have been making good speed at the time of the crash. It was due at Pennsylvania Station at 9:25 p. m.

The two Pullmans were to have been switched at Pennsylvania Station to the Iron City Express, en route to New York.

JUMPS THE TRACK

The train was rounding a long, gradual curve 500 yards west of the Federal Street Station when the wreck occurred.

Apparently shunted through some error onto a siding of the Clark Company plant as it sped along, the giant locomotive ran several hundred feet along the siding, jumped the tracks, tore on to the edge of the Merchant street viaduct, and plunged over it to the street, a mass of wreckage.

In its crash the engine carried away the heavy steel girder that formed the guard railing of the viaduct.

Immediately behind the locomotive was a combination baggage car and smoker. Loosed from the locomotive as the coupling snapped under the strain, this coach ran along another section of sidetrack leading into the Clark Company factory, tearing off a corner of the three-story brick building, and came to a stop in a gap in the structure which it had rammed.

PLOWS INTO TOWER

Next came the day coach. Carried along by its own momentum, it followed the same path taken by the locomotive. Its front end cleared the viaduct, however, instead of hurtling over the side, and plowed into an abandoned brick railroad signal tower. The coach then buckled, the rear end settled down on the overturned engine while its front end, filled with bricks and mortar, remained jammed into the tower.

This coach bore the brunt of the disaster. From the twisted wreckage of this car crews extracted two bodies many hours after the accident.

Acetylene torches were used to cut through the twisted mass of steel, while a derrick was employed in an effort to lift the roof.

The dining car, next in line, veered from the tracks, plunged down a slope and landed within a few feet of a three-story brick apartment building at Martindale and Itasco streets, occupied, police said, by half a dozen families.

PULLMANS RIP RAILS

Two Pullman sleepers brought up the rear of the train. One followed a siding and came to a halt after ripping out rails for 100 feet.

The second derailed, passed over the viaduct and ran down an embankment.

To the scene of confusion rushed police patrols, firemen of three engine companies who responded to an alarm sounded at Reedsdale and Scotland streets, hospital ambulances, bearing doctors and white-garbed nurses and first-aid crews.

CLERGYMEN AT SCENE

A dozen clergymen clambered in through broken windows of the coaches while firemen and police played searchlights in the darkened wreckage within.

To the dying, priests strove to administer last rites.

The injured were crying out for aid. The less seriously injured were helped out through the windows to the snow-covered ground. From the warmth of the coaches they struggled into the near-zero cold, some with scanty clothing.

The seriously injured were carried out in stretchers and rushed to hospitals.

Among the priests, who braved the peril of the wreck to minister to the victims, was the Rev. Father Joseph Nee, of St. Cyril of Alexander Catholic Church, Brighton road. He reached the scene soon after the crash.

SCREAMS OF INJURED

Dr. Daniel E. Sable, chief police and fire surgeon, set up an emergency hospital in a car which was run alongside the wrecked coaches. Several of the injured were treated by him.

As news of the seriousness of the wreck spread, many taxicabs were commandeered to remove the injured to hospitals.

Patrolmen, under Capt. Nuncie Marino, of North Side Station, stretched police lines to keep back the great crowds which at times impeded the progress of the rescue work. Then they joined firemen who had been summoned on two alarms, and aided in rescuing the screaming injured from the battered cars.

Detectives, under Lieut. Frank Ferris, made rounds of hospitals for identification of the injured then set about notifying relatives.

MUM ON CAUSE

Supt. of Police Ben R. Marshall and Public Safety Director Ralph E. Smith arrived in less than an hour and took charge of the police.

Meanwhile, Coroner W. J. McGregor hurried to the morgue and conferred with a group of railroad officials who were trying to identify the dead. His chief clerk, James L. Davidson, and John S. Aldisert, chief deputy, were dispatched to the wreck with orders to remain until the last body was taken out.

H. R. Frushour, superintendent of the Eastern Division, Pennsylvania Railroad, hastened to the scene and directed the work of clearing the tracks. He declined to express an opinion as to what had caused the wreck.

RINGS CLUE TO IDENTITY

Two rings and a handkerchief are the means morgue officials expect to use in identifying two white women killed when the train took its fatal plunge.

A hanadkerchief bearing the initials "H. D. W." was taken from one of the victims. From another, two rings were taken. On the inside of one of them the numbers "101607," and in the other "1890, June 29—1907."

The bodies were badly mangled. One of the women was large and appeared to be of middle age. The other of slight build.

The body of a third victim, a Negro woman, was badly crushed.

Thomas Jeffries, Negro, who was killed, was en route to Newark to attend a sister's funeral.

WYNEKOOP NEED OF CASH TOLD

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—The financial worries of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop in the months which preceded the killing of Rheta Gardner Wynekoop were pictured by the state today in an effort to convince the jury that Dr. Wynekoop slew her daughter-in-law because of mercenary motives.

David M. Sweet, assistant vice president of the City National Bank, testified that a $6,000 loan made to Dr. Wynekoop had been reduced to $3,500 by last fall, but that Dr. Wynekoop had asked for and obtained several extensions of payments on the principal.

After Sweet had identified letters written to him by the defendant, Prosecutor Charles S. Dougherty read the letters to the jury.

The picture, as described by the state, was that of a woman sorely pressed to meet certain obligations. In the letters, however, Dr. Wynekoop was shown, for the first time, as the owner of property of considerable worth, upon which she was able to realize little income.

Canonsburg Fire Razes 10 Stores

CANONSBURG, Feb. 27.—Ten business places in the heart of the business district were destroyed by fire today.

Starting in the P. H. Butler store, 16 Pike street, the flames were fanned by a high wind into the adjoining buildings to 20 Pike street. All of the structures were frame. They burned despite the combined efforts of the Canonsburg and Houston volunteer fire departments.

The fire-proof walls of the First National Bank checked the fire's spread to the east.

A blow torch used to thaw out a frozen water pipe in the Butler store was given as the cause of the blaze by firemen. Other places destroyed by the fire, they reported, were:

Fisher's jewelry store, Lee's Bootery, Rose Mankowitz's women's store, Cowan's studio, Kray's drug store, Wilson's meat market, a restaurant, Morris shoe store and the Colony Grill.

CAR FLEW OVER, STUDENT SAYS

From his bed in the Allegheny General Hospital today, Clarence A. Bratschie, a student in Western Theological Seminary, described his experience in the North Side train wreck:

"I was getting up to get my hat and coat when all of a sudden the car flew to one side. When I woke up I thought I was reaching for my hat and coat but found I was in the hospital. Just another bump in life."

Bratschie lives at 201 Elm street, New Castle. He was returning to school after a three-day visit to his home.

CRASH FOLLOWS O. K. SIGNAL

A flagman on the wrecked Akron-Pittsburgh train today said that only a few seconds before the train crashed he had signaled to a tower near the scene of the wreck that "everything aboard was O.K."

The flagman, Clyde S. Thorndell, of Alliance, O., is in the Allegheny General Hospital. He said:

"Just as soon as I set down my lantern the car rolled over like a barrel."

Wreck Recalls Crash In 1905 Fatal to 7

Last night's wreck recalled another serious wreck on the Fort Wayne Railroad within a short distance of the Pennsylvania station. In 1905, a train bound for the inauguration of President Theodore Roosevelt was wrecked near Emsworth. Seven persons, six of them Army officers, were killed.

Weather Conditions.

A large high, central over the Lower Ohio Valley (Evansville and Louisville, 30.84), overlies most of the eastern states, while pressure is low over the Canadian Northwest (Edmonton, Alberta, 29.60), and over New Mexico (Santa Fe, 20.06). Weather is generally fair nearly everywhere east of the Rocky Mountains, but scattered rains or snow are falling over the far West. It is much colder over the lake region and central valleys and eastward to the coast, and much warmer in the western plains, the Rocky Mountains and the Canadian Northwest. Temperatures are below zero over the lakes, the Ohio and Upper Mississippi valleys, and it is freezing to the Middle Gulf coast.

River Conditions.

The Pittsburgh harbor is now frozen over with about two-inch ice. There has been no change in the ice conditions elsewhere since yesterday morning. The river basins are covered with from six to nine inches of snow. Temperatures over the Upper Allegheny ranges from 10 to 18 degrees below zero. Dams Nos. 4 and 10 on the Ohio and Herrs Island Dam on the Allegheny are up.

DRAVO, WOMAN DIE IN WRECK ON BRIEF RIDE

some hours later at the County Morgue by a relative, Alfred F. Osborne, of Mt. Lebanon.

Dravo was en route to Washington.

Shortly after Mr. Dravo left Sewickley, Berg also boarded a Pittsburgh-bound train, en route to Philadelphia. On the way to Pittsburgh, he learned of the wreck and left the train when it arrived at the Pennsylvania Station here. He hastened to the North Side to inquire for his associate.

Mr. Berg was taken to the scene, where he saw several bodies pinned beneath the wreckage. One of the bodies he identified as that of Mr. Dravo. Although identification was made shortly after midnight, it was not until 7:30 o'clock that the workers had been able to remove the body from the wreckage. Several hours were required to remove the debris and burn away portions of the wreckage which pinned the aged industrialist in the coach.

The body of Mr. Dravo was not taken to the morgue. Instead, it was removed direct from the scene to the undertaking establishment of J. W. Marlatt & Sons, Sewickley.

LEADER IN MANY FIRMS

For many years Mr. Dravo had headed the many Dravo companies in this district.

He was president and director of the Dravo Contracting Company. Mr. Berg was a director of this company.

In addition Mr. Dravo was vice president and director of the Keystone Sand and Supply Company, vice president of the Steubenville-Weirton Bridge Company and of the Pomeroy-Mason Bridge Company.

Mr. Dravo was also director of the Dravo-Doyle Company, of which Mr. Berg was president. Other companies of which Mr. Dravo was a director include the Dravo Equipment Company, the Charleroi Supply Company, the Cumberland River Sand Company and the Eastern Ohio Sand and Supply Company.

Mr. Dravo was born in Pittsburgh August 19, 1866, the son of Ellen Marshall Dravo and James Darlington Dravo. In 1887 he was graduated from Lehigh University, where he was a trustee. He was president of Edgeworth Club, vice president of St. Barnabas' Free Home and senior warden of St. Stephen's Protestant Episcopal Church.

Porter and Witnesses Tell Story of Disaster

Horror Described By Preacher Who Aided Rescue

William Brown, 56, a Negro porter, of 1820 Bedford avenue, was the only member of the train crew believed to have escaped serious injury, it was said at the morgue. He said he was standing at the end of his car when the crash came, and replied to Homicide Detective Frank Morgan's questioning:

"All I can tell you, Mister, is that something happened."

John Schaber, of 1610 Howard street, witnessed the crash from the offices of the D. L. Clark Company, where he is employed. He said:

"I saw a flash, then a crash followed and hell broke loose."

Another eye-witness was Robert Smith, who witnessed the tragedy from his home, 500 Sherman avenue, a short distance away. He heard the crash and called police, he reported.

The Clark Company was darkened when the dining car ripped away feed wires in its plunge into Martindale street. The electric clock in the offices of the company stopped at 9:31 last night, definitely establishing the time of the accident, it was reported.

Charles W. Nee, of 264 Harrison street, Alliance, O., was in the baggage car when the train crashed. He climbed out a window and was treated at the Presbyterian Hospital for injuries.

A book from the Oak Hill Methodist Church, in Youngstown, and a telegram aided in identification of Thomas Jeffries, 45, a Negro, of Youngstown, whose body was one of the last removed from the wreckage. The book, containing his name, revealed he was a teacher in the Sunday school of the church. In another pocket was found the telegram, and a clearing house slip showing he had played 10 cents on a number Monday. The telegram, dated Newark, N. J., advised him that if he wished to go to New Jersey to wire to an address in that city.

Morgue officials today were trying to learn if Jeffries and the unidentified Negro woman in the morgue boarded the train together in Youngstown.

Later it was learned that Jeffries was on his way to Newark to attend the funeral of his sister.

The crash of the wreck was heard as services ended in the Volunteers of America Hall, 724 East Diamond street. Seven members of the organization, including the Rev. A. C. Palmer, rushed to the scene to aid in carrying out the injured. Mr. Palmer said:

"A tragic panic. Some were calling on God for help. All were screaming. I saw some women praying. It was an inferno of steam and groans."

Samuel Oklin, 41, of 2223 Center avenue, one of the seriously injured, is manager of a theater in Rochester, Pa. He was returning to his home in this city to spend the night.

One of the first passengers to crawl from the wrecked train was C. W. Gearhart, of 1014 Tweed street, Sheraden. He was uninjured, although considerably shocked.

Gearhart at once joined rescuers and aided in removing many of the dead and injured from the wreckage.

George W. Anderson, 24, confined to the Presbyterian Hospital with serious head injuries, was returning from his home at New Wilmington, Pa., to the Pittsburgh Theological Seminary, North Side, at the time of the accident. He had spent the week-end with his family. Another theological student is in the Allegheny General Hospital, also injured seriously. He is Clarence A. Bratschie, 24, of New Castle. Bratschie is a student at the Western Theological Seminary.

Russell Niemeier, 40, of 31 Bonvue avenue, North Side, a salesman for the Barney Machinery Company, of Pittsburgh, was one of the injured. At Allegheny General Hospital he told Mrs. Niemeier that he boarded the train in Youngstown for home. At the time of the crash, Mrs. Niemeier quoted her husband as saying, the train seemed to be running at high speed. Another injured man in a bed beside him said the same, she told reporters.

One of the first bodies to be taken from the wreckage was identified as that of David A. Ducharime, 55, of Ansonia, Conn. Identification was made at the morgue through a lodge card which showed he was a past grand knight of the Knights of Columbus of Ansonia.

FROZEN SWITCH HINTED CAUSE OF DISASTER

While railroad officials refused to discuss the cause of the disaster, railroad workers ventured the theory that a frozen switch was responsible.

The switch at the Clark factory siding was operated by compressed air and air lines occasionally freeze in severe weather, they pointed out.

FOUR PROBES PLANNED.

Four investigations of the wreck were being planned today. Representatives of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Public Service Commission were expected late today. Coroner W. J. McGregor and railroad officials already were at the scene.

The railroad's general managers' derailment committee, after investigating the accident since 3 a. m., adjourned their meeting at noon today without reaching any conclusions, a spokesman said.

Coroner McGregor demanded a complete list of all passengers from the railroad.

EXPERTS ON SCENE

A committee representing the railroad, consisting of safety and mechanical experts, also visited the scene and began a minute survey of the wrecked locomotive, coaches and demolished tracks.

One of the officials said he did not believe the switch had failed to operate. The first evidence of torn tracks was after the locomotive had passed the switch, he stated.

U. S. PROBE SLATED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(INS.)—The Bureau of Safety of the Interstate Commerce Commission will send one or two of its experts to Pittsburgh to investigate the derailment of a Pennsylvania passenger train last night, Director William P. Borland said today.

He was unable to say who would make the investigation, but it is probable men from the field force maintained at strategic points would be named.

Sleeping Boy Spends Night in Theater

SHARON, Pa., Feb. 27.—"Bill" Levitt, 10, maintained his perfect attendance in school today because two policemen heard him knocking on the door of a local theater.

The lad, whose disappearance led five members of the police force on a district-wide search, fell asleep in the theater last night and did not awaken until 8 a. m.

Order Jane Addams To Take Week's Rest

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—(Universal.)—Jane Addams, famous Hull House social worker, now past 70, was ordered to bed for a week's rest today.

Falling Coach Perils CWA Men; Fence Traps One

A 60-year-old CWA worker helping clear city streets of snow was thankful as he lay in the Allegheny General Hospital today that his name was not on the death list of the Merchant street train wreck.

Michael Welsh and a companion, James Welsh, 35, no relative, had been shoveling snow beneath the Merchant street viaduct.

They had been directly under the spot where part of one car plunged over the viaduct, but had walked a few feet away.

The older man, caught under part of a fence that crashed over the viaduct, was pinned to the snow-covered ground nearly an hour. His companion escaped.

James Welsh summoned help, and aided in releasing his fellow-worker.

ASSERTS TRAIN WAS SPEEDING

"It happened so suddenly that there isn't much to tell."

In these words C. S. Thompson, 40, of Gary, Ind., a passenger on the ill-fated train, summed up his feelings as the car in which he was riding left the rails. He said:

"After we left Sewickley the train seemed to be running pretty fast, and I thought we were running late and trying to make up time. Suddenly the car in which I was riding lunged, and seemed to be toppling over, but instantly it righted itself.

"Then, before I could realize what was happening, there was a grinding of brakes, and the car began to roll. As it did the lights went out, and I remembered little after that."

Thompson, one of the first to be taken from the wreckage, was taken to Allegheny General Hospital and treated for slight injuries.

SURVIVORS TELL OF WRECK'S HORRORS

One of the survivors of the fatal Merchant street train wreck who gave a vivid account of her escape, was Miss Mary Connell, 40 of 1720 Fifth avenue, Youngstown, O.

She said:

"The porter was making up berths when the car began swaying. There was a crash. People were thrown to the floor, their luggage on top of them.

"Amid the groans and screams some man in a calm voice told everyone to be quiet. He told us to crawl back to some place where we wouldn't be on top of somebody else.

"Police and firemen came through the windows and aided us to get out. They had trouble because everything was dark. The ambulances were handicapped by the heavy snow."

J. S. Stevens, of Akron, uninjured in the coach from which most of the bodies were taken, related:

"I felt as though our car had hit an automobile. We ran on for a moment. There was a crash. We were thrown violently to one side. People were screaming. I got out and ran back to another coach to look for a friend."

Passengers Reach N. Y., Tell of Wreck Horror

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—A graphic description of the horror which followed derailment of a crack Pennsylvania Railroad train at Pittsburgh with a loss of at least seven lives was given by survivors on their arrival here today.

A. D. Simpson, of Cincinnati, who was aboard when the flier left the rails and plunged into a Pittsburgh street, said:

"I was in the Pullman car which hung over the precipice. I was reading a paper. Suddenly there was a jolting and the car seemed to go flying through the air. It teetered and rocked and we could hear the awful crash. None of us realized what had happened, but we wanted to get out of there.

"We ran to the rear door and got out, then some of us went down to help. There wasn't much we could do. I saw three bodies being taken out. They were horribly mangled."

W. F. Bloor, of Akron O., was in the rear coach of the train when, as he described it, "it tore off the tracks." He said:

"When we got out the engine was hanging at an angle of 45 degrees. We could hear people screaming and groaning. For a time we couldn't realize just what had happened. Thank God I escaped without any injury. All I lost was my hat."

Autoist Ill After Aiding Train Victims

Four times John McKnight, of 12 Kirkpatrick street, sped from the scene of the wreck to a hospital with injured persons taken from the wreckage. McKnight, an employe in the county investigators's office, was driving nearby when the train piled up. As an aftermath of his work, he had a cold today, having used his coat to protect others from the intense cold.

N. Y. Movie Ushers Call Strike on Recognition

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Announcement of a general strike of ushers and other front-of-the-house employes of New York motion picture theaters in an effort to force recognition of their union was made today at the offices of the Theater and Amusement Employes Union.

The strike was voted early today after an all-night meeting, but is not expected to start before Thursday.

The union claims a membership of 4,000 and indirectly influence 20,000. The bulk of its membership is made up of employes of the principal mid-town theaters.

INGRAM GROCER WRECK VICTIM

Clarence J. Mayer, 45, of 27 Dewey avenue, Ingram, one of the dead in last night's wreck, left his home Monday morning for New Castle to transact some business relating to property. F. S. Douglas, of Ingram, a half-brother, identified the body at the morgue. Mayer was associated with Douglas in the grocery and meat business.

Monday being a dull day at the store, Mayer decided to take the day off to attend to his New Castle business.

WIFE DIVORCES CABARET BOSS

Her husband was too attentive to chorus girls, Mary C. Lazaro, 26, 332 Hale street, alleged in her divorce action against John N. Lazaro, 49, night club owner, resulting in Judge M. A. Musmanno today granting her a divorce.

Mrs. Lazaro told the court that while her husband was operating the Dells in 1930 he seemed to think she had nothing to say about him paying too much attention to members of the stage visiting there, adding:

"One night he gave me a terrible beating when I spoke to him about it."

She says that Lazaro also told her that he intended to sell the furniture and disposed of a baby grand piano which had cost $1,000 for $100.

They were wed January 26, 1927, and separated March 18, 1931.

Pope Acts to Guard Cardinal, Nazi Foe

MUNICH, Germany, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—To forestall his possible arrest by some zealous subordinate Nazi, the title of papal legate was conferred upon Cardinal Michael Faulhaber today by Pope Pius.

The title carries diplomatic immunity from arrest and brings extraterritoriality for the distinguished prince of the Roman Catholic Church whose sermons against paganism and in defense of the Old Testament have made him a target for attacks by various prominent Nazis.

Marlene Dietrich Leaves Hospital

Wreck Victims Get McNair's Sympathy

Mayor McNair today issued a message of sympathy to victims of the train disaster and their relatives. The Mayor's message read:

"As Mayor of the City of Pittsburgh I desire to express my sympathy to the relatives of the terrible tragedy which occurred in our city last night. To those who are now suffering from the calamity, we desire to extend every aid possible."

RALPH CAPONE PAYS FINE, FREE

LONGBRANCH, Wash., Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Ralph Capone, elder brother of "Scarface Al" Capone, left McNeil Island Penitentiary today, a free man, after serving two years and five months for income tax evasion. He said he would enter legitimate business in Chicago.

Capone left McNeil Island by ferry and was met here, on the mainland, by a sedan. He said he was going to California before returning to Chicago.

He declared he felt no bitterness over his prison term.

Before leaving prison he paid a $10,000 fine. An original three-year sentence was reduced because of good behavior.

TELLS OF CRASH FROM COT

The train lurched on the curve, righted itself, then plunged and crashed, Milton A. Jones, Chicago salesman, told Lieut. Frank Ferris, of the Detective Bureau, in relating his experience on the wrecked train. From his cot in Allegheny General Hospital, he said:

"We seemed to be running about 35 miles an hour. As we reached the curve the day coach in which I was riding, lurched and righted itself, then crashed. I tried to get into the aisle, but was thrown back. Practically every seat in the car was occupied, and I saw men and women thrown about in all directions. Then I became dazed. The next thing I knew some men were hauling me through a window, and I was brought to the hospital."

FEDERAL HELP FOR SCHOOLS HELD VITAL

CLEVELAND, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Federal aid for schools, administered by the states, and a broadening of the tax base for school support today came under formal consideration of the nation's school superintendents.

The National Education Association's department of superintendence received from nine subcommittees a summarized report declaring federal aid was "necessary and inevitable."

The report said:

"Concentration of wealth and industry have created conditions which make it impossible to support schools from a limited local tax. Just as the states have been forced to distribute funds to districts, so the national government must come to the aid of the states.

"These funds must be administered by the state with no control reserved by the federal government. The program for emergency aid to schools, which would provide $50,000,000 immediately and make available a $30,000,000 grant for college students was indorsed."

In the same breath they denounced what they characterized as a "plan" to raise school book prices through NRA codes.

The school book question was approached by a subcommittee for consideration of recent legislation. The group reported:

"The proposed Textbook Publishers' Code looks like a plan to raise prices ahead of the increased costs.

"If this is done, textbooks written by political hacks and published in state printeries, many of which are in penitentiaries, will be used in a great many states.

"We recommend the abandonment of the proposed code provisions which would increase prices before experiment under code operations proves the need for it."

7 CHINESE HELD ON DOPE CHARGE

Seven Chinese arrested in raids Sunday by government narcotic agents and city detectives were held for court yesterday by the United States Commissioner on complaints charging violations of the narcotic law.

Joe Pick Quong, of 536 Second avenue, who was said to have had 400 grains of smoking opium concealed in a laundry package, when arrested at a Liberty street bus station, was committed to jail in default of $2,500 bond.

Following his arrest, according to the testimony, the officers went to the Third avenue address and arrested Yee Wing Lock, Gee Quong, Yee Jack Quee and Kim Pom, who were accused of having possession of 26 grains of smoking opium and a large quantity of yen shee. They were committed to jail in default of $1,500 bond each.

Bonds of $2,000 were set for Yee Wong Hong and Yee Thick, arrested in the rear of 130 Fourth avenue. They were accused of manufacturing smoking opium by cooking gum opium.

Ting Sung and John Paul, arrested in the latter raid, were discharged by the Commissioner.

AWAIT DEFENSE IN LONGVUE SUIT

Edward B. Hess and his wife, Freda P. Hess, have been given 15 days in which to file an affidavit of defense on a rule granted by Common Pleas Court to open a judgment in ejection which Alfred Forney and his wife, Tracy E. Forney, filed several weeks ago against the Hesses.

The Forneys seek repossession of the Longvue Club property on the Thompson Run road, because of alleged violation of the provisions of the lease. It is claimed by the Hesses that they had an oral agreement whereby they were permitted to sell liquors after the sale became legal and they obtained the necessary license.

Judge Harry H. Rowand handed down an opinion yesterday, which in effect reopens the judgment.

NRA

GEN. JOHNSON TURNS CRITIC OF NRA

goods." George H. Houston, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, opposed reduction of hours together with maintenance of wage levels as tending to curtail demand and "freeze unemployment" in the durable goods field.

Inviting criticism, Donald R. Richberg, general counsel to the NRA, nevertheless pointed out that "an economic revolution is in progress."

Johnson opened the "field day of criticism" by frankly urging revisions to eliminate inconsistent and conflicting provisions of various codes, to choke off racketeering and abuse of administration, and to provide representation for consumers and for labor as advisory aides on the code authorities.

NEEDS CITED

Chief among NRA needs which Johnson cited as requiring immediate attention were improved price stabilization methods; strengthening of the "costs" rule to avert sales at less than producing costs; reduction of work hours with an accompanying increase in hourly wages, and uniformity of wages and hours in competing industries.

The administrator likewise declared himself in favor of uniform classification of areas to clarify differentials between north and southern industrial fields; air-tight protection against monopolies or oppression of "the little fellow," and uniformity of governmental representation on code authorities.

The general stood before an audience of several thousand, numbering about 200 "registered" critics invited to gather at five separate conferences to "obtain all possible criticism and suggestion concerning all phases of the NRA program."

Johnson, however, ruled the critics might not attack individual codes. This phase will be discussed next week when the various code authorities meet in open sessions to consider revision of the 350 industrial peace pacts already signed by President Roosevelt.

PURPOSE EXPLAINED

Explaining the character of the session opening today and lasting during the week, Johnson said:

"The purpose of this meeting is to make it a roundup of every kind of helpful comment that has been produced as a result of six months of operation under the President's re-employment agreement and codes. That should be time enough to give us some real results of experience."

Johnson gave a list of 12 needs of the NRA requiring immediate attention. They were:

1—A more uniform and equitable rule of national price stabilization in those cases where it is necessary to maintain wages at a decent standard against the certain results of predatory and cut-throat competition, and further insurance against increase of price faster and further than increase of purchasing power.

2—A more effective rule on costs for the purpose of maintaining rules against sales below costs of production.

3—Uniformity of wages and hourly rates in competitive industries.

4—Uniform classification of areas for the purpose of the North-South differentials.

PAY RATE INCREASE

5—Further reductions in hours per week and further increase in hourly wages.

6—Certainty of protection against monopoly control and oppression on small enterprise, and, especially, the inclusion in codes of adequate buying (as well as selling) provision to guard against oppression of small business.

7—A much improved method for securing prompt and effective compliance.

8—A safe method of financing code administration without racketeering and abuse.

9—Elimination of inconsistent or conflicting provisions among various codes.

10—Adequate labor and consumer representation in an advisory capacity on code authorities.

11—Uniformity in governmental representation on code authorities.

12—Wider use of mechanism for settling labor disputes in connection with code administration.

BLUE EAGLE DEFENDED

Johnson denied the "Blue Eagle" delivered less than was promised for him, and that the NRA has increased prices faster than purchasing power and so has done more harm than good. He said:

"The oft repeated statement that the Blue Eagle delivered less than was promised for him is one of those deliberate misrepresentations designed and intended to hurt and hamper the NRA, and for no other purpose—in other words, a fraud on the public.

"Calculation on a most conservative estimate showed a re-employment under codes and agreements at 2,750,000 and an increased payroll of $3,000,000,000. The net of this is to say that our stark estimate made on June 6 in an unknown field was about 92 per cent accurate, so that when any man says the extravagant promises were made for the Blue Eagle, and not fulfilled, he simply has no regards for the facts.

"The second similar statement is that NRA has increased prices faster than purchasing power and so has done more harm than good and might better never have been done at all. The claim of this criticism—even before we consider its truth—is cruel, cynical, buncombe.

UNTRUTHS CHARGED

"But like the statement about extravagant promises, this comment is also simply untrue. The codes and re-employment agreements did not go into effect until September, 1933. The National Industrial Conference Board index on the cost of living for September was 77.9 per cent. At the end of December it was 77.3 per cent; at the end of January, 77.5 per cent, and preliminary estimates for the end of February, 77.8 per cent. In the meantime the NRA increase in payrolls was $3,000,000,000. In other words, with the cost of living stationary, NRA re-employed 3,000,000 people (who were without jobs before) and added $3,000,000,000 to the annual wherewithall of workers to live.

"It must be remembered, too, that all this happened during a downward cycle of production when, without NRA, we would probably have had a fresh deluge of unemployment.

"There is a sort of assault on NRA to which I have continuously objected. It is a very different thing from what I have described—unwarranted aspersions on the good faith of men assisting here who to my certain knowledge have come to us at great personal sacrific and given their strength and ability and health and manhood—like crusaders in a holy cause, and to limits of devotion the like of which I never saw even in the war.

SACRIFICES TOLD

"With two exceptions, the maximum salary here is $6,000 and there is hardly any one here in a principal position who has not earned more than that. Some of them can and do earn many times more in other employment.

"I object to attempts, by furtive innuendo, to shake public confidence, by outright lies or half-baked and ignorant assertions respecting acts and policies—usually uttered with the air of some secret and special information. There is no inside information about NRA, because it does whatever it does under the full gaze of whoever desires to take the trouble to look.

"I object to having my assistants characterized by epithet without an iota of justification in fact. It tends to make public service by competents impossible."

Glass Firm Agrees To Deal With Union

The Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company has agreed to deal in collective bargaining with the Window Glass Cutters' League of America as representative of part of the company's employes, R. L. Clause, vice president of the company, said today.

M'NAIR WANTS CWA TO PAY

Expressing satisfaction with the CWA program here, Mayor McNair has suggested that the Federal Government assume all expenses incident to the program.

In a statement issued yesterday McNair said that practically all municipalities have exhausted their resources and so cannot afford more projects. He stated:

"Eventual costs of the CWA will be spread by taxation over all municipalities, therefore they should benefit in like proportion."

The Mayor, however, complained that only minor PWA appropriations have been made here.

A resolution to secure definite allocation of CWA funds to complete all approved city projects was introduced in Council, aiming to forestall the city's paying labor costs if the CWA ends before its projects are completed.

Appropriations of $72,000 for steps and boardwalks and $260,000 for other public works to be done under CWA have been asked from Council.

CWA AIRPORTS AID SPURNED

Raymond D. Marlier, chief aeronautics advisor to Eric H. Biddle, state CWA administrator, today criticized boroughs and townships in Allegheny County for failure to use CWA money for the construction of airports.

Ample funds are available for the work, according to Marlier, but no Pittsburgh district community has taken advantage of them. Though the airports may be constructed only on public property, Marlier said communities need not purchase land since CWA rules permit them to lease it for five years, with an option of buying it at the end of that time.

Marlier declared auxiliary landing fields are needed here, and the boroughs and townships will soon be forced to pay for the work which the Federal Government now offers to subsidize.

HARDWARE HEAD BACKS SALES TAX

Advocating the enactment of a manufacturers' sales tax, Frank P. Fifer, of Philadelphia, president of the Pennsylvania and Atlantic Seaboard Hardware Association, today declared increasing taxes on incomes was destroying business incentive.

Mr. Fifer is presiding at the annual convention of the hardware association, which convened in the William Penn Hotel today.

He urged that Congress give serious consideration to the enactment of sales tax legislation, pointing out that his view was not selfish, for most of the merchandise sold in hardware stores, with the possible exception of farming implements, would be subject to the tax. He added:

"Upon manufactured products is where our tax should be placed. Food, clothing, medicine and other necessities of life should be exempt. The increasing rate on earned income is destroying business incentive."

The convention features an exhibition with more than 100 displays of manufacturers and wholesalers, occupying the Chatterbox and lower exhibition hall of Hotel William Penn, where the sessions will continue through Friday.

The retail hardware code was discussed by Hugh F. McKnight, of Pittsburgh, who outlined its benefits and enforcements. The effect of the suppliers' code on the retailers was discussed by A. J. Bihler, Pittsburgh.

COEDS TO ARGUE ON NRA

"Resolved, that the Essential Features of the NRA Should be Made Permanent" will be the topic of the three off-campus debates scheduled this week on the University of Pittsburgh Women's Debating Association card.

Elizabeth Glass, Sara Reisch and Marjorie Hanson were to meet a Westminster College group today, and Agnes Calabrese and Marguerite Swank will oppose teams at Denison College and Ohio Wesleyan University Thursday and Friday, respectively.

Ruth Bowser and Freda Goldstein will represent Pitt at an intercollegiate conference on women's student government at Allegheny College, Meadville, Thursday.

Second Day Baked Foods

"Your baked foods are always so fresh. Don't you ever have any left over?" asked a customer. Yes, we have plenty left over sometimes when the weather man goes on a rampage and McCann customers stay indoors*. But second day baked foods never appear on McCann counters. Instead they are sent to a special counter in our Coffee Shop (Graeme Street) and sold at a fraction of their cost as Day Old Baked Foods.

*Bad weather is no reason for doing without McCann foods. Many of our customers use our shopping and delivery service when it's inconvenient to shop personally.

BROKERS FIGHT BILL CURBING STOCK SALES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Opposition to the Fletcher-Rayburn stock market regulation bill was expressed today by Charles A. Collins, president of the Boston exchange, who contended it would "work a hardship on the New England public as a whole and on the security houses serving New England."

Before the House interstate commerce committee, he registered "an emphatic and special protest" against the provision of the legislation "which makes it unlawful for a concern to be both a dealer and a broker."

Michael J. O'Brien, president of the Chicago Stock Exchange, warned against too strict federal regulation of the exchanges. O'Brien suggested that the bill in its present form goes too far.

Meanwhile, the Senate banking committee, in an extraordinary move, granted the New York Stock Exchange the privilege of being represented by counsel in its hearings on the bill.

The action left the committee sitting as a jury on the stock market with its own counsel, Ferdinand Pecora, acting as prosecutor and Roland Redmond, exchange attorney, as chief defense counsel.

WIRE AND RADIO BILLS DRAFTED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—The administration bill to create a federal communications commission of seven members to regulate foreign and interstate telegraph, telephone, cable and radio services was introduced today in both houses of Congress.

Quickly responding to a request received only yesterday from President Roosevelt, Senator Dill (Dem.), of Washington, and Representative Rayburn (Dem.), of Texas, chairmen respectively of the Senate and House committees on interstate commerce, offered the legislation.

While applying to "common carriers" virtually the same provisions of the interstate commerce act, the measure re-enacts and broadens the radio act to give the commission wider powers over the newest of the communications services.

It would make more stringent the prohibitions against alien ownership of radio facilities and revise the radio broadcasting zones.

One new provision which framers of the measure said would perhaps cause the greatest controversy would authorize the commission to investigate and annul service contracts between operating companies and service affiliates.

U. S. Loan for Cuba To Buy Silver Seen

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—A government loan of several million dollars to Cuba for the purchase of silver in this country was described today in informed circles as probable.

The loan, it was said, will be made through the Import and Export Bank for Trade With Cuba, the organization of which was announced only last night after a conference at the White House between President Roosevelt and his chief trade advisers.

STOP THAT COLD

DISTRESSING cold in chest or throat, that so often leads to something serious, generally eases up in five minutes when soothing, warming Musterole is applied. Rubbed in once every hour, relief usually follows in five hours.

Better than a mustard plaster, Musterole gets action because it's NOT just a salve, it's a "counter-irritant"—stimulating, penetrating, and helpful in drawing out pain and infection.

Used by millions for 25 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists. In three strengths: Regular Strength, Children's (mild), and Extra Strong.

Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

TELLS SAFE, SIMPLE WAY TO TREAT AND RELIEVE AT HOME

If you have catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises caused by catarrh, or if phlegm drops in your throat and has caused nausea of the stomach or bowels, you will be glad to know that these distressing symptoms may be relieved overcome in many instances by the following treatment, which you can easily prepare in your own home at little cost. Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (Double Strength). Take this home and add to it ½ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. An improvement is sometimes noted after the first day's treatment. Breathing should become easy, while the distressing head noises, headaches, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., should gradually disappear under the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell, taste, defective hearing and nasty dropping in the back of the throat are other symptoms which suggest the presence of catarrh and which may often be overcome by this efficacious treatment. It is said that nearly 90 per cent of all ear troubles are caused by catarrh and there must, therefore, be many people whose hearing may be restored by this simple, harmless, home treatment.

Plan to Trade Bonds for Waste Land Defeated

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Amid murmurs of "communistic" and "preposterous," Democratic leaders in Congress have quietly vetoed a proposal to swap government bonds for property on which taxes are unpaid.

Millions of acres of waste land would have been acquired by the government under the plan, attributed in capital quarters to Rexford Tugwell, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture.

'BRAIN TRUST IDEA'

One man who took part in a conference on the plan called it a "brain trust idea" and said it had been definitely "killed."

It was to have been a step in the Agricultural Department program to retire submarginal and waste land from production. Tugwell was understood to plan the purchase of the tax-delinquent land from states, cities and counties. An issue of $500,000,000 in 40-year non-transferable bonds bearing 1½ per cent interest would have paid for it. The land would have been turned into national parks, erosion control areas, game preserves or permitted to lie idle.

OUTLINED AT CONFERENCE

The plan was outlined at a conference attended by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Vice President Garner, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, and Chairman Jones (Dem.), of Texas, of the House Agriculture Committee.

Some conferees privately called the plan "preposterous" and "communistic" and warned that they would oppose it on the floor if necessary.

PRIMARY OPEN SAYS FARLEY

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—In his capacity as chairman of the Democratic National Committee, Postmaster General James A. Farley hoisted the flag of truce today in all Democratic primary battles.

Farley issued the following statement:

"In view of the approaching primaries in many states, it is only fair that it be thoroughly understood that the Democratic National Committee is not taking part, for or against any Democratic candidate, in any senatorial, state, municipal or congressional campaign.

VOTE MACHINES CONTRACT DUE

The County Commissioners late today expect to have a contract submitted by Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company to cover the repair of Allegheny County's voting machines.

Commissioner C. C. McGovern declared, following a conference of the county and company's engineers and the commissioners yesterday, that the contract will be submitted with an estimate of costs.

One of the machines was examined Saturday by Richard J. Beamish, secretary of the Commonwealth, and two of his inspectors. It had been repaired by the Westinghouse company, and was found to be fit, with some minor corrections yet to be made, Dr. Frank Conrad, Westinghouse engineer, explained that he planned to go farther than the minimum requirement and make a number of other improvements on the machines.

Employers Scored For Code Violations

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—John P. Frey, an official of the American Federation of Labor, in a formal statement today charged the National Association of Manufacturers and a few other national employer groups with "major responsibility for the widespread violations" of labor provisions of the industrial law and the NRA codes.

the tobacco does not spill out

Every Lucky Strike is made from the finest tobacco and only the center leaves. Not the top leaves—because those are under-developed—not ripe. They would give a harsh smoke. Not the bottom leaves—because those are inferior in quality. They grow close to the ground, and are tough, coarse and always sandy. The center leaves are the mildest leaves, for which farmers are paid higher prices. Only these center leaves are used in making Luckies the fully packed cigarette—so round, so firm—free from loose ends. That's why Luckies draw easily, burn evenly. And remember—"It's toasted"—for throat protection—for finer taste.

Saturday at 1:50 P. M., Eastern Standard Time, over Red and Blue Networks of NBC, Lucky Strike will broadcast the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York in the complete Opera, "Lucia di Lammermoor."

POKER PARTIES, ARMY BUYING LINKED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—While a grand jury resumed today its prolonged interrogation of Assistant Secretary Woodring, of the War Department, it was learned that investigators aiding in the Army contract inquiry were delving into poker parties, yachting excursions and similar functions said to have been attended by lobbyists and certain federal employes involved in contract negotiations.

A series of poker parties over a long period of months, during which lobbyists and manufacturers' agents are reported to have lost regularly and heavily to men on government payroll, has aroused the curiosity of investigators, it was disclosed.

Several yachting trips down the Potomac allegly enjoyed by an official of the previous administration at the expense of a person seeking a government award have been the subject of inquiry.

Semi-official conferences outside the War Department at which business was mixed with pleasure by departmental employes and lawyers representing firms seeking valuable government contract also have been under scrutiny.

Meanwhile, Assistant Secretary Woodring again went into the grand jury room with a brief case bulging with papers. The grand jury is reported to have been desirous of questioning Woodring intensively about cryptic entries in a confidential diary kept by his private secretary, Mrs. Kate Buckingham.

MILITIA FLIER KILLED IN CRASH

LORAIN, O., Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Lieut. Albert J. Harmon, Michigan National Guard flier, fell to his death on the ice of Lake Erie east of here late yesterday a short time after he took off from Cleveland for Detroit on an unofficial flight.

A heavy snowstorm was raging near Lorain when Harmon's plane, flying low, roared over houses on the lake shore and dropped down on the ice. Harmon attempted to use his parachute, but it failed to open and he dropped to his death. The plane burst into flames and was destroyed.

Harmon was flying a plane of the 107th Observation Squadron, Michigan National Guard. He flew Col. C. E. F. Clark, of Detroit, a school teacher, to Cleveland yesterday and was returning alone. Clark is a lieutenant colonel of infantry in the Michigan Reserve Corps.

Harmon is the seventh service flier to be killed since February 16. Five Army men crashed while flying the airmail or flying to airmail posts. A sixth Army man dropped to his death while on a private flight. Lieut. Horman had no connection with the airmail and was on a private flight, his superiors said.

RICKENBACKER HITS MAIL PLAN

WORCESTER, Mass., Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Denouncing government action that cancelled commercial air mail contracts, Capt. Eddie V. Rickenbacker, speaking at an annual Army and Navy dinner here last night, said government policy was needlessly killing young men and robbing the nation of protection in a time of emergency.

Prior to his speech, Capt. Rickenbacker said in an interview that if the present policy of the government in relation to air mail transportation by Army planes continued an unknown number of Army aviators would be killed and commercial aviation, which he termed the backbone of national defense, would be wrecked.

Politics and patronage, he asserted, were a motivating influence in the situation which had developed.

President Roosevelt he classed as sincere and capable, but said he believed the President had been misled and ill advised in the matter of cancellations.

SENATORS URGE CHILD WORK BAN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Two senators of opposite political faiths united last night in a plea for national support of the child labor amendment to the constitution.

They were Capper (Rep.), of Kansas, and Costigan (Dem.), of Colorado. Costigan said:

"No argument for the ratification of the federal child labor amendment and against the ills of child labor is so weighty as the fact that children, who become cogs in our industrial machine, displace needy men and women who are employable and unemployed."

Capper started a counter attack against opponents of the amendment. It is abused, he said, to assert that the amendment would mean children could not help wash the dishes or milk the cows or work their way through school.

Welsh Choir Sings At Protheroe Rites

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—The Welsh Male Choir yesterday sang at funeral services for its founder, Dr. Daniel William Protheroe, 67, noted composer, who died Saturday. Several numbers by Dr. Protheroe were included in the final tribute by the choir to the man who had been a leader in musical circles for 40 years.

Storm Cancels Night Flights By Army Here

The Army's air mail men today were spared the dangers of the Pennsylvania mountains as winter again forced cancellation of all flights in and out of Pittsburgh.

While objections were being voiced in Washington to continuation of the Army operation of the air mail, the pilots were accepting the situation as part of the job and increasing their experience in night flying under unfavorable conditions.

That the dial of his radio dropped off as he was crossing the mountains was made light of by Lieut. McClelland, who flew the Pittsburgh-Newark route before winter forced suspension of operations. He said:

"It really wasn't much. It was just as though you lost the dial on your home radio and had to guess at the stations. I got along all right."

Ships that Lieut. Corley McDarment, commandant at Rodgers Field, said were unfit for operation in this region have been withdrawn from night mail runs in the mountains, according to reports at the City-County Airport.

Lieut. C. P. Hollstein, who cracked up near Uniontown last week, was flying one of these planes.

A statement issued by Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Corporation here yesterday quoted George R. Hahn and R. W. Robbins as denying charges of Clifford Ball, airline official here, that were voiced at the Senate air mail hearing in Washington yesterday. Hann and Robbins were officials of the corporation.

FARLEY UPHELD AT MAIL PROBE

ever saw," between Brown and former Assistant Secretary of Commerce William P. MacCracken, legal representative of several aviation companies.

Calling attention to the minutes of the May (1930) operators' meeting called by Brown, Austin asked:

"When men conspire to do an unlawful act, they don't make a record of their conspiracy in writing, do they?"

Crowell replied:

"They did in this instance."

Speaking of the cancellation of the contracts, Crowell continued:

"I think it's one of the most outrageous deeds any Postmaster General and any President ever did. And the present Postmaster General and the present President are not destroyers of business.

"These conspirators have practically admitted their own guilt by the written documents they left.

"They have done everything except to plead guilty before the bar of justice.

"They have defrauded the United States government out of millions of dollars.

"We are trying to find out what went on down there in the Postoffice Department so that if wrong was done we can correct it.

"We are finding out more every day."

The House postoffice committee today voted to permit airmail operators, whose contracts were cancelled, to again carry the mail when the airmail law is revised.

West Penn Railways Named in Protest

Mayor George H. Lysle, of McKeesport, has filed a complaint with the Public Service Commission against the West Penn Railways Company for the "safeguard" of the public's rights.

Lysle states that Walnut street is in need of repaving, but the railways company refuses to pay its share.

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

No Cooking! No Work! Real Saving!

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in more homes than any other cough remedy, because it gives more prompt, positive relief. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Syrup is easily made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. This gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money, and it's a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes fine.

Instantly you feel its penetrating effect. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm, clears the air passages, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief in severe coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, used for generations for its healing effect on throat membranes. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

DANDRUFF Ends Overnight!

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get some plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring, using enough to moisten the scalp and rubbing it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It won't cost you more than thirty-five cents (35c). This never fails.

ROOSEVELT TO VETO BONUS

veto a bill for cash payment of the $2,000,000,000 soldiers' bonus, if passed by Congress.

After the President authorized Rainey to say he could not approve a bonus bill, advocates of the bonus said this indicated that the President would allow the bill to become law without his signature.

The President answered:

"I don't do things that way."

The note, made public by Rainey—characteristic of the President's informal way of dealing with many state subjects—follows:

"Memorandum for the speaker:

"Dear Henry:

"Mac has shown me your letter of February twenty-first. Naturally when I suggested to you that I could not approve the bill for payment of the bonus certificates, I did not mean that I might let it become law without my signature. I don't do things that way. What I meant was that I would veto the bill, and I don't care who you tell this to.

"Let me know your thoughts on the next step.

"F. D. R."

The "Mac" referred to in the President's note is his secretary, Marvin M. McIntyre.

By virtue of the signing of a petition by 145 members, the House is expected to have the bonus issue on the floor on March 12.

Asked what would be the "next step," referred to in the note, Rainey said he assumed it would be the vote in the House.

U. S. TURNS EYE ON INDUSTRIAL BONUSES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—The Senate, its appetite whetted by revelation of huge salaries and bonuses paid by big business in boom years, is going to learn more about the subject.

The Federal Trade Commission indicated today that statistics it reported to the Senate yesterday are only the first fruits of an inquiry that soon will cover the major business field in its entirety.

Yesterday's figures showed that out of 900 big companies about 300 executives were receiving more than $100,000 in 1929.

Thumbing through the data already presented, senators found that in piping times about 40 men were getting pay checks and bonuses of $200,000 or more a year.

TWO TOP MILLION

Some 25 got between $200,000 and $300,000; seven got between $300,000 and $400,000; three between $700,000 and $800,000; two between $800,000 and $900,000; one, something over a million and another one more than a million and a half.

Generally speaking, the bonuses which created these huge awards were eliminated by 1933, although there were increases in a few instances.

Salaries also fell so that on a percentage basis many major executives took cuts of 75 per cent or more—although their salaries still ranged comfortably around the $50,000 zone.

WHAT IS A MAN WORTH?

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—What is a man worth? How large should his pay check be?

That question, bound up as it is with issues of social philosophy, is up for discussion again. It was revived by the Federal Trade Commission's report to the Senate yesterday.

The various schools of economic and social thought are far from agreed. For instance, corporation executives in Wall street will tell you that a big businessman—depending on his ability—may be worth a salary that would make a king look like a junior executive.

Large bonuses have not been unanimously cheered by stockholders. Take the $1,623,753 payment to E. G. Grace as president of Bethlehem Steel in 1929—which seems to have set a record. Some stockholders went to court about it.

Charles M. Schwab, explaining that bonus, contended Grace had been worth many times that to the company.

Pittsburgher Faces Jury in Ohio Death

STEUBENVILLE, O., Feb. 27.—(AP.)—A jury of four women and eight men was seated tentatively today in the trial of Frank Romano, 32, of Pittsburgh, charged with slaying Benjamin Oliver, former mayor of Yorkville, last October.

The wife and infant son of the defendant were in court, but Prosecutor Arthur Hooper was sustained in an objection to their presence at the counsel table.

HISTORY GROUP HEARS SEIBEL

Commemorating the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of Pittsburgh's first historical organization, the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania will hold a centennial dinner in the University Club at 6:30 tonight.

Robert Garland, toastmaster, will introduce as speakers A. Boyd Hamilton, secretary of the Commonwealth, and George Seibel literary and dramatic critic, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Frank L. Duggan is chairman of a dinner committee which includes Mrs. Harmar D. Denny, Edward B. Lee, Dr. John W. Oliver, Chancellor John G. Bowman, of the University of Pittsburgh; Miss Rose Demorest, Samuel Harden Church, director of Carnegie Institute; Dr. Thomas S. Baker, of Carnegie Institute of Technology; Mrs. Franklin C. Irish, Frank J. Lanahan, Chief Justice Robert S. Frazer, Thomas A. Dunn, Thomas O. Hasley, S. A. Taylor, M. Wilson Stewart and Andrew G. Smith.

YOUTH DENIES MURDER GUILT

FRANKLIN, Pa., Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Russell Graham, 17-year-old high school boy, before a magistrate yesterday, pleaded not guilty to slaying his father, Alonzo Graham, 66, in a quarrel at their home in Oil City.

The youth, who police said admitted he fatally wounded his father, made the plea upon advice of District Attorney Maurice Breene. Graham was not accompanied by counsel.

Visibly affected by a visit to his home Sunday, where he saw his father's body, the boy said nothing during the trip to and from the office of Magistrate Robert Frye.

A hearing for the youth was set for Friday.

Woman Indicted In Doctor's Death

READING, Pa., Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Miss Frances Sepse has been indicted on a charge of shooting Dr. Paul R. Hess to death, the grand jury returning a true bill 17 minutes after it began consideration of the socially prominent physician's death.

Miss Sepse was one of the witnesses before the jury yesterday. She had been quoted by police authorities as saying she killed the doctor "for his own good."

JAPANESE FAN PATTERN 645

This Quilt Is Lovely in Scraps

Japanese Fan is one of those choice quilts that have all the qualities that the quiltmaker looks for. Easy to do—made of scraps—handsome in the single block——striking when the blocks are joined, its popularity is well earned. The design lends itself specially to lovely color arrangements.

Pattern 645 comes to you with complete, simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

OTTO MUST WAIT FOR AUSTRIAN CROWN

By ALFRED TYRNAUER
International News Service.

VIENNA, Feb. 27.—All talk of placing young Archduke Otto on the throne of Austria must be shelved for the moment but the archduke will shortly be permitted to leave his exile in Belgium and return to Austria as a private citizen.

Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg, leader of the fascist heimwehr and the most powerful figure in the republic, made this announcement this afternoon.

Asked about reports that have been recurring for several days that Otto would take the throne at the invitation of the fascists Prince Starhemberg replied:

"Austria at present cannot afford the luxury of a decision on such an important question as the restoration of the Hapsburg monarchy. But anti-Hapsburg laws will be eliminated from the constitution, making Otto's return as a private citizen possible.

"There is no question, however, that democracy is doomed everywhere in the world. I am convinced that it will be replaced by fascism."

WHARF PARKING HELD LEGAL

The city's right to use its wharves for parking spaces for automobiles to relieve traffic congestion was upheld today in a majority opinion handed down by Judges James H. Gray and George V. Moore.

Dismissing the equity suit brought by James Rees & Sons Co. to stop parking on Duquesne wharf, the opinion stated:

"The city has full and complete control over the Duquesne wharf to the same extent as over the streets."

The judges held that the suit was "apparently brought in the interests of owners and operators of other parking places." Judge Thomas M. Marshall dissented.

MISS RALSTON SEEKS DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 27.—(INS.)—On the screen, Esther Ralston often was the heroine of love stories—but they had happy endings.

Her own love story, with George Webb, her manager-husband, had an unhappy ending yesterday.

Charging cruelty, Miss Ralston filed suit here for a divorce.

The suit was filed under the couple's real name, Frey.

Miss Ralston charged that Webb nagged and quarrelled with her and that he displayed an attitude of unreasonable jealousy.

Officials Offer Aid In Ambridge Probe

Two Beaver County law officers who were leaders of the deputy sheriffs' forces in the Ambridge labor riots last fall today offered their assistance to the Governor's committee investigating the disorders.

District Attorney A. B. de Castrique and Sheriff J. O. O'Loughlin dispatched their letters of cooperation to Shippen Lewis, of Harrisburg, chairman of the committee, according to an Internation News Service dispatch from Beaver Falls, Pa.

EX-RUM SLEUTH SEEKS DIVORCE

Lewis V. Schollenberger, 121 South Fairmount avenue, formerly employed by the alcoholic beverage unit of the Department of Justice, yesterday asked Judge W. H. McNaugher to grant him a divorce from Helen Schollenberger, of Hanover, Pa.

He claims that his wife refused to come to Pittsburgh to live with him, saying she preferred to remain with her parents.

A letter was offered in evidence, from Commander John D. Pennington, dated March 15, 1931, showing his appointment to the alcoholic unit, which was the date which Schollenberger stated he and his wife last lived together. They were married November 11, 1926. Schollenberger had lived in Hanover before coming to Pittsburgh. He said he is not now employed.

Mussolini Upholds Germany's Rights Under Treaty to Re-Arm, Says Europe Faces 'Eleventh Hour' in Crisis to Avert War

France Holds Key To Peace, He Declares

Editor's Note—War will come if Europe goes in for a race in armaments. Premier Mussolini of Italy tells H. R. Knickerbocker, in the fourteenth article of the series "Will War Come," that Germany is going to rearm openly and that no one can stop her.

France, the Italian dictator warns, must allow Germany enough arms to satisfy her if a race in armaments is to be avoided.

"It is the eleventh hour," Mussolini declared. "We have no choice but to make an agreement. He would prefer an agreement to disarm. But if we cannot get that, we must have some agreement. It is vital to the peace of the world and this may be our last chance to get it."

ROME, Feb. 27.—Julius Caesar, say Nazi historians, was a Nordic. Rome was great, they say, because a few drops of Nordic blood dribbled down South. Rome today does not like that.

Benito Mussolini is proud to be an Italian. He made Italians proud to be Italians. No Italian agrees with Nazi doctrines on the reasons for the greatness of Rome.

It requires a visit to this city to realize how many points of disagreement there are between the Brown and the Black shirts. The head of the government here has been popularly believed to be "pro-German." The impression one gains from personal contact is that Mussolini is pro-Italian first and pro-peace second, and that his choice of pro-anything else will be based solely on his first two preferences.

PEACE ADVOCATE

Certainly Mussolini is pro-peace. Ten years ago Europe called him the most dangerous war menace on the continent. Today his capital is the rendezvous of all those statesmen who, earnestly alarmed, are shuttling back and forth across the continent seeking to avert disaster. No man in Europe has studied more closely the question "Will War Come?" And none is more desperately serious in trying to make the answer negative.

He has declared that he believes war may be held off for 10 years. But he made it plain today that in his opinion:

War will come if Europe goes in for a race in armaments;

Disarmament is impossible.

Germany is going to rearm openly and nobody can stop her.

Further, that if Germany begins to rearm openly, without an agreement on limits, the armaments race will have started, and once started it can't be stopped.

FRANCE FACES CRISIS

Therefore, that unless France soon comes to an agreement permitting Germany enough arms to satisfy her and to induce her to promise to limit them, Germany will soon begin to rearm openly without limits.

Finally, that this time is close upon us, that the matter is of the utmost urgency for all Europe, and that France must act.

"Does it seem to your excellency desirable," I asked, "that Germany should be prevented from rearming, or does it seem possible, and if it is impossible does your excellency believe that it will be possible to prevent a race in armaments?"

The Duce said:

"It is obvious by now that the so-called ideal disarmament is impossible though it is the one thing that the Italian government has most desired, and will not cease to strive for. It is also obvious that it is impossible to prevent Germany from rearming. She has a right to under the treaty which promised her equality. If the armed powers will not disarm, Germany plainly has the juridical right to rearm.

"Today it is plain to everybody, even to the neutral states, the smaller states such as Switzerland, Holland, Denmark, that Germany is going to rearm and that nothing can stop her and that the only question now is whether her proportional rearmament can be kept within certain limits. And that is the only way you can prevent an

ARMS LIMIT SOUGHT

"Isn't that plain, logical, irrefutable? Quite aside from what is desirable, if it is clear that Germany has the right to rearm and that she is going to rearm and that nobody can stop her from rearming, would it not be infinitely preferable to obtain her promise to limit her rearmament than to let the whole discussion break up and everybody go off and arm without limit?

"There is the real danger in Europe today. Now the critics of this perfectly plain and irrefutable argument say 'But we can't trust the Germans.' I say we must trust them. When Hitler and Hindenburg over and over again have pledged their word to keep the peace, we must take it seriously. I am prepared to believe them and to act accordingly.

"If others are not prepared to do so, may I ask them 'What then are you going to do?'

"Obviously it is better to have a promise than no promise, and unless you are prepared to take another course, it is also better to trust the promise. Nobody is prepared to take another course, therefore we must accept the peaceful pledges that have been given and we must be ready to accept on their face value promises which would be given in respect to the limitation of armaments. Do not forget that such promises from Germany this time would be freely given, not extracted.

BELIEVES HITLER

"And there are other reasons to believe in the sincerity of Hitler's pledges of peace. Germany is in the midst of a vast internal reorganization. Its internal problems are too various and will take too long to solve for the Germans to have much time to spare for war.

"Consider, too, that the proposals of military reorganization contained in the German demands and in the memorandum of my government mean that the German military machine would be preoccupied for a considerable period of time with its reorganization. It is well known that this sort of military reorganization considerably decreases the momentary military effectiveness. This also is a factor for the French to consider in their desire for security."

"But your excellency," I asked, "will the French consider their security sufficently guaranteed by the terms of your memorandum?"

"Under the terms of my memorandum," Mussolini replied, "the French would retain all of their present armament and could maintain it at its present level. The Germans would receive only the defensive armaments they have requested, while the French would have all the advantage of their present so-called offensive arms.

"The Germans would have, for example, field pieces only up to 155 mm., anti-aircraft guns, armored cars or tanks up to six tons only, and scouting and pursuit airplanes, not bombers, only for defense.

"Now when you take this technical military superiority of the French armaments, plus the fact of their frontier fortifications, plus the treaties, it seems to me that French security would be indisputably established.

"There is the pact of Rome, which not only insures a formal emblem of security but also provides for collaboration among the four powers in a way that certainly is a further guarantee of peace. There, too, is the Locarno treaty. In it the Italian and the British governments have pledged their guarantee of the common frontier of France and Germany.

"Italy stands by the Locarno treaty. What further guarantees could be given? It seems to me that if we were to continue to multiply these promises, they would lose all value. And do not forget that the German government has offered to conclude ten year pacts of non-agression with all its neighbors."

Mussolini paused, then said reflectively:

"I believe we will keep the peace if only we can prevent an unlimited race in armaments. The time has now come when we must act swiftly and de-

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative, safe and pleasant.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, safe and pleasant results from one or two of Dr Edwards' Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

How to Stop a Cold

Quick as You Caught It

Take 2 Bayer Aspirin Tablets.

Drink full glass of water. Repeat treatment in 2 hours.

If throat is sore, crush and dissolve 3 Bayer Aspirin Tablets in a half glass of water and gargle according to directions in box.

Almost Instant Relief in This Way

The simple method pictured above is the way doctors throughout the world now treat colds.

It is recognized as the QUICKEST, safest, surest way to treat a cold. For it will check an ordinary cold almost as fast as you caught it.

Ask your doctor about this. And when you buy, see that you get the real BAYER Aspirin Tablets. They dissolve almost instantly. And thus work almost instantly when you take them. And for a gargle, Genuine BAYER Aspirin Tablets dissolve so completely, they leave no irritating particles. Get a box of 12 tablets or bottle of 24 or 100 at any drug store.

FACTS AND TAXES

With a firm and conscientious belief in our principles of public utility service as applied in the Pittsburgh district, we are coming to you, through the medium of this series of advertisements to tell you some things we think you should know about the working and policies of your utility companies, that you may understand them better.

TAXES INCREASE SINCE 1913

Among other things, we're going to talk about Taxes . . . that's a pertinent subject just now. "What percentage of my income must I reserve to pay Taxes?" . . . a question often heard these days . . . and one which materially affects both large corporations and the average individual. A brief resume demonstrates that in the past twenty years the general trend of taxation has been increasingly upward. In 1913, approximately $2,200,000,000 was paid in Federal, State and local taxes in this country, representing 6.4% of the national income. By 1929, that amount had increased to $10,000,000,000—or 11.0% of the national annual income. At present about 25% of the national income goes to maintenance of the government.

$154,538.73 PAID BY PHILADELPHIA COMPANY IN TAXES TO CITY OF PITTSBURGH IN 1933

Our companies have never avoided the payment of taxes . . . in fact $91,360.69 in real estate tax, and $63,178.04 in school tax was paid to the City of Pittsburgh in 1933. Those amounts were included in the $2,235,536.88 in Federal, State and local taxes paid by our companies in that year. However, if the trend continues upward, and additional demands continue to drain the purchasing power of the people generally, we feel that excessive taxation will manifest a definitely undesirable effect on American trade.

DUCE UPHOLDS NAZI RIGHTS TO ARM

cisively to prevent such a race. If the discussions with Germany are now fruitless, and no agreement is reached, and Germany finally quits conferring and declares she has her hands free, it may then be too late ever to bring about a convention that would limit armaments.

"It is the eleventh hour. We have no choice but to make an agreement. We would prefer an agreement to disarm. It is vital to the peace of the world and this may be our last chance to get it. We must take into consideration Hitler's word. Nothing can be done with suspicion. We must accept his word and have faith not only that it will be kept, but that the granting of the present German demands will not be followed by demands for more during the time of the agreement.

"This is the only road to peace. It is a road we must all take."

The argument had the note of conviction and in the plea for haste lay strong feeling. Between its lines one might read unexpressed, that when Hitler came to power France had but two alternatives: To make war or make an agreement. And that France will not make war. And that if France also does not make an agreement, Germany, rearming without limit, will again become the strongest military power on the Continent.

Thus the alleged "pro-German" policy of the head of the Italian government resolves itself in the last analysis into a realistic attempt to limit German armament. But the realist calls it the eleventh hour.

Down in the Ulpia, the most popular cabaret entertainer in Rome sings low-voiced to the capital's folk of fashion. He sings the songs of every country. A foreign guest asked him for the Horst Wessel Lied, national anthem of Nazi Germany. The singer said:

"We have sent for it, but it has not come."

(Tomorrow — Knickerbocker swings back to the Polish corridor question. From Gdynia, Poland, he writes how that matter now has apparently been settled for at least 10 years).

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

The noon broadcast yesterday must have struck home because after it was all over I received many 'phone calls. Each reported favorably.

The funny thing was that the broadcast was a scolding. No one was offended.

The invited speaker was Fire Chief Richard L. Smith, who, in connection with the recent tragedies from carbon monoxide, told what he knew of this insidious gas.

The fire chief said that most of the deaths from carbon monoxide could have been avoided. Their cause could be attributed to CARELESSNESS.

How many of us know how dangerous it is to run an automobile engine in a closed garage—yet how many of us continue to do it!

How many of us have open gas fires burning without proper flue connections in our bedrooms? How many of us know how to stoke a furnace correctly so that no minor explosions disturbs the draught system?

Improper or no flue connections for fires, improper stoking of furnaces, and running auto engines in a closed garage are the major causes of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Chief Smith pointed out that a whiff or two in a room of two per cent saturation was enough to send one to the "angels" and spending any length of time in a room where the saturation was infinitely less than two per cent also would prove fatal.

Carbon monoxide poisons by getting into the blood stream.

The only way to be safe is to have plenty of ventilation. Enough fresh air to carry off the gas.

Contrary to many opinions, carbon monoxide is odorless and invisible. This adds to its deadly nature.

When a furnace is banked for the night the fire should be pushed in the back and the fresh coal thrown in front. NEVER cover the flame in the fire box completely. There must be a flame on top to ignite the gases that are formed or else they may collect and when a flame does creep through the coal it explodes the gas.

That is what the chief thinks happened at Dartmouth College. The explosion disrupted the flue system and permitted the carbon monoxide to seep through the house.

THE CHIEF WARNS

"A gas fire should never be permitted to burn when not connected to a flue. And garage doors should be open when the motor is running."

Waitress Wins Ben Bernie Job

Taking time out from her duties as a waitress in a downtown drug store, Miss Vilma Rafael, 23, of 1681 Suburban avenue, will sing tonight over a national radio hookup with Ben Bernie.

Miss Rafael, a contralto, was chosen from a large group of Pittsburghers who competed for the honor on the stage of the Stanley Theater this week. Bernie said a wealth of excellent radio material was uncovered by the auditions.

Miss Rafael has been singing four years and recently appeared at an Oakland night club. Delighted by the honor conferred on her but undisturbed at the idea of facing the far-reaching microphone, the brown-eyed Beechview girl said:

"I hope I'm nervous enough to be on edge, but I know I won't be too nervous."

She'll sing "I Guess It Had to Be That Way," unless the "Old Maestro" thinks it ought to be another way.

County Agent Eby To Address Grange

Henry R. Eby, county agricultural agent, will speak before the Allegheny County Pomona Grange meeting in the Presbyterian Church, Bridgeville, Thursday.

A business session will be held in the morning. Discussions on farm problems will occupy members in the afternoon. Speakers will include Prof. Edward Walters, of State College; the Rev. W. W. Ritter, Mrs. E. W. Krelzer and Mrs. M. M. Clever.

British Studio Audiences Applaud at Wrong Times

Grieved as I am to record the fact, the studio audience craze has spread to England, where hitherto no outsiders ever were allowed within the sacred precincts of the broadcasting cubicles. The rules were relaxed last week when John Tilley was relayed, vocally, to this country.

But—the British radio executives have made it a rule that British audiences inside the studios must not applaud.

They are permitted moments of laughter, which of course will be rare, for the simple reason that British jokes are seldom uproarious, and the added reason that the audience usually misses the point.

And since no British radio performer may wear a Cantor costume, there won't be much trouble from this source.

Speaking of the growing menace to the popularity of broadcasts, born of the presence of studio audiences, John Royal, the radio executive, tells me that bulky fan mail continues to disapprove.

SIGNALS

The only steps to check the bad habits of studio audiences, possible for network officials, says Mr. Royal, are some method of control.

As long as sponsors pay for programs, audiences cannot be barred from the studios.

The radio execs are toying with a plan for installing lights to signal for the rise and abatement of applause.

The waves of noise from studio audiences need not necessarily continue to annoy outside listeners, Royal thinks.

There is only one cause of this, and that cause is the average comedian, who cannot, it seems, resist making grimaces and other appeals to the visible listeners.

If sponsors will transfer the control of such performers over to the networks, their sideplays to those inside the studio would be ordered out, says Royal.

So it seems that all the annoyances accruing from studio audiences are traceable to the hammy practices of ex-vaudeville comics.

Jimmy Murray, assisted by the KQV staff, re-create the Carnera-Loughran heavyweight championship battle, blow by blow, in a special telegraphic relay of the fight from Florida, over KQV Wednesday night at about 10 o'clock.

When the opera season is over, the cigaret firm now sponsoring the Metropolitan Opera broadcasts will revert to Al Goodman's orchestra and a soloist.

Jimmy Melton, the tenor, who has just started a show at CBS, will sign up for still another patron before April Fool's Day. He will make a picture in July.

After two more Cantor broadcasts, Dave Rubinoff will go to Hollywood to form an orchestra supporting Cantor there, since the comedian will then be in the throes of a new cinema feature.

Roger Wolfe Kahn is receiving fan mail before he returns to the air. Among the letters are several from curious women who want to know their futures, and they address him as Rajah Kahn.

Quin Hall's Patrol On Air Today

Whether they're getting cold feet down in the Antarctic, or maybe a little worried about the long winter night that's about to settle over the South Pole, Quin Hall's Junior Patrol explorers down in Little America are beginning to think about home.

We wouldn't be surprised, when Junior, Spike, Snuggins and Butch broadcast over WCAE tomorrow afternoon at 4:45, to find that they're getting ready to sail in their home-made boat for home, sweet home.

Probably, they figure that by the time they get here, it will be Springtime and school will be out.

Anyhow, let's listen in, Wednesday afternoon, and hear what they're up to in their Antarctic adventures. And besides the Junior Patrol voyagers, we'll hear some songs and recitations something like this:—

I. Junior Patrol Ensemble.
II. Shirley Mae Merhout—song.
III. Billy Arnold—piano solo; March of the Guards.

YOU CAN'T "KILL" COLDS

but you may Control them!

Don't run risks with so-called "cold-killing" remedies. It's so easy to upset the system with unwise internal dosing.

Play safe with your family's health! Reduce the number, duration and dangers of colds by following Vicks Plan for better Control of Colds. Its worth has been clinically tested—and proved. Details of the Plan are in each Vicks package.

To AVOID many colds —VICKS NOSE DROPS

At that first nasal irritation or stuffiness, apply Vicks Nose & Throat Drops, the amazing new aid in preventing many colds.

To RELIEVE a cold —VICKS VAPORUB

If a cold has developed, apply VapoRub at bedtime. Its poultice-vapor action—all night long—gives soothing relief. Avoids dosing.

GAINS 5 LBS. IN 1 WEEK Feels Fine!

Read How Amazing Mineral Concentrate, Richest in Newer Form of "FOOD IODINE," Is Building Up Thousands of Nervous, Skinny, Rundown Folks Where All Else Fails

"I have been underweight for years," says Miss Taylor, "and after two packages of Kelp-a-Malt have gained well over five lbs. and am a new person inside and out. Am elated with Kelp-a-Malt." . . . "Had stomach trouble for years. When I take Kelp-a-Malt I have a hearty appetite for everything and suffer no distress. Kelp-a-Malt has banished constipation, which I have had all my life." —W. D. C. . . . "Gained 8 pounds with one package of Kelp-a-Malt and feel 100% better." —Mrs. W. J. S.

Just a few of the thousands of actual testimonials that are flooding in from all over the country telling us how the newer form of food iodine is building firm flesh, strengthening the nerves, enriching the blood—nourishing vital glands and making weak, pale, careworn underweight men and women look and feel years younger.

Scientists have recently discovered that the blood, liver and vital glands of the body contain definite quantities of iodine which heretofore has been difficult to obtain.

Modern foodstuffs, even fresh vegetables and similarly so-called "good" foods have recently been discovered to be lacking not only in food iodine but in all the other essential organic minerals without which strength and health are impossible.

Miss Esther Taylor 123 West 13th St., New York City

Supplies Newer Form of Food Iodine

Kelp-a-Malt only recently discovered, contains practically every mineral essential to normal well being. But most important of all, it is the richest known source of the newer form of food iodine—natural iodine not made from iodides or other chemicals which oftentimes prove toxic, but the same iodine that is present in spinach and lettuce. It is the lack of this iodine which experts in nutrition say is our foremost national food problem.

Kelp-a-Malt is a sea vegetable concentrate taken from the Pacific Ocean and made available in palatable, pleasant-to-take tablet form. Six Kelp-a-Malt tablets provide more food iodine than 486 pounds of spinach, 1,600 pounds of beef, 1,387 pounds of lettuce. Three Kelp-a-Malt tablets contain more iron and copper for rich blood, vitality and strength than a pound of spinach, 7½ pounds of fresh tomatoes—more calcium than 6 eggs, more phosphorus than a pound and a half of carrots—sulphur, sodium, potassium and other essential minerals.

Only when you get an adequate amount of these minerals can your food do you any good—can you nourish glands, add weight, strengthen your nerves, increase your vigor, vitality and endurance.

Try Kelp-a-Malt today. Contains no yeast—doesn't cause bloating. Two weeks are required to effect a change in the mineralization of the body. At the end of that time, if you have not gained at least 8 pounds, do not look better, feel better and have more endurance than ever before, the trial is free. 200 jumbo size tablets, which are 4 to 5 times larger than ordinary size tablets, cost but little. Get Kelp-a-Malt today.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

While we in Pittsburgh are still trying to dig ourselves out of inches and inches and inches of snow, some of our fellow townsmen are dashing about in the sunshine in the South.

Among these sun-bathers is a trio of debutantes of the fall just past—Sherley Tunnell, daughter of the E. Paul Tunnells; Margery Hillman, daughter of the junior John Hartwell Hillmans; and Margaret Taylor, daughter of the Matthew Taylors.

They are all in Palm Beach, the guests of Sherley's aunt, Mrs. Peyton J. Van Rensselaer, at her Palm Beach home.

George Hanns Guests Of Mrs. Henry R. Rea

In their honor, Mrs. Van Rensselaer gave a tea for 25 of the younger set of the resort Sunday at Casa Rosada de Lago. The girls motored from Pittsburgh to Palm Beach, managing to miss the snowstorm.

The George R. Hanns are back at Palm Beach, the guests again of Mrs. Henry R. Rea, of Sewickley Heights, at her Palm Beach home, Lagomar. The Hanns have just returned from a cruise on the Edorea III, the yacht of Mrs. Rea's son, Henry Oliver Rea.

In New York on their way to the Yale junior prom this past weekend, some of our young set squeezed in a few social affairs. Debutante Gwendolen Holmes gave a small luncheon Friday at the Weylin Bar, Weylin Hotel, New York. And among her guests were prom-faring Alice Brown and Virginia Jones, of Sewickley.

Mrs. Ward to Entertain For Birmingham Group

Mrs. Joseph Ward, Morewood Gardens, Morewood avenue, will entertain at a tea February 28 for members of the executive committee of the Birmingham School Association, and in particular, for its members who worked on the recent rummage sale.

Miss Bennett's School alumnae will give a luncheon tomorrow in the Twentieth Century Club honoring the school's principal, Miss Courtney Carroll, who'll be guest for the day of Mrs. Paul Sexton Hardy, of Edgerton avenue. Mrs. Hardy is president of the Pittsburgh group.

Longue Vue Country Club will have a special dinner-dance Saturday night. On Sunday afternoon members of the club went in for winter sports.

* * *

A-sleighing over the hills last night went a group of young Coraopolis Heights and Sewickley young people. The sleighing party was arranged by Louise Gardner, daughter of the Kirtland C. Gardners, and by Mrs. Malcolm Hay.

Morningside Girl Sets March Wedding Date

March 4 is the date selected by Miss Bessie Watzman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Watzman, of Chislett street, for her marriage to Morris Melman, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Melman, of Brookline boulevard.

The marriage will take place at 8 o'clock in the evening in B'Nai Israel Synagogue with Rabbi B. A. Lichter and the Rev. Julius Bloom officiating.

Miss Gertrude Sandler Engaged to Marry

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Gertrude Sandler, daughter of Mrs. Mary Sandler, of Margaretta street, to Emanuel Yortis, of Pittsburgh and Canonsburg, son of Mrs. Anna Yortis, of Canonsburg. An early summer wedding is planned.

Marian L. Carey Engagement Made Known

Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Carey, of Washington avenue, Shadyside Farms, Harmonsburg, formerly of Oakmont, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marian L. Carey, to John Karl Zoner, of Meadville.

Formal announcement of the betrothal was made at a bridge party in the Carey home on Thursday, for 16 guests. Decorations were in red, white and blue. Miss Carey has not yet named a date for her marriage.

Mrs. H. W. Knipfer Fetes Visitors From Ohio

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Knipfer, of Oakland avenue, entertained Saturday evening in honor of Mrs. Warren Ditrick and her two daughters, Marjorie and Kathryn Ditrick, of Columbus, O. Covers were laid for 11 guests besides the host and hostess.

'SHOULD WE CALL IN THE DOCTOR, MY DEAR?'

♦MARY ARNOLD FISHER, 5, AND GORDON FISHER III, 2½, FACING A CRISIS WITH MARY'S DOLL

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Fisher, Jr., Pembroke place, who will attend the Junior League's marionette show tomorrow at 4:30 p. m., in the H. C. Frick Teacher's Training school in Oakland. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph-picture.

College Club Units 'Buy' Rooms

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Many alumnae groups are "purchasing" rooms at the College Club—that is they are donating sums of money to the building and the rooms are thereafter designated as their specific endowment. On Saturday afternoon, March 10, the 68 members of the club who are graduates of Carnegie Institute of Technology will entertain at a dessert-bridge of what is hoped will be 100 tables.

The foyer is to be the particular "property" of this group and there the C. I. T. thistled seal will be hung. A feature of the bridge benefit will be silhouette cutting by an expert, the silhouettes to be placed in a book which will remain in the foyer. It's quite appropriate, too, that the door favor is to be a painting by Mrs. Robert E. Schmertz, herself a Tech graduate, and one of whose murals hangs over the foyer fireplace. Another favor will be a card table with a painted top which Mrs. Charles A. Stover is doing.

With Mrs. C. D. Harnack as chairman for the affair, the committees include Miss Ann Warden, Miss Betty Simon, Mrs. Samuel B. Ewart, Mrs. Thomas Spooner, Mrs. Charles C. Brinton, Mrs. Carl E. Glock, Mrs. C. Z. Schove, Mrs. Stover, Mrs. James Sarver, Mrs. James Wallace Hopkins, Miss Marguerite Spilman, Mrs. Edward Hoopes III, Miss Katherine Shuman, Mrs. T. C. Towl, Mrs. Earl S. Thorpe, Mrs. R. L. Pope, Miss Katherine Alter, Mrs. James Baird and Miss Bertha Steiner.

Smithfield Aid Society To Install Thursday

In celebration of its forty-seventh anniversary on Thursday, the Smithfield Ladies' Aid Society will have a special program and will install its officers at a special candle-lighting ceremony. The celebration will take place in the German Evangelical Protestant Church, Smithfield street, from 2 until 5 o'clock, and will be concluded with a social hour.

Max Seifert, organist, and Miss Margaret Garrity, soprano, will give the program.

Club Plans Fete for Officer

In honor of its first president, Miss Nina Johnson, the North Boroughs Junior Women's Club will have a reception Monday evening in the Bellevue Methodist Episcopal Church. In the receiving line with Miss Johnson will be Mrs. E. R. Davis, State Federation southwestern district chairman of juniors, and Mrs. Robert K. Cochrane, president of Allegheny County Federation of Women's Clubs, and members of the executive board.

Miss Mary O. Wilson, vice president, will present Miss Johnson to the club members and the guests who will include North Borough senior club members. As program Miss Esther Lane will stage a fashion show and music will be furnished by a trio directed by Ruth Bowers Gibson.

Wilkinsburg Juniors Hear Dr. A. R. Blair

The last meeting open to new members was held last night by the Junior Civic Club of Wilkinsburg in the Penn-Lincoln Hotel. The Rev. Dr. A. R. Blair, blind clergyman from New Kensington, who was accompanied by his dog guide, spoke concerning work for the blind, which is one of the new club's special projects. Mrs. Floyd Carson, also on the program, reviewed "House of Exile."

Indiana Teacher College Unit to Be Organized

A Squirrel Hill-East Liberty Unit of the Pittsburgh Alumni Association of Indiana State Teachers' College will be organized at a dinner meeting in the College Club on March 13. Mrs. Benjamin Steinberg is receiving reservations.

20th Century Lists March Events

Constance Rourke, author of many books treating humor and drama; Edward Tomlinson, South American authority; Alida Klemantaski, of the Poetry Bookshop, London, and Dr. William Starr Myers are the Monday morning lecturers for March at the Twentieth Century Club. George Seibel, of the Sun-Telegraph; the Fireflies and John Walker III, will give the Thursday afternoon programs for the month.

On Thursday of this week, club members will attend a preview of the garden exhibition at Carnegie Institute.

A review of the European situation was given yesterday by Frank Simonds, brilliant editorial writer, who said that the general aspect today is much as it was prior to the outbreak of the World War.

Business Women To Hear Report On Peace Meet

At the semi-monthly meeting of the Pittsburgh Business and Professional Women's Club to be held Thursday evening at Congress House, Miss Mary E. Scott, assistant metropolitan secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association, will give a report of the recent Cause and Cure of War conference. The National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs was represented at the conference by its president Mrs. Geline MacDonald Bowmen. Miss Scott will also tell of some important impending legislation.

BLUE FOX LOPES INTO STYLE

By PRUNELLA WOOD

ANYBODY WHO remembers the chartreuse shade bathed over white fox pelts for some ensembles several years ago will not be unduly agitated over the new blues, greens and oranges that are coming out right now, all in silky long fox pelts that once were pure white.

And although it sounds like a green cheese moon or a purple rose, the fact remains that this colored fox business is a very smart idea, and one that will become a great many women. It looks so far as if the blue-dyed skins will be best, but that may be because the usual urge for a blue spring in styles has hit a new high this season. But there is a lot to be said for the coming popularity of fox that has a grayish, greenish cast, for it will look so stunning on tweeds of that general coloring, surely headed for a run.

THERE IS A rumor that violet fur will be used for sports suits of a contrasting shade, and that it will be as acceptable as burnt orange or horizon blue, once we make up our minds to think so.

* * *

THE CABLED news from European style centers goes slightly gaga beyond this point on the subject, predicting blue monkey fur, green moleskin (already tried out successfully, though modestly) and navy Persian lamb.

Everything has been thought of, you might say, except Gelett Burgess' "purple cow."

The standing figure shows off a navy blue wool crepe coat of the softest tailoring lavishly trimmed with matching dyed blue fox in shawl revers. The seated figure wears a coat of blue imported tweed in diagonal weave, with ripple revers of azure-blue dyed white fox.

Viewing The New

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . and you will be answered promptly!

Give your little wrist a handbag . . . even though you may have no pennies to go in it afterward! 'Cause . . .

With smart new styles parading themselves down the length of one of the counters in this town at 85c there's no reason why you can't have one for a new outfit . . . even two, for that matter! In red, brown, gray, snake (simulated) and patent, smooth and rough grains. Many of them with metal trimmings and stitchings, and all styles.

Like the whirling dervish you read about so much . . . these bracelets! Miami Whirls someone christened them because they're wearing them in the giddy pleasure 'round in Miami we suppose. And they're gay enough for it with their tiny colored bead circles strung on an elastic wrist band. Turn your wrist one way and they all stand up like a ruff . . . another way and they fall down softly! See them . . . try them . . . wear one on each wrist. $1.95.

Some time ago we set our sign and seal to a little news about perfume to douse on your electric light bulbs by way of giving an "atmosphere" to the house.

Recently we entered a shop and were so immediately enchanted with the fresh, intangible flower odor that we asked about it. Ha! . . . our old friend, only 25c this time for a generous bottle instead of 50c as before! Complete with a dropper—a touch of it and your room glows with a new attractiveness.

Got the shivers! . . . brrrrr! . . . and all God's chillun need fur coats. So with quaking spine and jittering shoulder blades we shivered our way to where we know fur jackets dwell for modest sums! And THERE we found a small group which you may pounce upon now for $17.95 — brown lapins and black Northern Seals. Also . . . we want you to know that these are above the ordinary run-of-the-mine fur jackets at this price! Nicely made . . . with straight box lines as per spring modes . . . with Johnny, shawl, or Ascot collars . . . and pockets! Shiver your timbers! . . . if you don't buy one of these!

Spring says "blue" . . . it also says "grey" . . . and we say that having your welfare at heart that we've found blue AND grey shoes for your new outfits!

Swank new kid ties . . . instep ties with blue vamp and grey quarters and little zigs of lacing-effect on one side with little zags of the same on the other (actually stitching but looks like lacings . . you know!) And when your feet go tap-tap on the sidewalks of the town wearing these . . . we'll venture to say the town'll appreciate it! $5.95.

This business of keeping one's scalp all it should be is far from a laughing matter. But even scalp disorders can be effectively snubbed if the proper treatment is used. And one of the beauty shops in town is offering a special this week for lack-luster hair . . . dandruff (a horrible thought!) and scalp troubles. It's a special-treatment shampoo . . . which will restore the natural beauty of your once-raving tresses, little children, and is followed by a finger wave. How about a little rejuvenation for the old thatch? $1.00 for the treatment, complete.

NOTED ATTORNEY, WRITER INDORSE MT. RUSHMORE PLAN

WIDE ACCLAIM ACCORDED CONTEST

George Gordon Battle, attorney and member of the board of governors of the Thomas Jefferson Foundation, added his voice yesterday to the scores of prominent men and women commending the competition sponsored by the Hearst newspapers to obtain inscriptions for the Mount Rushmore national memorial.

Battle declared the project had the widest educational value and would enlist pronounced interest in schools, historical societies and patriotic groups.

Faith Baldwin, author of widely read American novels, was among the writers who applauded the undertaking.

Inaugurated on Washington's Birthday, the competition to obtain texts for the inscriptions on the national monument in South Dakota has been acclaimed in all parts of the United States.

Members of Congress, Army and Navy officers and men of affairs everywhere are included among the active supporters of the movement.

13-FOOT LETTERS

Gutzon Borglum, famous sculptor of the monument, is planning to carve the winning inscriptions on Mount Rushmore in letters 13-feet high.

On one side of the mountain he has started colosssal figures of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt.

The inscriptions will be lettered on the opposite side of the peak. They will deal with historic episodes connected with the birth and development of the nation.

There are nine of these episodes. Among them are the writing of the Declaration of Independence; the drafting of the Constitution; the purchase of Louisiana, and the ceding of the Floridas to the United States.

Others are the rise of the republic of Texas and its entry to the union as a state; the Mexican war and the acquisition of California; the settlement of the Oregon boundry dispute, and the building of the Panama Canal.

600-WORD TEXT

It is for these happenings that the texts for the inscriptions, limited to six hundred words, are being sought by the sculptor and the Rushmore National Memorial Commission, headed by Fred W. Sargent, of Chicago.

Through the Hearst newspapers they are inviting men, women and children throughout the country to submit the texts.

A national committee now being formed will pass final judgement on the texts. Local committees in each community will do the preliminary eliminating and judging.

Leading American historians, poets, novelists, artists and others are being asked to serve on the local and national committees.

Cash and scholarships will be among the prizes offered by the Hearst newspapers for texts submitted in the competition.

There also will be gold, silver and bronze medals designed by Borglum, as well as certificates of merit.

Details of this unique opportunity to win prizes and have inscriptions perpetuated in the granite of the Rushmore national memorial are being published daily in the New York American.

A complete exposition of the competition, its rules and prizes will be published next Sunday.

It is to aid the Rushmore National Memorial Commission to obtain the inscription to be cut on the mountain for posterity that the Hearst newspapers plan to undertake this competition.

Blackstone, Novelists Praise Project for Mountain Texts

Patriotic, Historical Values of Plans Emphasized

Col. Franklin Blackstone, leader in several Pittsburgh patriotic organizations, and Arista E. Fisher, novelist, today commended the move sponsored by the Sun-Telegraph and other Hearst newspapers to obtain inscriptions for the Mt. Rushmore National Memorial.

Col. Blackstone, who is past president of the Pittsburgh chapter of the Sons of American Revolution and member of the board of management of the Pennsylvania Society, said:

"It is decidedly appropriate for it teaches patriotism to the rising generation of a kind that is lasting and needed particularly at this time.

"In addition to being a monument for the future, the contest will bring to mind the teachers of the real Americanism of the past and the principles on which our patriotism was founded."

Fisher, who is instructor of English at Carnegie Tech, and author of three novels and many short stories, said:

"I consider it a very fine and notable project."

"To carve in Mt. Rushmore a short history of our country, which will be written by the American people, is indeed a significant and noteworthy proposal."

BATTLE LAUDS INSCRIPTIONS

By GEORGE GORDON BATTLE,
Attorney and Member of Board of Governors, Thomas Jefferson Foundation.

We need a living patriotism—not one concerned or taken for granted. For that reason I subscribe most affirmatively to undertaking sponsored by the Hearst newspapers to obtain inscriptions for the impressive national monument that is under way on the peak of Mt. Rushmore.

A nation's reverence for its founders is reflected in its public memorials. They help to convert democratic ideals into realities.

Early America Should Be Known, Says Faith Baldwin

By FAITH BALDWIN
Author of "Skyscraper" and Other Widely Read American Novels.

I confess to a passion for sterling Americanism and think all of us can be lifted up by genuine devotion to it.

Our reckless era has given birth to many revolts, to some of which I have subscribed myself. But I think we can all refresh our fortitude by adding to our acquaintance with early American—and I don't mean in the fields of pewter and furniture alone.

Ovid said the love of country is more powerful than reason itself. That, I think, is as it should be. We serve best whatever group we are affiliated with by serving our country best.

The Mount Rushmore National Memorial is an undertaking of impressiveness and distinction. Evolving texts to inscribe it will enhance our appreciation of the things it stands for. Homage to patriots is a form of prayer that adds to our own spiritual possessions.

EXPERT CALLS FOR NATIONAL SALES TAX

Glenn E. Hoover, associate professor of economics at Mills College and a close student of public finance, calls the income tax "the worst of all nuisance taxes" in the following article urging enactment of a national manufacturers' tax.

By GLENN E. HOOVER
Written for Universal Service

OAKLAND, Cal., Feb. 27.—A federal tax on manufactured articles, with the possible exception of food, medicine and related essentials, is the best and perhaps the only way in which the national government can ever balance the budget.

The chief opposition to it comes from demangogues who pretend that federal government can be financed by income taxes aimed at "soaking the rich." As one who expects to be poor all his life, I should be delighted if the budget could be balanced this way, but as a student of public finance I know that such a program is impossible for the very good reason that there are not enough rich to soak.

In 1929 the number of individuals reporting incomes of a million or more was 512. In 1933 that number was reduced to about 20.

If we had confiscated their entire incomes we might have gotten enough to build a battleship or two, but it would not have gone far toward financing the PWA or even the CWA. And the following year we might find that there were no such incomes to be taxed at all.

The income tax is the worst of all nuisance taxes. In 1929 the individuals with incomes of $10,000 or less filed over 90 per cent of the returns and yet paid only 1.4 per cent of the taxes collected.

In the same year the largest number of returns was filed by those receiving incomes of from $3,000 to $5,000, and the average tax paid by this group was $2.06. The next largest group was made up of those who paid on incomes of from $1,000 to $2,000 and yet these 903,082 individuals paid on an average only 61 cents per person.

If such is not a nuisance tax then the word has lost its meaning.

If and when we get a Congress with nerve and intelligence it will levy a manufacturers' sales tax, and, if it continues the income tax at all, it will increase the exemption to $10,000.

ADAMS FAVORS UNIFIED POLICE FOR STATE

(Maj. Lynn G. Adams, head of the Pennsylvania State Police, gives his views on coordination of all municipal police in the interests of economy and efficiency, in today's article, the forty-third in a series. The articles are part of the Sun-Telegraph campaign for lower taxes through eliminating waste and overlapping of government services.)

A single state police agency, through co-ordination of all municipal and local forces, is advocated by Maj. Lynn G. Adams, superintendent of the Pennsylvania State Police. Maj. Adams would divorce the agency from politics, have it manned by trained officers and governed by a centralized control.

The police head stated that the modern principles of local policing are founded on "ox-cart" methods, set up in the days when the locality was measured by the distance a man could travel in a day. Today the means of transportation has changed and the state is now the locality.

Maj. Adams said:

"I have long felt the public's thinking on this matter is a bit antiquated. In a good many states, the people cling jealously to local autonomy, believing there is something intrinsically virtuous in keeping authority in the hands of local officials. But in the field of crime detection and prevention, local authorities no longer seem to work well. The reason is that the locality has grown until it extends far beyond the borders of the county."

Maj. Adams suggested that all state, city, borough and township police be organized into a state police system, paid by the state and directed by a director general. The director general would be appointed by a state commission, composed of a Supreme Court justice and three judges of the Common Pleas Court, each to serve so long as he holds his office as judge. The commisssion would be appointed by the Governor.

Maj. Adams said he did not contemplate upheavals or dislocations in local forces, but rather he would have his plan tend to gradually eliminate the dishonest, the inefficient and unqualified after they have been given ample opportunity to readjust themselves to the change.

The plan proposed by Maj Adams is similar to the one reviewed here a few weeks ago. In that article it was pointed out that Allegheny county has approximately 3,000 police, detectives, constables and deputies, working independently or in small local departments.

Explaining Your Income Tax

This is the second of a series of articles explaining the proper procedure in making out income tax returns.

The first step in making out an income tax return is to be certain that the proper blank is being used.

Persons whose net income was derived chiefly from salaries and wages and was not in excess of $5,000 in 1933 should make their returns on form 1040A, a single sheet. Persons whose net income in excess of $5,000 or, regardless of the amount, was derived from a business, profession, rents or sale of property, are required to use a larger form 1040.

PROPER FORMS

Failure to use the proper form presents difficulties to both the taxpayer and the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Forms may be obtained by writing to the Bureau of Internal Revenue, Pittsburgh, or by calling at the office in the Federal Building, Smithfield street, between Third and Fourth avenues.

The return must be filed with the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer has his principal place of business or his residence on or before midnight of March 15. The tax may be paid in full at the time of filing or it may be paid in four equal installments on or before March 15, June 15, September 15 and December 15.

ON FILING RETURNS

Many persons have incomes which come within levels which require them to file returns. But this does not necessarily mean that they will have taxes to pay. In many cases exemptions and other reductions make the payment of taxes unnecessary. But it must be remembered that the fact that a tax does not have to be paid does not provide an excuse for not filing a return if income reaches the required amounts.

Before a return is filed, the person must swear to its truthfulness before a notary or an officer of the Bureau of Internal Revenue. No charge is made for administering an oath at the bureau's office.

Noel Coward, we learn from our London sentinels, has written a new play for Yvonne Printemps. It is about her husband, Sascha Guitry. Yvonne studied English in Paris for the role. Romney Brent, buddy of Coward's, demanded of Noel that he play the role Guitry. Noel agreed. But when Brent dscovered the character was a man of 42—he spurned it. Whereupon Coward himself said that he would—and did! That, then, is the latest news on Noel Coward. But here is an item I forgot to note. It happened recently.

When Coward arrived here he called on Moss Hart, the librettist of "As Thousands Cheer." In the show there is a sketch in which the King and Queen of England are travestied as well as W. W. It has to do with an item in the column which involved the Prince of Wales. The sketch is immensely amusing and the column's accuracy is certified.

"Moss," said Noel, "I have a favor to ask of you. I know you will refuse. But I must hear your refusal before witnesses!"

"Go ahead," said Hart, "speak up."

"Will you omit the sketch about Their Majesties?"

"No," replied Hart, "I will not, sorry."

"I knew you wouldn't," said Coward, "but my witnesses heard you refuse and now I am relieved." Then they left.

No one is certain—but is is believed that Coward spoke for Prince George—who is an intimate friend of Noel's.

Fields Turns To Drama

W. C. Fields, the funny man of much film nonsense, is poised for a leap into the comedian's never-never land of tragedy.

"Greasepaint," an original story now being written for him, is to have him in a role not completely tragic, but still reminiscent of the familiar Pagliacci formula which calls for laughter-though-the-heart-is-breaking.

Having by now reached that point in comic success where audiences prepare to laugh the moment he appears on the screen, Fields in this new role will be bucking the usually cast-iron walls of a cinematic prison he himself reared through his previous work—he will be breaking away from "type."

Changing an established movie type is one of the most ticklish pieces of buiness known to casting directors. It is tried not infrequently, and sometimes it succeeds. More often it isn't even attempted, despite the pleadings of ingenues who want to be emotional stars, of leading men who want to be heavies, of heavies who want to be heroes.

Natural Color Experiments Continue

By GWYNN

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 27.—New and exciting experiments in the cinema are about to bring a new form of movie entertainment to you in the future. Colored photography is again fascinating the movie producers and over on the Radio lot they will bring back Robert Edmond Jones to carry on his work with color with the idea of producing an all-color special under the guidance of Meriam Cooper.

Jones was in Hollywood a short time ago, but was called back to New York. The plan now is for him to return in March and go on from where he left off. Jock Whitney is the power behind the throne in this work, and it will be under the supervision of Kenneth McGowan.

And Bryan Foy is no slouch when it comes to this experimenting himself. He has on his schedule for immediate productiton on his return to Hollywood something that will be a third-dimensional movie. For years people have been attempting to work out some method whereby pictures on the screen would lose that flat look and give them that well-rounded appearance. Foy thinks he's got it and will use it. And when he's finished that subject, he's going to do a picture called "Sterilization," from a script by Wallace Thermond, Negro writer and novelist.

Frank Albertson, who was one of the more attractive young juveniles in pictures a few years ago, is coming back to the screen for a major company. Twentieth Century has signed him for the other half of the young love-interest in the George Arliss film, "Head of the Family." Anita Louise will play the gal, and incidentally Anita Louise is scheduled to appear in an amateur photoplay. Tom Brown, who is her devoted swain, is not only an actor himself, but terrifically interested in amateur movies, and so, with his 16-millimeter camera, he is planning to shoot a feature length picture that will star Anita Louise. Brown would have liked to play opposite Anita Louise, but his contract with Radio forbids his appearing in anything that isn't assigned to him by Radio. But if the picture is any good, he may stumble on a brand-new career for himself.

Delmar Daves has just completed a new screen story called "Flirtation Walk," which will be the first film musical to use West Point as a background. Ruby Keeler and Dick Powell will be costarred in this one just as soon as they finish work on "Dames." And Busby Berkeley will stage the dances and, with West Point as the background, he'll probably turn out dance formations that will put the march of the Wooden Soliders to shame.

Miriam Jordan, who recently joined the free-lance list of players, is about to do a stage play before going in front of the cameras again. She has signed with Henry Duffy to play the lead in the Hollywood production of "Men in White." Roger Pryor, who's been working hard at Universal for the past few months, has gotten permission from them to star in this stage play before making another picture. Robert Montgomery and Robert Young had both been up for this part.

Random Shots: Elizabeth Allen is on a flying trip to New York and London to see her husband . . . Richard Arlen left for a seven-day cruise in his yacht and took with him two prop men and an electrician who nursed him when he became ill while making "Come On Marines." . . . Mrs. Rube Goldberg, wife of the famous cartoonist and inventor, is the big social guest of the moment . . . Edgar Allan Woolfe and some friends were so annoyed at finding the Colony Club closed that they roused the caretaker and made him let them in, and then they sent out for chop suey and had themselves a party . . . The Robert Presnells reversed the order of the day by giving a baby shower for Manny Sefl, who is about to become a father . . . Ravel and Gordon will write a score of music for the picture of "She Loves Me Not," that Bing Crosby will warble . . . Wallace Beery brought back a dozen dresses for his daughter, Carol Ann, from New York . . . Muriel Kirkland, Fay Wray, Mae Clarke, Grace Moore, Claudette Colbert, June Clyde and Glenda Farrell trying to make up their minds what hats to order at the opening of Rilla Marie's new shoppe.

Islam Grotto 'Bad Man' Is Good

By GEORGE SEIBEL

All dark at the Nixon and nowhere to go but home, an invitation to Islam Grotto came into my hands, and it looked as if here was a chance to see how bad "The Bad Man" could be, when Porter Emerson Browne's western drama fell into the merciless clutch of amateurs. The critic was disappointed, for the performance of the drama, which is not an easy one, showed that the Koran, or whatever the guide-book of the Islamites may be, had brought a decidedly smooth and in every way creditable performance to the beautiful North Side auditorium.

Most of the potted palms should be handed to Irwin Eiseman, Jr., who played a double role as director and as the benevolently murderous Pancho Lopez. The stage direction was exceptionally effective, and the burlesque bravado of the part was admirably put across.

Then there was the gorgeous villain of Ivor M. Lowrie, who had to be shot twice, he was that villainous, and Clifford H. Franz's hero looking like Siegfried with a nineteenth century conscience.

And there were two comely maidens—Florence Bollen and Eleanor Schmalz. "Comely" is the word—repeated lest the agile compositor might have made it "homely." Miss Bollen looked especially dashing in a riding suit.

Earl Haig, William Cowen and Clarence Hoffman did very well in character roles, while Charles Kearns, Wilfred Kuhl, David Nunge and E. K. Hassler furnished the local color as if they had been born brown.

The wheel chair was well lubricated, all the pistols went off, Harry Wenzel and his Melody Boys furnished entr'acte music and Louis Kaufmann the oratory. Stage Manager George Ossman may well be proud of having kept the critic from going home till act three was over.

Tailor's Man Now Actor

When Harry Wilcoxon decided to go on the stage he thought the best way to begin was to acquire a wardrobe.

And the logical place for that was a tailoring shop. So Harry's entry to stardom was through Bond street.

This "tailor-made man" (in a manner of speaking) is the British actor chosen by Cecil B. De Mille for the role of Marc Antony in "Cleopatra." He is 28, 6 feet 2 inches tall, and comes pretty near to having that "chest that a Roman legion could camp on," as specified by DeMille.

Wilcoxon was born in Dominica, British West Indies, educated in Jamaica and in Barbados, and began to earn his living as a commercial traveler. He tried brokerage, too, but after he had been in London a while he made up his mind that acting was what he really wanted to do.

"I hadn't any money, and I hadn't any clothes," he relates, "so I thought if I went into a tailoring shop I could start building up a wardrobe, and save money at the same time."

In six years on the stage he has appeared in some 150 roles, playing leads in 25 shows in London and in seven British movies. The name is well-known, which is one reason DeMille won't exercise his weakness for rechristening his stars.

Answers Neighbor's Suit Over Chimney

Henry Holm, of 1915 Metropolitan street, has filed an answer to the injunction proceeding instituted by Ana Laba, a next-door neighbor, denying that smoke and escaping fumes from a chimney in his house makes the second floor of the plaintiff's home uninhabitable.

He avers that the chimney has been inspected and approved by the proper agencies and asks that the proceedings be dismissed.

Answers

Ruth Chatterton has to answer in remorse for the answer she finds for the problem of another woman trying to steal her husband in "Journal of a Crime," coming to Warner Friday.

Alice Brady is Starred In Fulton Comedy

By ZORA D. UNKOVICH

"Should Ladies Behave?" is the problem of Alice Brady, assisted by Mary Carlise and Katherine Alexander in the Fulton feature which does not try to answer the question, but merely to be amusing, in a time-worn comedy, offering a series of fairly laughable situations.

For a plot you have a man and three maids (though two of them are far, far from their teens), with a crotchety father, understandingly done by Lionel Barrymore; and a young blade (William Janney) playing the interference.

For the devastator of feminine hearts there is Conway Tearle, a slightly stuffy painter, who is surprisingly cautious considering the number and variety of his alleged affairs.

Katherine Alexander portrays Lady No. One, Aunt Winnie, who through a succession of husbands has become a fairly competent manchaser. Her would-be rival, despite a very live husband in the form of grouchy Gussie (Barrymore) is her sister Alice Brady, her usual effusive and effective self. Completing the feminine trio, Mary Carlise weeps through the imagined trials of the daughter, as might be expected, a sweet young thing getting whatever her flighty heart desires.

Auntie is in love with Tearle, mother believes him to be her first lover, and daughter literally throws herself at him because he is so "experienced and fascinating." This is the situation, in brief, with a week-end in the country the back-ground.

Saving the picture from dullness are Barrymore and Miss Brady who as the very settled husband and the very-much-unsettled wife disagree merrily through their troubles, finally deciding married life isn't so bad after all. Barrymore's over-all outfit is certainly out of the ordinary for a country-gentleman's attire, but Miss Brady manages to go him one better in dress every time.

In the shorts we are given glimpses here and there of what is going on, both through the Hearst Metrotone News and "Hollywood on Parade." The third short features Helen Morgan, or rather her lovely voice, in "The Doctor," the story of an historical painting.

Mexican Consul Given New Title

By order of the Secretary of Foreign Relations in Mexico City the Mexican career consulate in Pittsburgh has been changed to an honorary consulate, retaining the same jurisdiction as before.

Anton M. Guina, of the Martinique apartments, industrial engineer and resident of this city six years, is now in charge of the consulate.

He replaces Career Consul Jose Valenzuela, who was transferred to Salt Lake City.

$1000 for YOU

Read how YOU can secure this sum for yourself . . . and protect your loved ones with Life Insurance while doing so.

The Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company presents the highlights of its

PEOPLES Insured Savings PLAN

. . . a unique combination of a regular Savings Account with the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company and Life Insurance with the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States.

THE PLAN:

You agree to save $7.79 monthly for a period of 120 months—or the total sum of $934.80. At the end of that period you are repaid $1,000 by the bank.

If, at any time during the 120 months period, you should happen to die, your heirs will receive not only the amount that you had already saved, but also an additional amount from the Equitable to equal the $1,000 which you had hoped to accumulate.

In other words—you receive the $1,000 if you live—your heirs receive $1,000 if you do not live to complete the program.

The above example holds for those in the Plan who are between the ages of 18 and 40. The monthly payments are $7.92 between ages 41 and 45, and $8.17 between 46 and 50.

In all cases, when the program is completed, you are repaid more than you put in, in addition to enjoying the insurance feature, the cost of which is more than earned by the compound interest which the bank pays on your monthly deposits.

Many questions will suggest themselves which cannot be answered here. They are all answered in the booklet "$1,000 for You," which you may have, without charge, by a personal or telephone call to the bank, COurt 5600, or by mail request.

Requirements of joining: Good health, residence in Allegheny County, non-hazardous occupation.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

The One Big Chance.

IT OCCURRED to me that Charlie was really another Joe Green. But after giving the matter considerable thought, I decided that I was wrong. In some respects, Charlie is a Joe Green. But Joe, if you remember that far back, was merely average. Charlie is more than that. He's dumb, too.

How long he worked for this company I don't know. For as many years back as Mrs Guy Irvine can remember, he has been the official office boy of the D. G. X. Company. It's not a large concern, and you'll never find it on the industrial maps, but it's a thriving little outfit.

I think they employed Charlie out of sheer pity at first—and later regretted it. He never seemed to be able to do anything right. It wasn't that Charlie wasn't earning and hardworking. He did his level best at all times. But he simply didn't have anything on the ball. Just dumb.

However, $16 a week kept the police dog from the door (he couldn't afford a wolf) and Charlie didn't care how many names the boss called him. He just kept plugging along hoping against hope that some day his genius would be recognized, and that some day the boss would raise him to $16.50 a week.

For years, he felt that something would suddenly break soon; something that would give him a chance to be of great service; something that would enable him to do something that no one else could do; something that would place his name in headlines as one man in a million.

And believe it or not, that day came . . .

Charlie was leaning back, scratching his head and reading a Nick Carter story late one afternoon when he saw the doctor gallop past him into the boss's office. He knew that something was wrong, but it wasn't until a half hour later that he knew what.

The boss had appendicitis. The ambulance came, and they took him away. He heard the doctor say something about "I'll do it tonight—late." That was all, and dizzy Charlie went back to the book.

It was about an hour later that he popped up suddenly.

"The papers," he muttered. "The papers. What about the papers? He must have forgot about them. Holy smoke! They're important. He's supposed to take that train. But it's too late. Too late for the papers. Criminy! Too late." . . .

He was standing at the bedside, puffing. The nurse hovered nearby and the boss was grimacing in pain. The boss was talking.

"Well," he was saying, "why tell me now? Can't you see how I am? Am I paying you to worry me? Get out of here!" Then in a whisper: "Good heavens! Thirty-five thousand shot!"

"But, boss," Charlie said nervously. "That's why I'm here. I'll take those papers. I can drive your car, and if I go fast enough, I'll make it."

"Oh," said the boss, "go 'way. Go far away."

"Lissen, boss," continued Charlie, "every minute you waste means less chance. Them papers must be there by noon tomorrow. I know it means thirty-five grand to you. If you don't let me take 'em, you're bound to lose. I thought of taking a plane, but there ain't none 'til ten tomorrow morning. I'll drive all night, I'm telling you."

The boss glanced at him closely.

"Okay," he finally said. "Okay. Take my car, and drive like the devil. You must get those papers there by noon tomorrow. Go ahead."

In a half hour, Charlie was in the garage. In another hour, he was flying over the Jersey meadows. The car sped over the roads like something frightened . . .

Close up to the wheel sat our hero, his eyes glued on the dark road ahead. As the miles clicked off, his mind started to work.

"I'm dumb," he was muttering. "Sure, I'm dumb—like a fox. Working in that lousy office all these years for a lousy 16 bucks per, and then, when a crisis comes, I'm the only one steps forward. Dumb Charlie. Well, I'll put a stop to that business when I go back.

"Can't make any slips, though. This is the one big chance. Gotta make good. Gotta. May never happen again like this. I'll get those papers there in time. You bet I will. Because I gotta make it. I absolutely gotta.

"Tank's getting low. Better stop soon for gas. Don't get stalled onna road. That'll blow everything. Better stop soon. Next station. No use takin' chances. I'll make it! I'll get those papers there in time.

"I know I'll make it. Gotta!!!" . . .

At five minutes to 12 a big dusty car careened through a small town near the Canadian borderline. It squealed to a stop in front of a small office building. The motor was shut off and Charlie jumped out and left the door ajar. He raced into the building.

"What floor," he gasped, "is Brown and Smith on?"

The elevator boy said "five" and opened the gate.

"S'all right," gasped Charlie, "I'll run up."

Two at a time, he ran up the steps until he reached five. In front of him he saw the gilt letters "Brown and Smith." He burst in, past the astounded office boy, and into the private office.

"Made it!" he shouted at the startled man behind the desk. "I made it—do you hear? Dumb Charlie. It's 1 minute to 12."

"Charlie?" the man said. "Oh, yes. Your office was on the wire already. They said—"

"Tell 'em," interrupted Charlie, "to save the boquets 'til I get back. I'm due for plenty of attention for this job."

The man nodded.

"I'll say you are," he returned quietly. "All the office wanted to tell you was that, when you left, you forgot to take the papers!" . . .

BAKED TONGUE RECIPE WINS AWARD

Tongue served in any form, is a dish with which most of us are familiar—not through dislike, merely through custom. It's one of those things we never think of serving. If we did decide to serve it, we would probably be deterred by the fact that we had no idea as to its method of preparation.

Yet tongue is quite delicious and not at all difficult to prepare. After today you'll be able to fix it easily, for Prudence Penny gives you a recipe for baked tongue with blackberry sauce which she considered so good as to be worth a $5 prize.

Include it in one of your menus as a surprise dish. Once served, it will appear again and again in your meals by popular family demand.

Help housewives obtain menu variety by making available your best recipes to them. Send your favorites in to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, to compete for either the $5 prize or one of the ten $1 prizes awarded daily. No recipes are returned.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MRS. D. MAZZOLENE,
41 Watsonia boulevard.

BAKED TONGUE WITH BLACKBERRY SAUCE

One fresh beef tongue.
Whole cloves.
One glass blackberry jelly or jam.
One cup raisins.
Juice of one lemon.

Boil tongue until tender, adding one tablespoon mixed spices, one bay leaf and one-half cup diced celery to the water while cooking. When tender remove skin, trim off root end and stick the solid meat full of whole cloves. Place in a greased baking pan, dust with flour, pour over the jelly, beaten soft with a fork, and raisins which have been cooked until tender in a cup of water. Add lemon juice and bake in a hot oven of 400 degrees F. for 30 minutes basting often. Serve hot or cold.

Ten $1 Prize Winners

MRS. RALPH W. HASINGER,
R. D. No. 1, Wilkinsburg.

RHUBARB ROLLS

Make a good soft biscuit dough, after your recipe. Roll the dough rather thin, cut in four-inch squares and over each gently spread finely cut rhubarb hearts; then form these into rolls and place in a floured baking pan. Bake in a moderately hot oven until crust is golden brown. Serve warm, with a rich sweet sauce.

MISS MAMIE M'KEE,
East Brady.

CHEESE SOUP

To one quart of boiling milk add one-half pound cheese, one scant teaspoon salt. Cut cheese in small pieces. Put on low flame and keep stirring until cheese is dissolved. Remove from fire, serve at once with oyster crackers.

MRS. W. S. SCOTT,
Hickory.

MULCHED PEACHES

One box lemon-flavored gelatine.
One cup sugar.
One and one-half pints hot boiling water.

Dissolve gelatine and sugar in water and set aside to cool. Mash one quart of canned peaches, using the juice; also one-half teaspoon almond extract, the juice and grated rind of one-half lemon. Add this to gelatine, stir and put in trays in refrigerator. Freze to a mulch but not hard. When it begins to set, take out and stir and return to refrigerator. This makes about two quarts. Serve with or without whipped cream.

MISS VERNA DUMM,
508 Chicora street, East McKeesport.

POJHARSKY KOTLETY
(Russian)

One-quarter loaf of white bread.
One and one-half cups of milk.
One pound of veal, chopped.
One onion, chopped fine.
One-half cup of hot melted butter.
Salt, pepper.
Two eggs.
Two tablespoonfuls of water.
Bread crumbs.

Cut off the crust from the bread and soak it in milk; squeeze almost dry and mix with the chopped veal; add onion browned in two tablespoonfuls of the butter and add salt and pepper to taste. Beat one egg and add to the mixture with the water. Mix well, make into oblong rolls. Beat the other egg, dip the rolls into this and then in bread crumbs, and fry them in the remaining butter. Kotlety can also be made of chicken, using the meat from a medium-size chicken instead of veal.

MRS. J. BROGAN,
Westinghouse avenue, Wilmerding.

CAMPFIRE QUEEN OF PUDDINGS

Two cups milk.
One tablespoonful butter.
One cup stale bread.
One egg.
Three tablespoonfuls sugar.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One-half teaspoon orange extract.
Twenty-four marshmallows.
Two teaspoonfuls cocoanut.

Scald milk, add butter and stale bread in small pieces. When cool add slightly beaten egg, sugar and salt and extract. Bake in greased baking dish till firm. Cover with marmalade, jelly or jam, then with marshmallows, then with cocoanut. Bake until delicately brown.

MRS. JAMES MALANDRA,
805 Highland avenue, Pitcairn.

BOUCHEES DE VOLAILLE

Pass through a food chopper half a pound of roast fowl, a quarter pound of mushrooms, previously cooked, and the same quantity of tongue. Make a white sauce as follows: Make a light paste with an ounce each of butter and flour, dilute this with one pint of hot milk; when it comes to a boil stir with a spoon until you obtain a sauce somewhat thick, which has been properly seasoned with salt, pepper, grated nutmeg and a bit of cayenne. Put into this sauce the minced fowl, the mushrooms and the hashed tongue and serve, made into form or tartlets or small pies.

MISS DOROTHY NORTON,
204 Braddock road, Wilkinsburg Branch.

"BLYS MARANGUE TART"

One-third cup butter.
One cup powdered sugar.
Yolks of four eggs.
One cup flour.
One teaspoon baking powder.
Three tablespoons of sweet milk.
One lemon rind (little juice).
Whites of four eggs (beaten stiffly).
One cup granulated sugar.
One-half cup nuts.

Cream butter, adding sugar slowly. Add the four egg yolks and stir thoroughly. Sift the flour; measure, and after adding the baking powder, sift again. Add flour to batter alternately with the milk. Mix in lemon rind and little juice (about one-half lemon). Add the cup of granulated sugar to the egg whites and heat until stiff. Spread the marangue on top of the batter, which has been placed in a greased pan. Sprinkle nuts on top. Bake in moderate oven 35 minutes. Serve with whip cream.

SARA CRISWELL,
Elizabeth.

STEAK AND ONIONS
(Spanish Style)

Two pounds round steak about one-half inch thick.
Six onions.
One-half can tomatoes.
One red sweet pepper.

Sprinkle steak with flour and pound, brown in one tablespoon fat. Place in roast pan and slice onions, place over steak; then pepper and tomatoes. Season with salt and pepper; add two or three cups of water, cover and bake about two hours. Remove meat and make gravy by adding one cup milk and two tablespoons flour mixed in a little water.

Mrs. J. L. STIERHEIM,
4907 Perrysville avenue, West View.

BANANA AND WALNUT SALAD

Four bananas.
Eight marshmellows.
One-fourth cup walnut meats.
Six maraschino cherries.

Cut lengthwise slices of banana, scraping off outer pith, lay on lettuce leaf. Sprinkle with lemon juice to keep them from darkening. Then sprinkle with walnut meats, marshmellows cut in quarters, cherries cut in small pieces. Serve with marshmallow dressing made by adding marshmallow quarters to a cup of whipped cream.

MRS. F. CUNNINGHAM,
Box 362, Charleroi.

GREEN BEANS WITH CHEESE

Cook two pounds of green beans until tender in salted boiling water or use this equivalent of canned green beans. Drain and arrange a layer of beans in a buttered baking dish. Sprinkle generously with grated cheese and repeat the layers of beans and cheese until all the beans are used. One cupful of grated cheese is sufficient. Dot with bits of butter, sprinkle with salt and pepper and pour over one-fourth to one-half cupful of thick, sweet cream. Place in a moderate oven of 350 degrees, and bake until the cheese is melted. Serves six to eight.

ARE YOUR INCOME AND PROPERTY PROTECTED?

"JIM, YOU PAID 25% TOO MUCH FOR YOUR AUTOMOBILE INSURANCE"

"OH YES you did . . . if you insured in a stock company at standard rates. Your premium was just 25% more last year than if you'd insured direct with American Mutual. Why, they saved me about $38 on my Packard!

"There's no catch in it. American Mutual is different from a stock company, that's all. Costs them less to do business, for one thing. They deal direct, instead of paying a commission to your agent. Pick their risks mighty carefully too.

"But here's the big difference, Jim. Instead of paying dividends to stockholders, American pays them to policyholders — like mutual life insurance. And I hear they've paid more dividends than any company of their kind. At least 20% to every policyholder for nearly 50 years.

"Safe? Listen — American Mutual is the oldest mutual outfit writing automobile insurance — one of the largest and strongest in the world. Just look at their financial statement.

"I should say they do give good service. When I had that little accident down in Nashville, I just called up the American Mutual Office. They took everything off my hands and settled the claim in no time. I'm told they settle most of their claims out of court.

"Sure it sounds good! Why don't you get in touch with American Mutual and find out all about it? They have an ad in today's paper. If you send in the coupon or call them up, they'll estimate the savings on your car. And you won't feel you have to buy. Take my advice and do it now — before you forget."

Peppery Primary Fights Face Politicians

By MARK SHIELDS

There will be two peppery primary fights in Pennsylvania this year, the Republicans and Democrats giving promise of being equally caustic as the various patriots struggle for nominations to high office.

Mr. Shields

It was expected that the contest between Roland S. Morris and Joseph F. Guffey for the Democratic senatorial nomination would be a rough and tumble, with no holds barred.

There was little doubt that Governor Pinchot in his combat with Senator David A. Reed for the Republican nomination would use rough and pointed language in scarifying the senior Senator.

And now it develops that the Senator, usually a most mild spoken gentleman, intends to unleash the old epithets and retort to Mr. Pinchot in acid adjectives.

The first evidence occurred yesterday, when the Governor labeled the Senator errand boy for special interests in Washington. That was orthodox attack.

The rebuttal was unexpected. For the Senator replied that Mr. Pinchot was a common scold and that his public record was one of broken promises.

For a frigid day, with winter's heaviest snow, that was fairly hot language from two gentlemen who pride themselves upon their birth and breeding. In another month they should be down to the point where they actually say what they believed about each other, some of which will be printable in this family journal.

Clash of Democratic Factions Threatens

The fire which engages the Senatorial candidates is certain to spread all along the line.

Already the Democratic regulars have a slate, and the opposition has a tentative ticket which only awaits formal ratification to precipitate a clash.

The chief aim of the anti-Guffey Democrats now is to bring their energies to a focus.

That means that, so long as Judge Charles D. Copeland, of Westmoreland County, is a candidate for Governor who declares himself in to the finish, it is imperative that Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell, of Philadelphia, be persuaded to retire as a third candidate.

Negotiations along this line are proceeding, with some prospects of an amicable agreement.

It is to early to take the budding candidacy of Mayor William N. McNair seriously, though the Mayor is doing so.

Republican State Chairman Edward Martin, apprised of the candidacy of Gov. Pinchot against Senator Reed, had no comment beyond the statement that the Republican State Committee would have no slate. That does not deny the fact that the Martin wing of the party will be for the Senator with all its force.

It is certain as anything can be that there will be a regular Republican slate, no matter how assertive the protestations of an open primary. And the gubernatorial candidate of that slate will be teamed with Senator Reed, just as Mr. Pinchot is expected to back Attorney General William A. Schnader if the chief law officer of the commonwealth runs for Governor.

Within the last few days there has been an increase in the activity of friends of General Martin who wish him as a candidate for Governor.

The General privately has given the impression that he has never considered himself unavailable, and believes now more than ever that he should be the organization choice.

Shannon Keeps Weather Eye On Governorship

He has done nothing to impede the boom of Lieut. Gov. Edward Shannon, a fellow field officer of the national guard. But it is significant that in political quarters where the influence of General Martin is greatest there has been no sentiment expressed for General Shannon.

The Shannon boom has rested on soldier enthusiasm to date, and it unquestionably has lost ground within the past two weeks.

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, one-time Pinchot leader in this end of the state, recently shunted aside in favor of Judge Ralph H. Smith, probably will be found in the Pinchot movement when it attains full speed, though perhaps working independently of Judge Smith.

It is understood that Mrs. Pinchot in her conferences with the Commissioner last week felt satisfied that he would stick to his old allegiance, despite stories that he had been questioning friends as to their availability to serve on a committee for Senator Reed.

There can be no denial that Col. McGovern has received little recognition from the Pinchots recently.

One story is that at first he was to have the patronage worries taken off his shoulders, but didn't like it so well when he discovered that he not only was freed of worry, but of influence as well.

The Pinchot forces, as they existed in the past, are divided in this county much as is the organization. Just as some regular Republicans will not follow orders from a headquarters managed by Senator James J. Coyne, but will vote the regular ticket, so there are independents who will follow only their own group pilot, but eventually will mark a ballot for Pinchot.

Garbage Survey Bids Tabulated

A tabulation of bids on making a survey for proposed rubbish and garbage incineration has been submitted to Council by Health Director Roy P. Morris. Of nine offers, the lowest was $100 from Edward P. Denigan, the highest $4,000 from John M. Rice.

CHICKIE'S DAUGHTER

By Elenore Meherin

Pippin Sad as Kevin Begins Journey To Europe

CHAPTER IV

"Yesterday we were the world, Chickie. Dancing at the beach. For us—the moonlight on the waters. It's their turn now."

"They're too young for life."

"It's not life they want, but only the dazzle and excitement—'the sound of revelry by night.' Let them hear it."

"Ah, but they do want life, Janina, and long before they're ready for it."

"Why shouldn't they have it, Chickie? Why are we parents so determined to keep it from them when the flavor is new and sweet? Why must we insist they become stale and commonplace before we trust them to know the stir and glory?"

"You're not going to hand a stick of dynamite to a child because it loves the big explosion. The chance it may be blown to pieces is too great."

"That old platitude! In Samoa, youth is served and they seem to be a healthy, happy, well-adjusted lot. It's not youth we worry will be blown to pieces, but our fool economic system and our vicious morality. Half the women in this world are partial suicides. In the name of virtue, they've killed off some of the best and soundest impulses the human animal knows. How God must laugh, or does He weep to see us burrowing like gophers into miserable, safe little holes and refusing to look at the sky and the gallant roaring sea?"

"Ah, yes, Janina, but you want Fay to be secure—you don't want her blazing a red trail to known, perhaps tragic goals. What mother does? Our thought may be so brave; our love is always timid."

Janina gave a short, mocking laugh.

Still swift and still slender, Janina's face with its black eyes, prominent nose and short, sensuous upper lip was more striking than in girlhood, and still handsome. She never lost the rapier tongue; never ceased her war on the smug "good people."

But at length Janina made the great compromise to convention. One day when Pippin was a few months old she held the little girl in her lap. The child reached up and patted Janina's face.

Plans for Future

Janina's breath caught. She glanced at Chickie.

"Baby, I'm 36 tomorrow. The day after that I go and get myself a husband, and eventually I'll have one of these of my own."

Janina did exactly this. She married Chaffee Arnold, who had followed her with a dog's devotion from the time he was a yellow-haired, adoring boy. A year later Janina had her daughter In two more, Chaffee was dead. The girl was 15 now, fair and lovely. Janina was a scrupulous mother, but even before her daughter remained outspoken and full of scorn for the hypocricies of the virtuous.

Now, at Chickie's question, she began to muse, her eyebrows raised in slow, cynical smile

"Nothing like having a child to take the wind out of your sails. I still believe the best life and the only brave one must be free. If I were 20 today, I'd dare again to tap at heaven's gate and crash the doors of hell.

"But as to Fay—"

The door was flung open. A gay laugh sauntered into the room, followed by Pippin and a tea tray.

"See I bring my welcome with me! Don't give me any family look, mother. I'm sticking right here and drinking up every word. Wasn't it nice of me to fix these good little eats?"

Brings Tea to Guest

She set the sandwiches and tea before her mother and Janina. Then, with a look of rapt admiration:

"Go on, Janina, keep talking. Good, wild talk. I heard what you were saying. I want to be free like you were. Did you really crash the gates of hell and proud of it?"

"But the fashion is dead, Pippin. We're all through with flaming youth and girls who dare. When these years of easy money pass, chastity will again become the pearl beyond price. My dear, I advise you to practice virtue rigorously. It is soon to return as the best seller in the market for men."

"You think men are the end and aim of a woman's existence?"

"I don't THINK it, my dear. I was born KNOWING it. Whether you go after him with apple pie as your grandmother did, or with S. A. as is the vogue now, you don't exist until you get him. A wise lady knows it. Man is and will always be woman's one satisfactory goal."

"Are they that valuable? You think so? And we should take our first love and our second and our twenty-fifth? And no emotion should be put into the grave, still-born? Imagine the gaiety!"

The girl raised the cup quickly to her lips. Oh, why did Janina always stir such hot longing in a person's heart!

Beauty of World

And what a world enough to make one faint with the beauty of it—if she could take Kevin's hand and walk with

Synopsis

Pippin, pretty daughter of Chickie, and Kathie McPike laughingly appeal to Kathie's foster-brother, Kevin Malone, to take them to their first dance. Kevin promises. Then, teased by the two girls because he is eight years older than they, he seizes Pippin and kisses her. Pippin goes home to her mother to secure permision to go to the dance, astonished and thrilled at the first real kiss she had ever known. Given permission, Pippin attends the dance with Kevin and has a glorious time. Chickie thinks her daughter has gone into the strange land of adolescence too soon. Kevin prepares for his trip to Europe and Pippin helps him to pack.

Now Go On

PLANNERS FIGHT EXPO PLAN

On grounds that it would interfere with approved traffic plans, the City Planning Commission has asked Council to disapprove a bill authorizing the erection of a new exposition at the Point.

Plans submitted by the Greater Pittsburgh Exposition Society would obliterate traffic channels designed to produce free and flexible traffic movement, the commission stated in a letter to Council.

It was proposed to erect the new building with PWA funds, the city to receive 3 per cent of the profits as rent.

G.O.P. Commissions Discovered Only Expense Accounts

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Old line Republicans are broadcasting bitterly over government by committees.

Is that any different than government by commissions?

The best thing those G. O. P. commissions did is that they wandered around the country and never came back.

All of them turned in expense accounts. But only the Wickersham commission turned in a report.

And that was promptly changed upon perusal.

The trouble with an ancient Republican is that he forgets he was young himself once.

KERR TO PUSH QUIZ OF POLICE RADIO COSTS

Charges of Cheating On Repair Work Bared at Hearing

Charges that the city was cheated in furnishing of parts for police radios in 1933 have been made before City Controller James P. Kerr.

More testimony is to be heard by Kerr tomorrow concerning alleged manipulation of prices and unfair specifications. In the meantime, Controller Kerr has refused to sign the 1934 contract with the Barton Auto Radio Corporation until accusations made by another company, unsuccessful bidders, are sifted.

J. S. Steele, Jr., former employe of the Barton Corporation, which had the contract for parts and service for police radios for two years, testified the city paid for material it did not receive.

CHARGES AIRED

It was a common practice, according to Steele, while he was with the Barton Corporation, to put two batteries in a police car and bill the city for four. He cited three instances where old vibrators reconditioned, were put back in police cars, and sold to the city as new equipment.

Steele's testimony was offered by Attorney Thomas N. Griggs, representing the Aircraft Radio Products Company.

City specifications for radio parts were attacked by E. C. Williams, of the Aircraft Company, and H. M. Ringelheim, independent radio dealer. They declared that the only parts on which there is competitive bidding are tubes and batteries.

WITHHOLDS SIGNATURE

The Barton Corporation was awarded the contract in 1932 and 1933 and lack only the Controller's signature on the 1934 agreement. In 1932, the Barton Corporation received $475 a month for service in addition to list price plus 10 per cent for parts.

In 1933, the Barton Corporation's bid was $300 per month in addition to cost of parts and in 1934, $200 per month with the parts added.

ALDERDICE OUT AS BUDGET HEAD

Budget Controller Robert J. Alderdice has sent a letter to Council announcing his resignation, effective March 1. Alderdice said he was leaving the city to take a position of executive treasurer with the Brackenridge Brewing Company.

Three additions to the city government were also announced yesterday. Mayor McNair proposed Charles F. Lewis, director of the Buhl Foundation, and Norman S. Sprague, former city engineer, to replace L. W. Monteverde and E. W. Mudge, both resigned, on the City Planning Commission.

Walter O. Beyer was sworn in as Civil Service Commissioner replacing B. B. McGinnis, resigned.

HEINZ SWORN AS FIRE CHIEF, SMITH OUT

Boyd Demoted From Detective Chief as McNair Ax Falls

John Heinz, former fireman and unsuccessful Democratic candidate for Sheriff at the last election, was sworn in today as Fire Chief by Mayor McNair.

Heinz, who replaces Richard L. Smith, took the oath in the office of Public Safety Director Ralph E. Smith. About 150, including Heinz's family, were present.

Thus McNair paid one of his heaviest political debts—that to Heinz, credited with pulling thousands of votes to the Democrats last fall. Smith was discharged late yesterday by Public Safety Director Ralph E. Smith, just 33 years and one month after he joined the department.

Next in importance in a long list of effected or contemplated changes is the demotion of Detective Inspector Frank R. Boyd to captain of detectives, scheduled for noon today, as announced by Director Smith. Detective Captain Howard Forner will be dropped to a detective post.

The Public Safety head said several names have been mentioned to fill the detective inspector's office, including that of Louis Leff, former detective captain, who has been retired for several years.

Also 10 detectives are slated for dismissal, according to Smith.

The new fire chief was a member of the fire department between 1918 and July, 1932, part of which time he was president of the Firemen's Union.

Chief Smith joined the department January 27, 1901, and has earned a national reputation as a fire fighter.

He and Heinz were called to the Director's office late yesterday and notified of the change, after which Director Smith swore in Heinz as head of the fire department.

A list, reported to include from 250 to 300 names, has been prepared by the Mayor and his Public Safety head, Police Supt. Ben Marshall and Inspector Boyd, to come under the ax after City Council closes the 1934 budget tomorrow.

TROLLEY LOOP HEARING ASKED

A citizens committee on short routing of streetcars on lines 86, 88 and 95, has petitioned Council for a hearing.

The committee asks that short-routing at Ninth street up to 9:30 a. m. and after 4 p. m. be abandoned immediately, and that all cars be operated on schedules now prevailing between the hours of 9:30 a. m. and 4 p. m.

The sort routing was called an unnecessary inconvenience and gross injustice, in a letter to Council. Alderman Frank T. Halloran of the Ninth Ward is chairman of the committee.

MISS BELLA SOKOL . . . EXHIBITING AN ANIMAL MODEL

Peabody Club Shows Work of Former Artists

The Palette and Brush Club of Peabody High School is showing an exhibition of drawings, paintings and sculptures by the 26 members of the alumni who are now attending art schools. The feature of the exhibition, which is held in Room 101 at Peabody High School, is the formal presentation of the recently completed mural decoration developed from the Palette and Brush Club's motto: "If thou hast a loaf of bread, sell half and buy the flowers of the narcissus: for bread nourish the body but the flowers of the narcissus, the soul."

Samuel Cahoon, who designed the principal panel of the three which form the decoration, has painted 12 figures of youths. Suggesting the market place where the young men are absorbed with the material obligations of life as the beginning of the decoration, by a series of convincing sequences, he leads the observer to the mood of pure contemplation. The many-colored stars above and the grasses beneath unify the groups. The color is a warm gold and an etheral blue.

The small panels at the sides are designed by Ann Temeles, who shows two enraptured youths, and by Mary Louise Breitenstein, who has an exquisite figure of a maiden in a narcissus-filled meadow. The entire decoration has the earnest passion of youth afire to project its idealism upon a compromising world. The new decoration complements the one done several years ago by Robert Bright which dealt with the Gothic, the Renaissance, and the contemporary ideals in art.

The other exhibitors are students at Carnegie Institute of Technology, and the Ad Art School in Pittsburgh and at the New York School of Fine and Applied Arts in New York City. They include: Gladys Beamer, Sarah Elizabeth Black, Nancy Chalfont, Dorothy Cherry, Charlotte Emery, Jane Foller, Eugene Gittings, Marjorie Glassburn, Phoebe Henning, Pauline Hopkins, Lois Jamison, Dorothy Purse Jones, William Johnston, Nancy Leitch, Luise Link, Oltrado Lisotto, Caroline Loeffler, Dwight Magowan, Mary Jane Provost, Robert Schroyer, Alvin Seder and Thomas Winans.

McNair Absent At West End Rally

The 300 West End residents who gathered at the rally of the West End Board of Trade last night to hear Mayor McNair explain his single tax theory were disappointed when a letter, expressing the executive's regrets, was read.

Attorney James O'Toole explained the Mayor's affairs were too involved to permit him to attend.

HOLDUP KILLING CONFESSED, POLICE SAY

Arrest Ends 6-Month Hunt After Crime In Bridgeville

Pennsylvania authorities were speeding extradition proceedings today to bring a 19-year-old youth to Pittsburgh in the belief he is the slayer of Highway Patrolman Herman Brantlinger.

The youth, according to Clinton County (Ill.) police, is Thomas A. Davis, Jr., of 2956 Banksville road, said to be the son of a former justice of the peace.

He was caught in St. Louis, after leaving a trail of blood across four states, according to Illinois police who are now holding the youth for shooting a police officer there.

Search for Brantlinger's slayer, spurred by a $6,000 reward, has been going on since September 4, last, when the highway patrolman was shot as he rode up to a Bridgeville gasoline station on his motorcycle and attempted to thwart a holdup.

It was reported that Davis had confessed slaying Brantlinger through the aid of a "lie detector," but Illinois police denied this.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park is preparing extradition papers and state authorities at Harrisburg will rush them to Illinois, dispatches stated. Charges of shooting two Illinois police will be temporarily waived until disposition is made of the Brantlinger murder charge here.

FETE PLANNED BY B'NAI B'RITH

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.

Hurry up planes an' art leaving here. I can't walk in these snowshoes. Been run over by two sleighs.

Taxicabs are being pulled by dog teams, and the weather man says there will be a blizzard. And to add to the gloom of this city is the death of John McGraw. New York owes much to him. He was responsible for bringing more people to New York to see his Giants in world series and league games than any man New York ever had. Typified the spirit of his day and time, and was a sweet character and a fine friend.

Yours, WILL.

Petrovits' Painting Hit as 'Beer Ad'

Milan Petrovits' painting of the national peasant dance of Hungary, "The Hungarian Csardas," has been protested as a "beer ad."

Now hanging in the Carnegie Galleries among the others of the Associated Artists show, and last week purchased by the "One Hundred Friends of Pittsburgh Art," the picture today received the censure of Mrs. Wesley A. Looney, of 609 Amberson avenue.

In a letter to the Board of Education, Mrs. Looney termed it "an advertisement for beer."

The "One Hundred Friends" place the pictures they buy in the public schools, and Mrs. Looney said:

"It doesn't conform to my ideals of what should go into public schools."

Explaining her letter of protest, she described the picture as follows:

"That picture that the 'One Hundred Friends of Art' bought is fairly well done for an amateur, but it's an advertisement for beer. There's just a bunch of foreign girls dancing, and there's beer on the table, a barrel of beer in one corner—just an advertisement for beer."

Asked why it shouldn't be placed in the school halls, she said:

"I just believe it shouldn't. I know it shouldn't."

Petrovits, a Pittsburgher, is one of the district's best known painters and has exhibit in the New York Academy, Corcoran, Chicago, and other noted art shows. He has won many awards.

PETITIONS OUT IN PRIMARY FIGHT

Alexander P. Lindsay, twice candidate for the Common Pleas Court bench and prominent in independent politics, today has petitions circulating preparatory to fight for the seat in the State Senate now held by William D. Mansfield. Lindsay was prominent in election reform fights, and for permanent registration.

Petitions were secured for Lindsay from the County Elections Bureau. He lives in the Fourteenth Ward and the Forty-fourth District.

Petitions were taken out this morning for Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell, Democratic aspirant for Governor, and Rowland Morris, Democratic candidate for United States Senator. Both live in Philadelphia.

Others prominent who secured petitions are Clyde Kelly, member of Congress who seeks to succeed himself in the Thirty-first District; Dr. Marion K. McKay, of the University of Pittsburgh, who seeks a Congressional seat from the Thirty-second District, now held by M. J. Muldowney, and Capt. D. Clarence Davies, of the same district, now a secretary to County Controller Robert G. Woodside.

Kelly secured petitions for the Republican nomination only.

Among those taking out petitions yesterday were friends of Mayor William N. McNair.

Petitions were secured for the following:

42 Convicted in County in 1932 Voting Fraud

5 of Fourth Ward Board Guilty; 6 on Trial

The conviction yesterday in Federal Court of five members of the election board of the Seventeenth District, Fourth Ward, for conspiring to deprive candidates for federal officers of votes cast at the general election in November, 1932, made a total of 42 convictions in 10 trials of election board officials and others, indicted by the grand jury which conducted the probe of alleged vote cheating. There were eight acquittals.

The verdict was received by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker while he was sitting at the trial of five officials of the election board of the Second District, Third Ward, and a non-member of the board. The jury deliberated two hours. Those found guilty were James R. Shields, judge; James McTighe and Thomas A. Nordheim, inspectors, and Thomas Holleran and John J. Whalen, clerks.

Those now on trial are Dewey Budwey, judge; Richard Burgundy and John J. Juliana, inspectors, and Michael Cozza and Francis Haeck, clerks, and H. S. Mahfood. The trial began immediately after the other case was placed in the hands of the jury.

Government counsel called a large number of residents of the district who testified having cast straight Democratic ballots, to support the contention of the prosecution that more straight Democrat votes were cast than shown on the return sheets of the Election Board.

John P. Wilson, clerk in the Prothonotary's office, read from a triplicate return sheet filed by the board, showing that 137 votes were cast for M. J. Muldowney, Republican, and 63 votes for Mrs. Anne E. Felix, Democrat, candidates for Congress, and that 18 votes was the lowest number received by any one Democratic candidate at the election.

When Fiorentino Ferrari, of 1106 Bedford avenue, was asked how he voted, he replied he cast his ballot for Republican candidates. First Assistant United States Attorney James I. Marsh pleaded "surprise" and was granted permission to cross-examine his own witness. Marsh produced what was purported to be the witness' testimony before the grand jury, showing he said he had voted a straight Democrat ballot, but Ferrari said he made a mistake before the grand jury. Marsh asked the witness who he had talked to about his vote since he appeared before the grand jury. Ferrari, a laborer, employed by the CWA, said he had talked to no one.

RADIO CHEATING CHARGE PROBED

furnished by the Barton Corporation to the city in 1933, quoted comparative market prices for parts which were as low as one-tenth of the listed price and in all instances substantially less.

ON POLICE FORCE

C. O. Goulding, sales manager of the Barton Corporation, testified that Ralph P. Barton, had no connection with the company for two years, or during the period of the city contract. Later Goulding admitted that he himself has only been connected with the corporation since October, 1933.

Steele testified that Barton was sales manager of the corporation as well as desk sergeant at No. 5 Police Station. Barton fired him, he declared, on October 11, 1933, after he was told to increase the number of parts he was installing in city radio cars.

BROTHER ON FORCE

Barton also has a brother on the city police force, Steele stated.

William F. Lowry, another former employe of the Barton Corporation, testified that Ralph P. Barton was about their place of business almost every afternoon and on many evenings. He said:

"I acted on his orders entirely."

Lowry said he had been reprimanded for failing to sell more radio parts to the city, and that later he resigned.

Attorney William J. Graham, for the Barton Corporation, cross-examined the witnesses briefly.

NOVELIST LAUDS 'RICH WOMEN'

Jeffery Farnol, English novelist, lecturing today at the Pennsylvania College for Women, declared there is no "idle rich class" among the women of this country; they all are doing something, he stated.

Farnol scored movie producers for a tendency to "mangle and distort" authors' stories.

Commenting on the United States, Farnol added:

"I haven't heard a single hard-luck story during my stay. The optimism of your people is surprising and sure to bring you out of the depression."

'3 TOM' LIQUOR INDICTMENT QUASHED

The "Three Toms," Coyne, Dolan and Goslin, alleged proprietors of the famed Monaca club will have to stand trial only under an indictment charging them with maintaining a gambling house. Judge George V. Moore late yesterday granted a motion to quash the indictment charging them with selling liquor illegally.

The sumptuous Monaca Club, opposite the Oakland Police Station, was raided by state police at the behest of Judge Frank P. Patterson, in January, 1933, while the Snyder Act was still in force and before repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. Allegations of jury fixing halted trial of the case last June. When the case was relisted for trial recently attorneys for Tom Coyne, brother of Senator James J. Coyne, moved to quash the liquor indictment.

Judge Moore, in his opinion, said the new Liquor Control Act has no saving clause as to malt beverage prosecutions already instituted. The judge says that repeal of the Snyder Act is clearly consonant with repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, and adds that neither the beverage act nor the Pennsylvania Liquor Control act constitutes a re-enactment of the Snyder Act, nor are the provisions of the Snyder Act continued in operation. He concludes by saying he is convinced further proceedings against the defendants would be illegal.

About 25 other cases, in which alleged violators of Snyder Act are waiting trial, will be quashed on motion of the district attorney, under Judge Moore's ruling, it was stated.

Kill that COLD!

Don't Merely Coddle It with Half-Way Measures!

A cold is nothing to trifle with! It may end seriously. A cold, being an internal infection, calls for an internal treatment. It also calls for a COLD remedy and not someting good for a number of other things as well.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is direct and internal—and it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is taking chances with a cold. Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is sold by all druggists, 30c and 50c. Accept no substitute.

him now into dim poetic twilight—never a backward glance.

Her hot young pulse raced with the picture.

She wrote in her diary:

"I'm going to work and study. I'm going to become brilliant—exciting. So that he will love me. Lord, how can I keep him, with all the millions of beautiful girls in the world? If I were older, I'd stow away on the ship. When it was far out at sea and the moon all golden on the waters, I'd come and stand before him. Then his arms would go about me. What a dream!

"How right Janina is! Love is the only value in the world. And he is all I want—all I'm ever going to want. If only, only I can have him!"

They were all down at the pier to see Kevin off. They talked excitedly. They winked and dabbed at their eyes.

Now the whistle was blowing. Visitors must leave.

Pippin watched him as he stood bareheaded, a flash about him and the wind blowing his black hair to curls. Some college girls, who looked very festive and as if Kevin belonged to them, made Pippin slightly indignant. When the whistle continued blowing, Kevin bade them goodby. They kissed him, which Pippin thought just a little startling. They went down the gangplank looking backward and waving.

Waves Kevin Goodby

"They're taking up all his time," Pippin thought, with a sense of outrage. "Why, look at Mary's eyes, they're full of tears."

The next moment Mary was in Kevin's arms. When he let her go his eyes, too, were brimming.

"Goodby, goodby," they were all calling.

Kevin set the fur about his mother's neck and caught her hands in a final squeeze.

Pippin fluttered her handkerchief in a gallant attempt to seem careless. Her heart was choking, her eyes stung with tears. He had time to notice each one of these college girls, but she was included with large, breezy affection in the general family farewells.

The tears were now running down her cheeks when Kevin pulled her a little from Chickie's side.

"No goodby for me, Pippin, dear?"

She stood on her toes, and like a child, turned her face up for him to kiss. She said tearfully:

"I'll miss you so much, Kevin."

With a quick arm about her he stooped and said warmly:

"I'm going to be lonesome, too, Pippin. I must hear from you. You'll promise to write and tell me all those secret passions? Do that, will you, Pippin?"

She was awed by his dark, earnest look and his eyes touching on hers. They were such wonderful, warm, exciting eyes. She kept smiling and staring. She thought:

"He's not going to kiss me . . . I'll die—"

"You won't neglect me, Pippin, dear?"

He took her hand, and stooping quickly, touched her lips with his.

It dismayed her. Not impetuous and masterful with a wild young sweetness like that other time. But quick—half-stolen—as though something made him afraid.

to be sure of her Hair*

Less than a minute—less than a penny—to be sure of your hair all day long! To know it's clean, and looks clean. To know it will stay as you arranged it. And to know you have no dandruff.

That's what moistening your comb with a few drops of Danderine will do. And no amount of dry-combing will ever do. Nearly all hair needs the help that Danderine gives it. A dash of Danderine morning and night when you comb it, makes an amazing difference in the way any hair looks all the time!

When you've washed your hair, a little Danderine will keep it from going helter-skelter. When you pay a dollar for a wave, Danderine will help you keep it. It isn't sticky dressing, or an oily tonic, and it doesn't leave a telltale odor. Its fresh fragrance is gone so quickly after applying—but not that very marvelous effect of freshness and cleanliness!

With all the care a woman gives her hair, it is a pity to omit this last touch that means so much. It is no trouble. Yet you can hardly believe anything so mild and delightful as Danderine could bring such a change in the condition and appearance of hair and scalp. Just try it. You can buy Danderine at any drug store for thirty-five cents; larger sizes for 60c and $1.00.

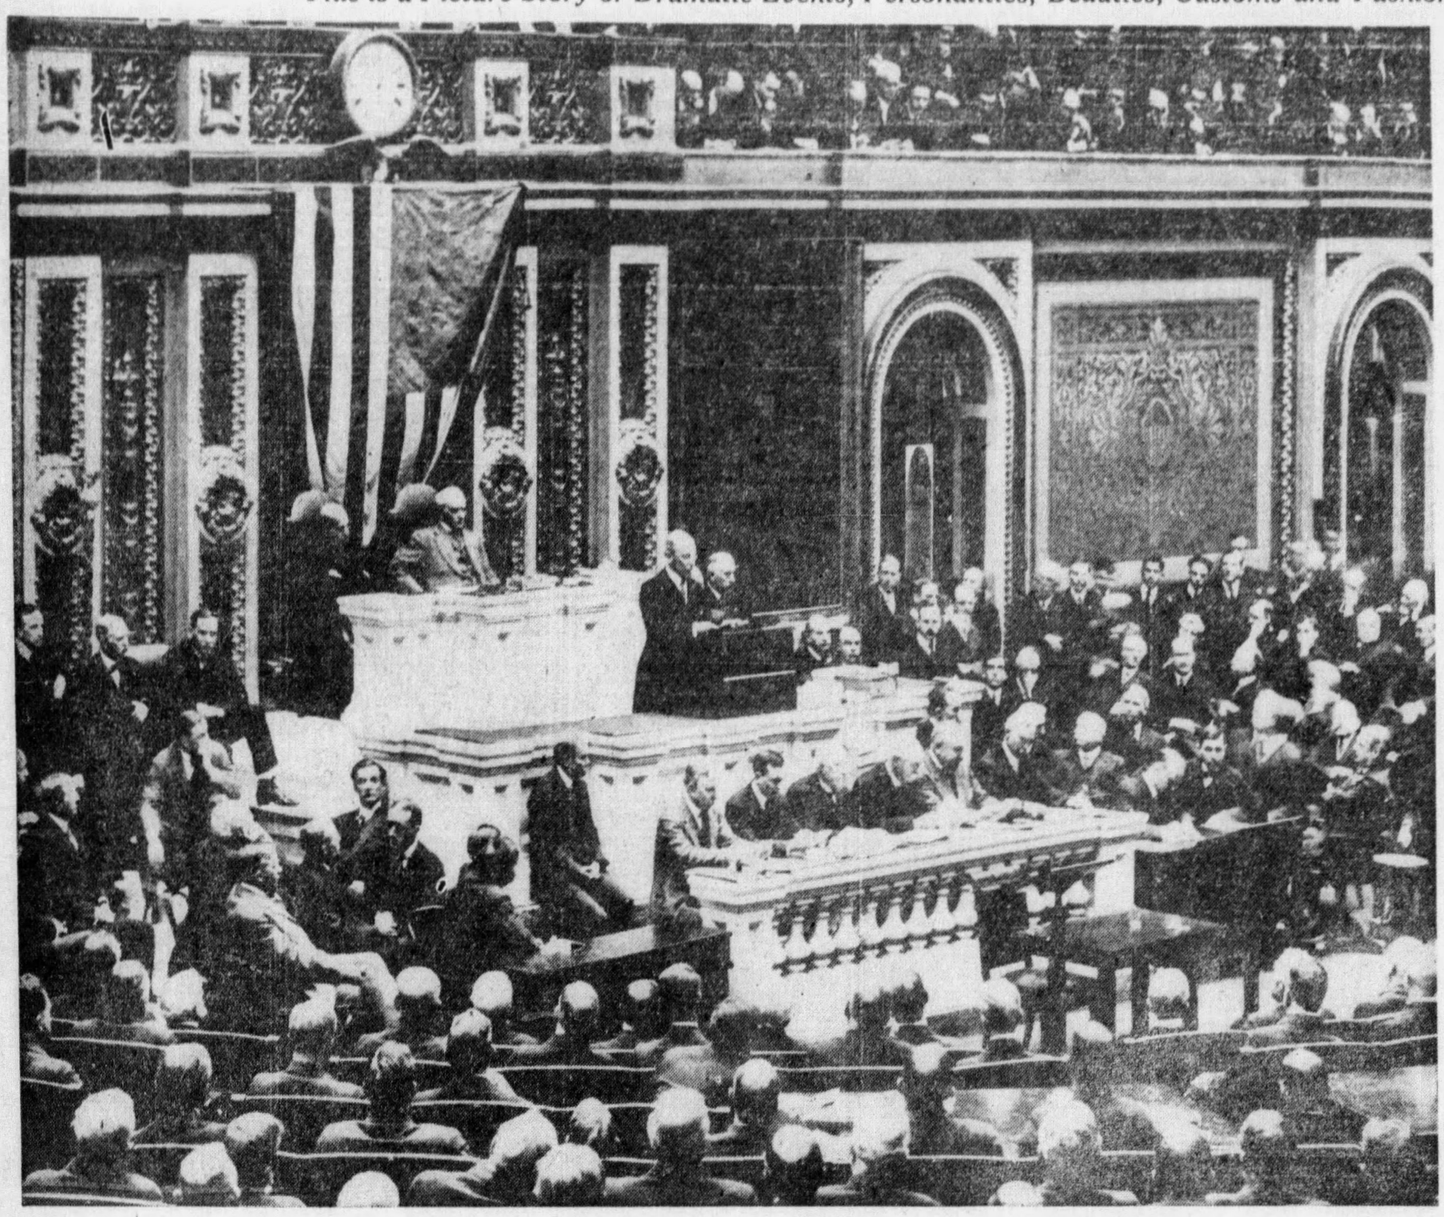
This is a Picture-Story of Dramatic Events, Personalities, Beauties, Customs and Fashions Within the Memory of Living Americans

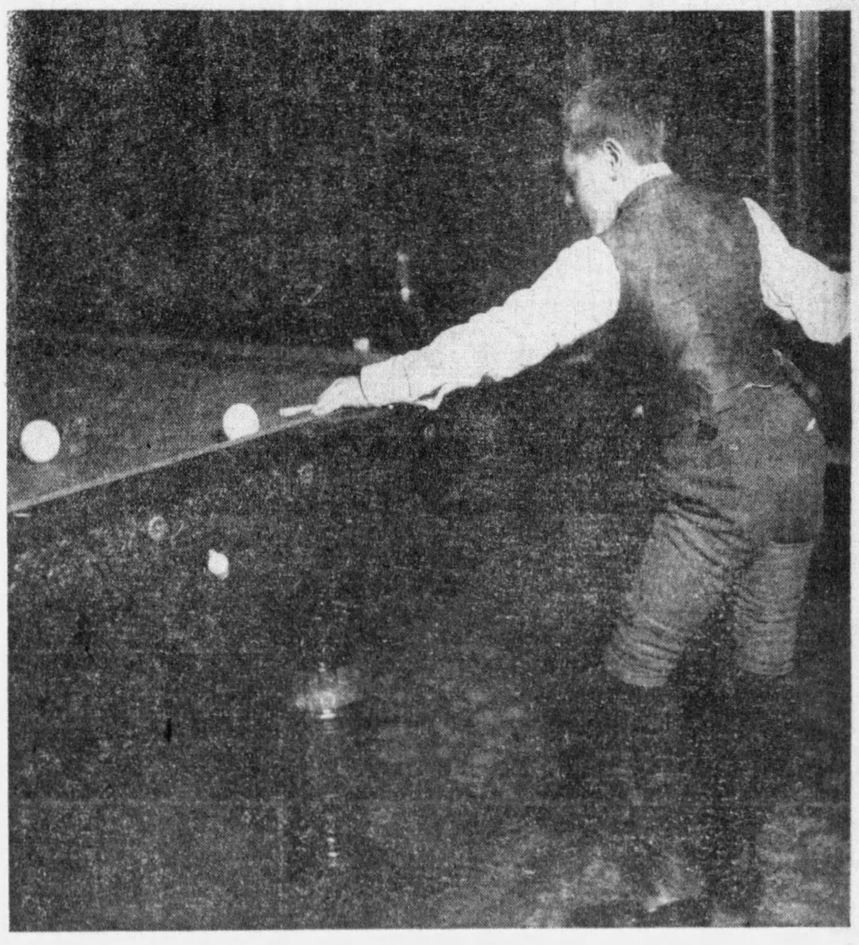


Remember when President Woodrow Wilson on April 6, 1917, addressed a joint session of House and Senate: "State of war between the United States and the Imperial German government which has been thrust upon the United States is hereby formally declared?" And it was.

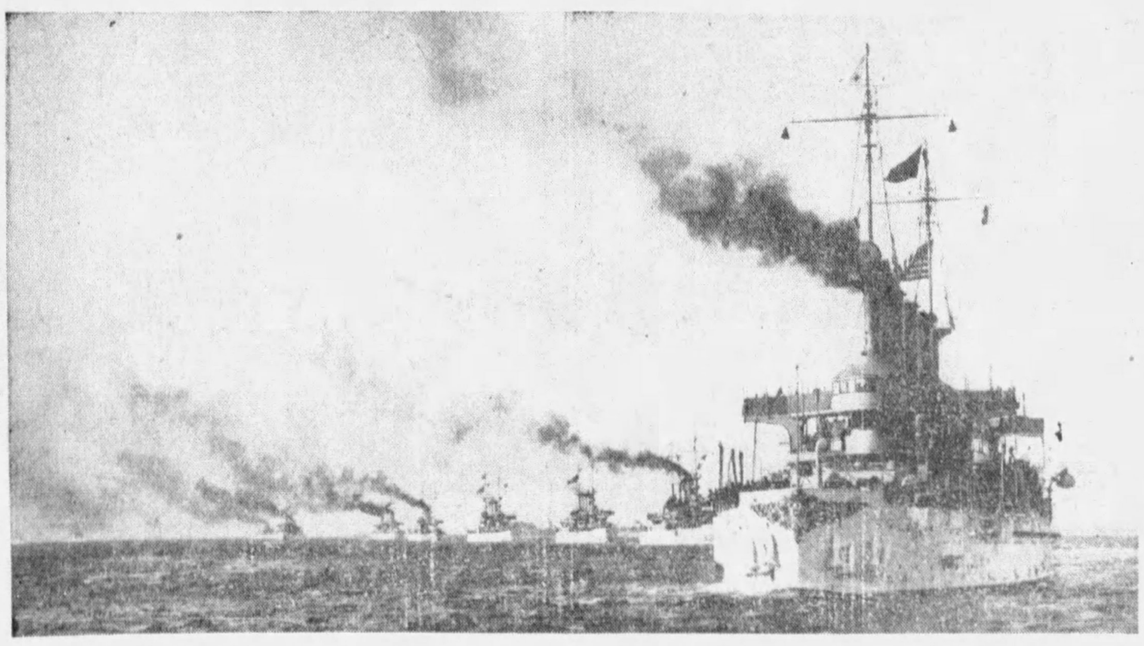
Remember when Marie Dressler played "Flora" in "Hotel Topsy Turvy" in 1898? Her first appearance: 1886. And she's still standing 'em on their heads in the films!

Remember when Gen. Ambrose E. Burnside commanded the Union's Potomac Army? Such whiskers are still sideburns.

Remember when Brig. Gen. John J. Pershing, U. S. Army bandit-chaser in the Phillipines, went after Pancho Villa in 1916? Seldom since has he appeared with pockets open, his breeches slack, his boots wrinkled.



Remember when Willie Hoppe, now 46 and still an expert, was at the age of 12 (1900) the "Boy Wonder" of billiards? Don't overlook the patent leather shoes!



Remember when "The Great White Fleet" went 'round the world from December 16, 1907, to February 22, 1909? To show the world that the peace-loving United States was prepared. The fleet's "battleship gray" now.

Remember when Richmond Pearson Hobson and six aides sank the "Merrimac" at Santiago to bottle up the Spanish fleet? And how they swam from the ship only to be captured? Here are the spars of the sunken collier.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS!

:-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-:

By MARION BRUNOT

One Cannot Be Everything To Another Person

A husband is two people.

He is one person when his wife is around. And another when she isn't.

So says a pretty waitress in a downtown restaurant.

"Some husbands are gay birds," this girl admits, "but mostly they're big boys who want some fun. But let the missus come along, and gee! the crepe's hung all over them.

"I can only think of one out of them all who is funnier when his wife's with him than when he's alone. He comes in grinning, and looking back over his shoulder at that wife of his, he'll say: 'Shush! Here comes the steam roller.' And she laughs harder than anybody else, although he's said the same thing often.

NEAT AND EDUCATED

"Next day he's sure to tell us, how she's pleasant like that always. He has never seen her any other way, although they've been married for years."

The business of being a waitress has picked up in the last few years. The days when greasy-haired girls leaned over "dumb waiters" and yelled: "Adam and Eve on a raft," and up came ham and eggs, have gone. And instead there are pretty, permanent-waved, manicured sisters, who speak good English and have high school diplomas.

I landed in Pittsburgh as that petition for allowing the waitresses to continue in their work whether strong liquor was being served or not was being circulated. And I signed it "Johnny on the spot."

"They tell us it won't be lady-like for us to pass around cocktails, or even be where such things are being done," my petitioner explained.

"My eye!" I responded. "That word lady-like hasn't been shoved down my throat since I was a school girl and I was hurried past a saloon on Fifth avenue."

SUSPICION SICKENING

The Pittsburgh waitresses came out on top, and with a bang. They are still with us, and will be so long as they keep up their happy gait.

But, returning to husbands being different when the wife is along, let me say, shame all such wives. The "steam roller" is exempted. She should have a monument!

Are all men natural born two-timers? Or do they each one on a June morning when the roses are in bloom, start out with the good resolve of confessing everything even to where they got the lace-edged, perfumed handkerchief in their inside pocket?

And does his good resolve become all twisted when the wife turns everything to the wrong side? Does he then, and then only, begin subterfuging? Is it then that he learns it is better to be in a coma when his wife becomes curious?

It is sickening, I say, in these good wholesome times, to be staying at home steaming open suspiciously addressed envelopes.

For a husband usually has the price of a postoffice letter box, when he really becomes serious in outside interests. So why the effort?

Imagine in these self-raising flour days, when biscuits come for but a moment's work, to be weeping tears over the blonde hair on your man's coat lapel! There are too many outdoor sports, and too many foursomes, sister.

WOMEN'S IMAGINATION

It is going against all progress, anyway, not to allow that side partner of yours enough freedom to get around on. Being tied by law doesn't keep any red-blooded man from admiring brown eyes when his wife chances to have blue ones. But admiration may be no deeper than the color pigment, unless you, sister, irritate it.

Fancy a strong-minded man frightened when his wife toddles behind him. What is scaring him? IS IT WHAT SHE MAY FIND OUT? Or is it WHAT SHE REALLY COULD UNEARTH IF ONLY GIVEN THE PROPER TOOLS?

A wifely imagination is beyond the ken of a taxi driver and also a university professor. It is something no man ever wants as the other end of a collision.

He is as much afraid of it as he is of the smallpox.

It is well to remember, no one woman can be everything to any other individual. Even a week-old baby needs the doctor as well as you.

And if you can't help being a WET BLANKET when you go with your husband to his favorite haunts, don't go at all.

Chances are, it won't be exciting, anyway. You'll hear the same jokes you heard last week at your own dinner table, and you'll watch your man overeating, just as you do within your own four walls.

Fay King Tells of First 'Publicity Hound' Who Cried Wolf

VERY INTERESTING!
BOOK OF FABLES
WELL MY CHILDREN, ONCE UPON A TIME THERE WAS A SHEPHERD WHO — DO TELL US GRANDPA WOLF HOW YOU GOT THAT MEDAL, MEDAL
FAY KING

By FAY KING

There is an ancient fable about a shepherd who frequently cried "Wolf! Wolf!" when there was no wolf.

One day the wolf did come but then no one paid the least attention to the shepherd's familiar announcement.

The moral attached to the fable is that having fooled the people so often they did not believe the truth at last.

It strikes me that this shepherd was the first "publicity hound," and the reaction of his public is interesting.

One wonders if, perhaps, the shepherd's public did suspect the truth after all, but had lost all interest in the shepherd and his "wolf! wolf!"

One even wonders if, perhaps, the wolf got so bored, too, he ate the shepherd instead of the sheep!

Avis Asks Boys to Go With Her After Honeymooners

What Dicky calls "the well known fat" was certainly in the fire. I realized that, as I rushed out of the door behind Avis Arlen, who was traveling at a double-quick pace toward the living room.

"Avis!" I called shrilly, but she either did not hear me or pretended that she didn't, and, though my fists instinctively clinched as I followed her, the exigencies of good breeding forbade my even looking dour when I caught up to her, just as she accosted Bob and Carolyn.

"Listen, you folks!" she said excitedly, but keeping her voice low. "Something's slipped up, somewhere. Didn't Bill and Hank say that Mr. and Mrs. Ticer went across the fields that time when they saw the kitchen door open and thought Mary and No-el were coming out?"

She gave to Noel's name the slurring, caressing intonation which she always employs when speaking it, and again I felt my fingers curving into facile fists.

"Yes, yes." Carolyn and Bob said in unison, and Ronald, after a swift look at Marion, added "That's what they said."

"What have the Ticers got to do with it?" Marion demanded. "When I rushed down just now and told you Noel and Mary were gone, and that we must catch them at the car, you said to wait a minute, and we've been waiting; though why in the world—"

AVIS GUESSES TRUTH

She was talking against time, I felt it, and I knew that she did, also. For there was a triumphant light in Avis' eyes which I was sure meant mischief.

"You won't find them at the car," Avis said. "They've been gone nearly 10 minutes.

"Ten minutes!" Marion ejaculated weakly, but her tones lacked conviction and Avis swept relentlessly on.

"Yes, 10 minutes. You either went to sleep at the switch or else—"

She paused, letting her implication sink in, and then turned dramatically to the others.

"Mr. and Mrs. Ticer are in the kitchen this minute. Ask Mrs. Graham if they aren't."

"Yes, they are there," I admitted coolly. "What of it?"

"Then who went across the fields 10 minutes ago?" she asked. "Hank and Bill said they were the Ticers. Of course the answer is easy. They must have been dressed in the Ticers' clothes."

ENCOURAGES BOYS

"Good Lord!" Bob ejaculated, and caught Carolyn by the hand. "Come along, Carol! I see it all. Their new car was over at Ticer's. They're probably well on their way by now, but we ought to be able to head 'em off before they get off Long Island. I'm game to get down to Queensboro Bridge and wait for 'em. What about the rest of you?"

"I don't think our mothers would stand for a stunt like that," Marion said doubtfuly to Carolyn, and Carolyn pouted as she answered:

"I'm shouting sure mine wouldn't. She might not care about our scouting around this end of the island, but she'd never stand for our going that far, and racing as we'd have to. No, Bob; that's out."

"But I'm with you boys," Avis spoke up quickly. "My mother won't care. In fact I won't tell her anything about it. I know the girls won't mind my going with you. Come on, let's go! Oh; I'm so excited!"

She was simulating girlishly enthusiasm very prettily, and I knew she was appealing to the wild love of adventure—the rebellion against restraint—which is characteristic of Bob. I was sure of Ronald's reaction, but I wondered what Bob's response would be to her proposal.

Despite Popular Belief Asthma Is Not Incurable

There is a popular belief that asthma is an incurable affliction. This is not the fact, but undoubtedly it has led many sufferers from this affliction to give up all hope of complete recovery. It is true, too, that for many years little was known concerning this disease and little could be offered in the way of cure.

Dr. Copeland

I am glad to say that only recently, important discoveries have been made in the prevention as well as cure of this annoying and really disabling disorder. In fact, many victims of asthma have been entirely cured and others have been greatly relieved from the sufferings of repeated attacks and the severity of the spasms.

This has all been made possible by the development of the so-called "sensitivity tests." Certain types of asthma are caused by sensitivity to a pollen, food substance or clothing. In such cases when the exciting cause is discovered and removed, cure is possible.

By means of these sensitivity tests, it is possible to determine just what particular substance it is to which the sufferer is sensitive. When this is found and the offending substance can be removed cure is effected. In some instances success has been attained by the use of a vaccine made from the irritating substance. It acts by doing away with or lessening the sensitivity.

Within recent years many cases of asthma have been traced to sources of infection within the body. For example, diseased and infected nasal sinuses, tonsils, adenoids, appendix or gall bladder may be the underlying cause of the symptoms and when removed relief is obtained.

Every sufferer from asthma should have a complete physical examination. This will reveal any physical defects and locate the points of infection. The examination is not complete unless it includes a test of the urine, blood, sputum and an X-ray of the lungs.

Then the sensitivity tests should be made. I cannot overemphasize the importance of this part of the program. I believe that without all these tests the victim of asthma can have little hope for relief.

Bear in mind that asthma is a serious disease and must never be neglected. Continued attacks place too great a burden on the heart and lungs. In many an unrelieved case the sufferer becomes stricken with a diseased heart and if proper measures are not taken this may prove to be exceedingly serious. In addition, the general health of the individual is undermined and he becomes more susceptible to the various infectious diseases.

Contract Bridge :-: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Grand Slam Despite a Bad Break

On the hand below, dealt in a recent rubber game in a bridge club in New York City, two well-known tournament players very easily and speedily reached a Grand Slam which was a laydown even against a very bad break in the Declarer's second suit. Mr. Michael T. Gottlieb was sitting North and Mr. Samuel Fry, Jr., was sitting South.

South, Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.

	♠ Q 10 8 ♡ 10 8 4 3 ◇ 7 2 ♣ A K 8 2
♠ J ♡ J 9 7 6 5 2 ◇ J ♣ 10 7 6 4 3	North West East South	♠ 9 6 ♡ A K Q ◇ Q 9 8 6 3 ♣ Q J 5
	♠ A K 7 5 4 3 2 ♡ — ◇ A K 10 5 4 ♣ 9

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠ (1)	Pass	2 ♠ (2)	Pass
4 ◇ (3)	Pass	5 ♣ (4)	Pass
7 ♠ (5)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—Mr. Fry quite correctly decides that despite his magnificent distribution and his holding of four honor-tricks, a two-bid is not necessary. With a hand of this type it is practically inconceivable that a one-spade bid will be followed by three passes.

2—Definitely the correct response.

3—Mr. Fry now knows that he is going to bid at least six on the hand. His four-diamond bid is a command for his partner not to bid merely four spades unless the original Raise to two spades was a minimum.

4—Mr. Gottlieb, despite the fact that he holds only three trumps, instantly recognizes his partner's strong bidding. He therefore shows his club suit, this bid being particularly desirable since the suit is headed by the Ace-King. In addition, he knows that the doubleton diamond will certainly prove of assistance.

5—The five-club bid was exactly what South wanted to hear. He feels absolutely certain that North would not have shown the club suit if it were not headed by the Ace. South therefore is gambling only on the diamond situation in contracting for seven, and he has good reason to believe that North has no more than two small cards in that suit. After all, North has raised spades and bid clubs and, in addition, given a Slam try of his own. It is pretty hard to conceive of a hand on which North would do all this bidding with three small diamonds in his hand.

In the play of the hand West opened a low heart, which Declarer naturally ruffed. The Ace of spades was played, West's Knave dropping. South now laid down the Ace and King of diamonds and, although West showed out on the second round of that suit, he had no trumps left. Two diamonds were trumped with the two remaining trumps in Dummy, and the fifth diamond was eventually discarded on the club King. Frankly, no one can criticize the East player for complaining bitterly after the hand over the fact that a Grand Slam was made against his very strong holding.

Tomorrow's Hand

Assuming South is the final Declarer at a contract of four spades, how many tricks should the contract be set and what possible line of deceptive play could South adopt to enable him to have a chance to fulfill the contract?

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ A 7 ♡ J 7 ◇ A 7 5 4 ♣ K Q 9 4 3
♠ 8 ♡ K 10 8 6 2 ◇ K Q 10 6 ♣ J 8 2	North West East South	♠ K 6 5 ♡ A Q 5 4 ◇ J 8 3 ♣ A 6 5
	♠ Q J 10 9 4 3 2 ♡ 9 3 ◇ 9 2 ♣ 10 7

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Correct Manners

Announcing New Address

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been married for two and a half years and have been living with my mother during that time. Now I am moving into my own apartment and I would appreciate it if you will advise me what sort of cards to mail out to my friends informing them of the above.

THANK YOU.

The perfect card to use for this announcement is the double visiting-card, the one that is just like a visiting-card on the first page, but that is double, with the fold at the top. You have a plate made for this with Mr. and Mrs. John Alexander Crane in the center of the card; and with the new street address in the lower right corner, in letters of the same style of engraving, but in smaller size. Then inside you may write a message of welcome to your new home or any other friendly greeting that you wish to write. And you will be happy to have these cards for a hundred different uses. They are a precious possession.

Or, of course, you may mail your new visiting-card, preferably the Mr. and Mrs. card. Or you may write a note.

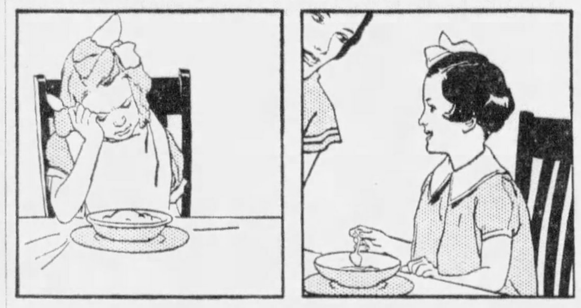
Whose Fault?



The Boy or Girl Who Refuses to Eat

"What have I ever done to deserve a child who refuses to eat, and is just skin and bones?" The mother who asks that question might be surprised to learn that she alone is to blame. She knows a lack of appetite is the sign of a clogged system, but does the wrong thing to remedy the condition. A violent cathartic that upsets the stomach pulls down a child like a spell of sickness. It often forms the laxative habit. A more sensible way of regulating children is explained in the column to the right: It's a lucky girl whose mother knows how to regulate her children's bowels without some strong, evil-tasting cathartic that upsets the system and ruins their appetite! Whenever sluggishness coats the little tongue, makes the whites of the eyes a bilious yellow, or a child is headachy and fretful, just try pure California Syrup of Figs. The senna in this fruity laxative is so agreeable to take, so natural in action! Get real California Syrup of Figs at any drug store. The bottle should say 'California'.

Do as your dentist does—
when he cleans your teeth

Powder Cleans and Whitens Teeth—as nothing else can Outlasts Tooth Paste 2 to 1

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleamingly white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

● Dull Teeth Become White

Dentists everywhere recommend Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used.

It cleans off all stains and tartar, and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

● No Grit—No Pumice

Free from all grit or pumice, Dr. Lyon's cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel, as years of constant use have shown.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums, freedom from pyorrhea and the least possible tooth decay.

● Lasts Longer—Costs Less

Once you use Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, you will never be satisfied to use anything else. It leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Dr. Lyon's is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

THREE W. P. I. A. L. ELIMINATIONS LISTED TONIGHT

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Pitt Trio Sets Record Many Floor Types Faced. Simmons Breaks Custom. Dean Sets 23 as Goal. Power of Ring Referee. Blake Pronounced Best.

When the three seniors on the Pitt basketball team—Russ Ochsenhirt, Charley Hughes and Don McCamant—make their collegiate fadeout at the end of the current season, they will take with them the record of having played against more representative teams than any other trio of players in local court history. In their three years of competition, these floormen have met almost every type of college quintet in the country. They have yet to face a southern team, but will get chance on the trip South at the end of March, when the Panthers will represent the North in exhibition games during the convention of the National Basketball Coaches' Association in Atlanta. The Carlsons are booked to oppose Western State Teachers in Atlanta, and games have been carded tentatively with Duke and South Carolina to be played on the way of Georgia. That will leave the southwest as the only region not met.

Russ Ochsenhirt

Eastern teams encountered during the careers of Ochsenhirt, Hughes and McCamant include Army, Temple, Georgetown, New York U., Navy, Penn and Harvard. The best in the Middle West opposed Pitt, notably Wisconsin, Indiana, Purdue, Butler, Notre Dame, Western Reserve, Northwestern, Minnesota and Ohio State. The Missouri Valley opponents were Kansas and Creighton. Colorado defended the honor of the Rocky Mountain territory, while Southern California and Stanford represented the Pacific Coast. In the Tri-State area, Duquesne, Carnegie Tech, Westminster, Penn State, W. & J. and West Virginia offered the opposition. It is doubtful if any other college players in the country could talk with such authority as the Pitt senior trio on basketball as it is played in sections other than their own home territory.

SIMMONS STARTS EARLY FOR BIG SEASON

In spite of the downward trend in salaries this year, some of the prominent major league players are showing evidence of uplifted spirit. A notable example is Al Simmons. Jimmy Dykes and Mule Haas, the first arrivals in the White Sox training camp at Pasadena, had feared earthquakes, but they received an even greater shock when Simmons blew in, right at their heels. This marks the first time in many years that Simmons has appeared in a spring training camp. He usually stayed in Hot Springs or elsewhere until most of the camp grind was over. But Al says he's out for a big season and means to get an early start.

DEAN AIMS TO WIN TWENTY-THREE GAMES

It will take more than a livelier ball to shake the confidence of Dizzy Dean. Far from seeing the new pill as a handicap, Dean thinks it's actually going to help him in his pitching efforts for the Cardinals. In his first season as a Redbird Dean won 18 games, and last year, in his second campaign, he turned in 20 victories. He hasn't a doubt in the world, to hear him tell it, that the close of the 1934 season will find him with 23 decisions to his credit.

Dizzy Dean

Just how he arrived at the precise estimate of 23 isn't clear to anybody except Dizzy himself, but that's his goal and he's going to shoot for it. He thinks the new ball was made to order for his fast pitch, offering the old argument of speed hurlers that the batters can't hit what they can't see. Admittedly, opposing hitters had trouble enough connecting with Dean's delivery even when the old ball was in use. Dizzy had more fans than Sally Rand. He struck out 199 in 1932 and 199 last year, or 390 for two consecutive campaigns, leading the National League both times.

REFEREE STILL IMPORTANT RING FACTOR

Though the referee of a boxing contest no longer has the decision in his hands, his vote not counting unless the judges disagree, and he can't give a fallen fighter a short or a long count since the timing of a knockdown has been turned over to a special official, the third man in the ring still exerts a powerful influence on the outcome of a bout. That's why there always is a squabble when it comes to selecting a referee for an important fight, and the wrangling over an official for the Carnera-Loughran heavyweight title tilt in Miami tomorrow night before the Miami commission settled it by appointing Leo Shea caused no surprise. It was an old story.

Smart managers know referees as well as they know fighters. As Wilbur Wood points out, a smart and unscrupulous referee can hinder one fighter and help another. If one of the principals has a very good left hand, the official can nullify it by consistently breaking the fighters on that side and by pulling or roughly handling that particular boxer's left arm. If a fighter is at his best inside, the referee can hurt that principal's chances by breaking the men as soon as there is a semblance of a clinch, before the inside specialist gets a chance to do any execution. Or he can break them in a manner that will tie up both hands of one boxer and leave him unprotected against a quick shot by the other on the breakaway.

BLAKE RANKED FIRST AMONG OFFICIALS

A recent canvass of New York managers and fighters gave George Blake, of California, the ranking of the country's No. 1 referee by a virtually unanimous vote. Others rated as being almost as good were Ed. Purdy, of Chicago; Arthur Donovan, of New York, and Lieut. Kennedy, of California. These men are not only capable in every way, but are recognized as officials who cannot be approached with any "propositions."

George Blake

In the old days, when the referee had absolute authority and gave the decision, an outstanding official commanded a high fee for his services. George Siler's standard fee was $1,000, and on some occasions he was paid as much as $2,500. Promoters and fighters alike considered it money well spent, because the presence of a man like Siler in the ring assured the fans that everything would be on the up and up as far as the referee could see to it. Other highly regarded referees of the old days included Tim Hurst, Honest John Kelly, Charley White, Eugene Corri, John Eckhardt, Eddie Graney, Ed Smith and Prof. John Duffy, to mention just a few. Local promoters used to go to considerable expense to bring prominent outside referees here for important bouts. Mike McNamara paid Sam Austin $500 to referee the Jack Bennett-George Plante 20-round fight in old Williamsburg, and Jack McGuigan and Ed Smith received fancy fees for handling, respectively, the Stanley Ketchel-Frank Klaus bout in Duquesne Garden and the Harry Greb-Mike Gibbons at Forbes Field.

CORR WINNING COACH FOR PANTHERS

By JESS CARVER

Introducing (not that he needs it) Patrick J. Corr, Pitt's swimming coach and an 11-year record that is a credit to Pat, to the University and to the Pittsburgh district lads who have made up his varsity squads.

A fine swimmer himself, both during his scholastic and collegiate days, Coach Corr possesses to the 'nth degree the ability to pass along his knowledge to his pupils. And that is an attribute that plenty of folks would like to boast. It is one thing to be able to do a thing well, but quite another to be able to show some else the hows and whys and wherefors.

HAS FINE RECORD

Since the advent of the former Allegheny High School star as head coach at Pitt, Panther swimming teams have won 41 out of 56 intercollegiate meets and goodness only knows how many Allegheny Mountain Association and open triumphs. Four times, including the season which was closed with the Franklin and Marshall meet here last Saturday night, the Panthers have gone through undefeated. The other perfect records were set up in 1928, '31 and '32. In 1926 and 1925, the Blue and Gold mermen lost only one meet and only in 1924 and 1927 did they wind up by losing more engagements than they won.

The Panthers have won or shared the Eastern Swimming Association title for the past four seasons. They split the honors with Rutgers last year, although they were unbeated in Association competition, the division resulting from the fact that neither the Panthers of the New Brunswicklans took part in the necessary four meets. The same situation existed this year.

Pitts ".732" record under Coach Corr follows:

1924	2	3	1930	4	2
1925	3	1	1931	3	0
1926	4	1	1932	7	0
1927	1	3	1933	4	3
1928	4	0	1934	4	0
1929	5	2

TEAMS HAVE BALANCE

Coach Corr's success has been built on the all-around strength and balance of his teams. Corr refuses to sacrifice the team for the individual. When you swim for Pat Corr, you must swim for Pitt, and not for your own personal glory. It would have been possible for Corr to have turned out brilliant individual stars by permitting ace performers to engage in their specialties only. Wisely enough, he refused to follow such a plan. As a result, he's never been bothered with dissen

SCHOOL CHAMPS BEGIN FIGHT FOR TITLE

By JULIUS LEVIN

Their league campaigns concluded, six of the 19 sectional champions of the W. P. I. A. L. swing into action tonight in the first elimination contests to determine the league's basketball champion and the District VII representative in the P. I. A. A. competition for the state crown.

Johnny Coleman

The three contests listed for disposal will be played on high school floors. Mt. Lebanon High School is the scene of the battle between Brentwood, Section XII champion in its first season in the league, and McDonald High School, champion of Section XIV. Brentwood, coached by Leo Harrold, replaces Robinson Township as the Section XII champion. It won nine out of 10 games played in Section XII. McDonald, a successor to Cecil Township, won all of its 12 games in Section XIV.

BATTLE AT SCOTT HIGH

Scott High School, of North Braddock, is the scene of the battle between East Pittsburgh, champion of Section XVII for the third straight year, and Perry Township, champion in the newly-created group, Section XIX.

Johnny Coleman's East Pittsburgh quintet went through the Section XVII schedule for the third year in a row without dropping a league contest, while Perry Township had to battle all the way to carry off the Section XIX crown.

Mapletown, champion of Section XIII, and East Pike Run, champion of Section XVI, both newcomers in the tournament, tangle at Carmichaels High School in the third game on the program. Both were beaten in league competition.

NEXT GAMES THURSDAY

After tonight's three elimination engagements, the W. P. I. A. L. champions will rest until Thursday when Washington, champion of Section XV, battles Dormont, champion of Section IX, at Mt. Lebanon, and Scott, champion of Section VIII, engages the champion of Section X at Norwin High School.

The major portion of interest locally centers on the outcome of the Perry-Oliver game at Perry this afternoon. Perry needs a victory to clinch the Section II championship of the City League and the right to engage South High, defending City League champion and Section I titlist, in the post-season series for the local crown. South, having clinched its sectional title, goes after its twenty-sixth straight league victory in its finale with Fifth Avenue High. The rest of the City schools also conclude their regular seasons this afternoon.

LATROBE AHEAD

Latrobe captured the Section X title in the W. P. I. A. L. last night, defeating Greensburg in a thrilling playoff battle on the Irwin High School floor, 26 to 21.

TRAIN WRECK DELAYS BUCS

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 27.—Delayed for more than three hours by a blizzard and a train wreck ahead of them, the advance guard of the Pittsburgh Pirates of the National League reached this city today en route to the Buccaneer training camp at Paso Robles, Cal.

The original party that left Pittsburgh yesterday morning was swelled to 19 as reinforcements were picked up at Chicago and here. Pitchers Fred Lucas, Hal Smith and Ralph Birkofer and Dr. Jorgensen, the team's trainer, joined the party at Chicago. The Omaha contingent consisted of one player, Pitcher Heinie Meine.

The smashup that delayed the Bucs yesterday was at Delphos, O., where a fast Pennsylvania train crashed into a truck at a crossing. This accident resulted in three deaths and left the tracks badly damaged and covered with wreckage. To get around this point it was necessary to detour from Crestline, O., to Fort Wayne, Ind.

Arriving in Chicago after the scheduled leaving hour, the baseball party found the Overland Limited awaiting the tardy tourists. It had been held for them at the telegraphic request of railroad men.

Frank Packard Back From South America

Frank Packard, well-known local baseball star, who will play for Portland in the Pacific Coast League this season, has just returned from South America, where he participated in a barnstorming trip.

The team of minor league players appeared in games in Porto Rico, Dominican Republic, Venezuela and Haiti. Packard leaves Thursday for Los Angeles to begin spring training.

PONZI SETS RECORD

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Andrew Ponzi, of Philadelphia, challenger for the world's pocket billiard championship now held by Erwin Rudolph, of Cleveland, set a new record for a challenge match with run last night when he defeated the titleholder, 118 to 50 in the second block of the 750-point match. Ponzi completed the block with an unfinished run of 111 in the sixth inning. The previous record was 101.

CARNERA AND LOUGHRAN ON EDGE FOR CHAMPIONSHIP GO

BOXERS FINISH HEAVY DRILLS FOR BATTLE

By DAVIS J. WALSH

International News Service Sports Editor.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 27.—(INS.)—Wishing to be advised of all the latest developments in this opera comique they seem to be running here between Primo Carnera, the not-so-good big man, and Thomas J. Loughran, the not-so-bad little man, for the heavyweight championship tomorrow night, I started off this morning with an interview with Louis K. McReynolds, chairman of the boxing commission.

He said that his referee would be instructed to inflict severe penalties for all fouls committed, the boys having begun to mutter darkly about Carnera's tendency to tread firmly upont the foot of anybody he doesn't happen to like. I think we can assume that he will not happen to like Mr. Loughran tomorrow evening.

OFFICIALS NAMED

We can also assume that Mr. McReynolds has never been fouled. Otherwise, he might be expected to know that no penalty is as severe as a broken foot. So much for development No. 1.

Number 2 has to do with the officials. They have no secrets here; everything is as open as a side door. So the referee, Leo Shea, was named four days ago and the two judges yesterday, with the result that all now are marked men and cannot be seen except in broad daylight up and down the middle of Flagler street. The judges named are Colin McLochlan and Roy Latham.

I don't suppose this greatly matters, for it's my belief that Carnera will be his own referee tomorrow night. His staff of managers has done all it could to make him lose but seems to have failed signally, for until such time as he proves you wrong, you have to like the big, strong, fast man against the little, weak blocker and grabber.

If Loughran, in the twilight of a never-too-dazzling career, can win this one, then there will be nothing for it but to tear up the record book and carefully eat the pieces.

CHALLENGER READY

Loughran closed his boxing preparations at West Palm Beach as confident as ever that he will win the title. He boxed two rounds each with Jack Pettifer, Ace Clark and Ed Hogan, and was particularly careful to avoid the possibility of cut features. He weighed 185 pounds.

While the fighters eased off, the ticket sales lagged as the rain flooded down. Predictions of probable gate receipts were scaled down to $75,000. Estimates of the probable crowd in Madison Square Garden's Bowl, reconstructed at a cost of about $25,000 to seat 50,000, run no higher than 20,000. Carnera still is held a 3-to-1 favorite and there will be no broadcast of the match, scheduled to start at 10 p. m. (E. S. T.)

Christy Flanagan Begins Duties Here

REV. J. J. CALLAHAN — CHRISTY FLANAGAN

President Callahan and Christy Flanagan, new athletic director and backfield coach of Duquesne University, in conference about latter's duties on the Bluff. Christy arrived in the middle of the biggest snowstorm of the year from his home in Port Arthur, Tex. He was a great running halfback for Notre Dame University, starring in big games. Pitt's Golden Panthers of basketball make positively their last appearance of the season before a home audience tonight. The Panthers, riding the crest of the intercollegiate basketball wave, and with the opportunity for gaining even greater honors than they already have picked up looming on the horizon, clash with Carnegie Tech's Tartans in the second game of the annual series on the Tartan gymnasium floor.

DUKES PLAY W. VA.

While the Panthers and Tartans are going at it here, Duquesne Dukes take to the road again, invading Morgantown for a return clash with West Virginia. The Dukes handed the Mountaineers a terrific lacing on the occasion of the West Virginians visit to Pittsburgh a couple weeks back, and there is no reason why they should not repeat their triumph tonight, possibly not by such a one-sided score, but easily enough.

With both Charley Hughes and Claire Cribbs on the bench, Coach Carlson, of Pitt, will not start his reserves as he had at first planned, but it is likely that the second-stringers will see plenty of action.

Tech, too, is in poor trim for the fray. Charley Spisak was injured in the game with Temple last Saturday and won't be able to perform tonight, and Ted Rigg's aggravated his ankle injury to such an extent on the Eastern trip last week that he will not even be in uniform tonight.

The freshman teams of the rival institutions will clash in a preliminary scheduled to get under way at 6:45, and following the varsity encounter, the intra-mural wrestling teams of the rivals will meet in an eight-bout engagement.

JACKETS CRUSH PREXIES

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 27.—Wash-Jeff took a basketball lesson from Waynesburg College's passers here last night, the Wolfpack, led by Frank Janosik, defeating the Presidents, 45 to 32.

Janosik tallied seven field goals and one foul for a total of 15 points to lead the attack of both quintets. Grable, Wash-Jeff guard, had 11 points for his team. The lineup:

Coach Francis A. Schmidt, coach of Texas Christian University, today at Fort Worth announced he will leave the latter part of this week to confer with athletic officials at Ohio State University regarding a coaching position there.

Lee Koenecke, outfielder for whom the New York Giants paid $75,000 and who was optioned to Buffalo last year, today signed a contract with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

New York state's race track situation was quiet for a legislative airing at Albany today, as an investigation of what influences are standing in the path of this pleasure is the state's anti-betting laws.

Jimmy Foxx, star of the Athletics, and Connie Mack, manager of the team, are to attempt to iron out salary differences at a conference to be held Thursday at Fort Myers, Fla.

By defeating Drake University, 39-27, Indianapolis last night, Butler moved into a second consecutive Missouri Valley Conference basketball championship.

Jim Little, Columbia football coach, is expected to confer with coaches in the New York area August 27 to September 1.

Marcel Thil, of France, bested Ignacio Ara, of Spain, in 10 of the 15 rounds of their middleweight title bout in Paris last night.

SPORT VIGNETTES

If you are the type of bird who goes around looking for long prices, or juicy odds, your horse in the winter book on the Kentucky Derby is none other than Servant Pride, a 5,000-to-1 shot . . . Blind Brook is 2,000 to 1 and the next best price is 1,000 to 1, which is what you can get on several of the entries . . . But, if you want something like a reasonably certain winner, you'll go for Mata Hari, the favorite, at 8-to-1, or Bazaar, Cavalcade, Chicstraw, Hadagal or Sir Thomas, all of which are 15 to 1 . . . Just as a hunch, how does the name Cavalcade strike you, conveying a picture of the field thundering down the stretch with the horse of that name out in front—and you with a ticket right on the nose?. . . . Oh, well, can't a guy dream once in a while?

Speaking of betting prices (the fellow ought to run a book!) the odds for Primo Carnera in his fight with Tommy Loughran in their bout for the heavyweight title at Miami, Fla., tomorrow night, don't mean such a lot . . . Wasn't Jack Sharkey the favorite to beat Carnera last summer, and how about Schmeling being the favorite the night Sharkey took the title from him? . . . And surely you haven't forgotten that they said Gene Tunney didn't have a chance against Jack Dempsey, and that Dempsey was on the short end against Willard, and Willard against Johnson, and Johnson against Jeffries, and Jeffries against Fitzsimmons, and Fitzsimmons against Corbett, and Corbett against John L. Sullivan? . . . And you know what happened . . . There's this angle about the fight: Loughran, after 15 years of fighting, wouldn't be in there with the gigantic Carnera if he didn't think he had a chance of winning. The fight isn't going to draw much, and Loughran gets only 12½ per cent of what it does pull in, so that the chance to win the title is his only incentive.

Bill Heckman writes a two-page letter to inform the world that he has Jackie Rodgers in the throes of a comeback, and also is handling Red Bruce and Casey Rhodes, Negro middleweights—and why doesn't 'Andsome Anson Green, the Black Killer, of Homestead, fight them? . . . It seems that Casey, a southpaw, once grabbed the duke over Anson in a bout at Hickey Park and made the going so messy for Green that he has been getting nothing but the go-by from Anson ever since . . . And Bruce, who has been knocking out light-heavies, would just love to have a social engagement in the ring with Dan Clark's Anson man. . . . Well, when Bill Heckman, who is one of the claimants of the "oldest fight manager in Pennsylvania" title, sits down and writes you a letter he writes himself a penful, doesn't he?

James F. Conlon, whose contribution to the Harry Greb vs. Ted Yarosz controversy drew the fire of Byron Foutts, brother of Ray Foutts, Yarosz' manager, comes back with a rebuttal too lengthy to publish herewith to prove his point that, fight for fight, Greb was the better man, even at a comparative stage in their careers, suggests that Ted take on heavier men to keep busy, in view of the paucity of good opponents in the middleweight class, and winds up with this show of appreciation for what Yarosz already has acplished: "I honestly think Teddy is the best middleweight around today, but time alone will tell if he is the equal or superior of Harry Greb. The answer is not apparent today."—HARRY KECK.

LOCAL HOCKEY STARS WIN

By CARL W. SHATTO

Having handed the Nichols Alumni Hockey Association, of Buffalo, its first defeat of the season, the City Hockey League All-Stars today are looking forward to their next engagement, against Michigan Tech, of Houghton, Mich., here next Monday night.

Performing like a veteran aggregation, despite the fact that Coach Terry McGovern had had 'em together for only a week, the Stars last night defeated Nichols, 8 to 3, before a crowd of 2,500 fans at Duquesne Garden. The setback was the first the Buffalo sextet has sustained in 12 games in the current campaign, but the result might have been altered had not the visitors' first-string players become snowbound enroute here. The squad left Buffalo in three autos, but only two of the cars, carrying the club officials and seven reserve players, were able to get through the snowdrifts.

In view of the fact that they had only one spare; that they had Magee, regularly a wing, playing in goal, and that about the only rest they got was between periods, the visitors' performance was very creditable.

For the All-Stars, the reserve front line of Jackie Powell, Bob Schooley and Regis Davies provided most of the offensive fireworks.

The City League is to stage a doubleheader at the Garden tomorrow. The Pirates and J. Scott Morgans, tied for the lead, are to oppose Carnegie Tech and the Red Ravens, respectively. The lineup:

Pittsburgh.	Pos.	Buffalo.

Mazur Is Winner In Amateur Bout

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Feb. 27.—Steve Mazur, of the Valley A. C., knocked out Ed Nichols, of the Superior A. C., in the feature bout of the amateur bovinx show staged here last summer. The summary:

Frank Wingo, Willow Club, 118, defeated Jim Williamson, Valley A. C., 117, 3 rounds.
Playboy Misconis, Valley A. C., won a five-round decision over Patsy Contello, Willow Club, at 135 pounds.
Charles Burley, Superior A. C., 132, defeated George Sharfe, Valley A. C., 133, 5 rounds.
Mike Genoves, Willow Club, 125, defeated Eddie Bracken, Valley A. C., 124, 3 rounds.
Joe Bulk, Tarentum, 124, defeated Abe Isaac, Valley A. C., 125, 3 rounds.
Steve Mazur, Valley A. C., 165, won by a technical knockout over Ed Nichols, Superior A. C., 167, 4 rounds.

Mrs. Kauffmann Rites On Thursday

Funeral services for Miss Catherine B. Kauffmann, mother of Carl Kauffmann, local public links golf star, who died at her home, 604 Hastings street, yesterday morning, will be held at her former home Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. She was 78 years of age.

Surviving are four sons and four daughters.

WAGNER CALLED GREATEST STAR BY M'GRAW

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Fighting spirit and courage were the two qualities that appealed most to John Joseph McGraw in the host of great players he handled or developed, bought or traded, during a lifetime of spectacular baseball achievements.

That was why two players stood out as coming closest of all to the affections of the old master, the immortal Christy Mathewson and Ross Young, the Texan that Mac developed into one of the great outfielders of modern times. Speaking of Mathewson, McGraw once said:

"Mathewson not only was a master craftsman in the box, but he had the heart of a lion. No greater pitcher ever lived."

LIKED HONUS BEST

Hans Wagner was McGraw's idea of the greatest all-round player of all time and none of Babe Ruth's exploits ever made the old man change his mind. To him the Babe was just a slugger. These two outstanding figures, Ruth and McGraw, waged a battle of power and wits during the 1921-22-23 world series with honors about even.

A leaping catch by Red Murray at a critical stage of a game in Pittsburgh years ago, just as a terrific thunderstorm broke, gave McGraw one of his greatest thrills. Matty was pitching. The bat cracked and a line drive sizzled over the infield. Then came a lightning flash, revealing Murray in the air with his glove spearing the ball.

GIANTS' DRILL LISTLESS

Feeling a real sense of personal loss, the Giants resumed their early spring training with a definite lack of enthusiasm today. Bill Terry, who replaced McGraw two years ago when the latter's health forced his resignation as manager of the club, wasn't present for today's practice. He left at 10 o'clock yesterday morning to attend the funeral.

There will be no practice at all tomorrow, the day of the funeral.

FUNERAL TOMORROW

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—The admiration and respect which baseball fans felt for John J. McGraw today opened the doors of his home in Pelham Manor to them.

At first reluctant to admit the general public, Mrs. McGraw altered her decision yesterday after a flood of requests had come from admirers in all walks of life.

The services will be held tomorrow morning at 10 a. m. at St. Patrick's Cathedral. After the funeral his body will be taken to Baltimore where it will be placed in a vault in Bonnie Brae Cemetery to await burial.

Debaets-Thomas Lead in Bike Race

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—The Belgian-American team of Gerard Debaets and Bobby Thomas led the field of 14 teams in the six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden at the close of the thirty-eighth hour of the grind today.

Three teams were tied for second place, one lap behind the leaders. The leaders had covered 632 miles and nine laps.

Purdue Five Wins Big Ten Crown

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Pudue's rampant Boilermakers clinched the 1934 Western Conference basketball championship here last night, sweeping aside the University of Wisconsin team, the only remaining challenger, by a score of 37 to 25.

The Boilermakers have won nine games and lost only one, and cannot be tied for the title.

GOLF PRO DIES

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—Chick Fraser, 39, Pacific Coast golf professional, died last night after a long illness.

Sun-Telegraph To Name Star Floor Teams

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will select all-star basketball teams in the City High School League and among the district colleges.

Julius Levin, scholastic editor, will name his City League players in tomorrow's issue and Jess Carver, collegiate editor, will pick his all-stars for the following day's issue.

Tomorrow evening at 6 o'clock both will appear with Harry Keck, sports editor, in the weekly radio program of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE, elaborating on their choices.

PLAZA BOWLERS BEAT TROJANS

By PHILIP GRABOWSKI

The New Plaza team, of Bloomfield, obtained revenge for a defeat suffered at the hands of the East Liberty Trojans by defeating that team, 2,736 to 2,635, in a tenpin match rolled on the former's alleys.

T. Mancini topped the bowlers with scores of 192, 176 and 223 for a total of 591. Zebo Perry, star Trojan pinster, fell down badly in the last two games and finished with a 457 set. Stewart rolled best for the losers.

STRIKES AND SPARES

Harry Snyder has the best average in the South Hills Inter-Church Duckpin League with 137. High score for one game is held by Walt Jenkins, while Art Judge is second with a 320 score.

The Federal Reserve Bank team is leading in the Bankers' Duckpin League with 41 victories and 16 defeats, while First National trails by one game. Roth, of the National Bank outfit, has an average of 172.44 for 56 games, and his nearest rival, A. Nolte, of the Mellons, boasts a 165.13 average for 55 games. Douthitt, of the Union Trust team, has a 266 tally for a single game and A. Nolte, of Mellon Nationals, a 672 set. The Farmers team holds the high score for a single contest, 803, and First National for three, 2,075.

The A. J. Hasers won two out of three games from the Federal No. 1 team to increase their lead on first place in the Bonaian House League. Sams made a clean sweep of three games from the Kims-Pop team, and the Heinauers won two out of three from the Big Reds. Lafayettes took two out of three from the B. & W. team.

Mrs. Esther Payne's team holds the best marks for one and three games in the Dormont Community Ladies' Duckpin League. This team has rolled 615 in a single game and 1,569 in three games. Mrs. Gever has the highest score for a single game with 178. Mrs. Grace Best shows the way in three-game totals with 383 and also leads the league in averages with 110.

The Silver Toppers won two out of three games from the Iron City team in the postponed Metropolitan Tenpin League match on the St. Joseph Lyceum alleys. The match originally was scheduled for February 16.

Casino No. 1 is setting the pace in the Central Pittsburgh Duckpin League with 55 wins and 17 defeats. Arcadia No. 1 and Center No. 1 are tied for second place, each having won 48 games and lost 24. P. Miller and Krasue have 260 scores to their credit. Lachendro boasts an average of 176.45.

BAZZONE BOWS TO KID COCOA

Kid Cocoa, Harlem Negro welterweight, boxed his way to a victory over Joey Bazzone, of McKeesport, in a 10-round bout at the Palisades, McKeesport, last night. Weighing 143¾ pounds against 149 for Bazzone, the Harlem boxer kept his left hand in his opponent's face throughout.

Battling Gizzy took every round of his 10-round scrap with Don Asto, of Clairton, to win the decision. Gizzy came in at 135 pounds and Asto at 136.

Joey Adams, of Pittsburgh, whipped Jimmy Ferry, of Clairton, in six rounds, and in the four-round opener, Ralph Gizzy defeated Paddy Gray, of Greensburg.

Cochran Defeated In Match Here

Welker Cochran, former world champion, was defeated by Joe Mackin, of McKeesport, 25 to 23, in an exhibition match at three-cushion billiards last night in Clarke's parlors, McKeesport.

Cochran is to play at Tobin's Parlors, Smithfield street, tomorrow night.

THIRD NATIONAL TITLE AIM OF HEIDELBERG

By TOM BIRKS

When the Heidelberg soccer team takes the field next Sunday afternoon at Greenlee Field to meet the Cleveland Indians in the Western final of the National Amateur Cup competition, it will mark the fifth time in 10 years that the Green and Gold has reached the final round.

The first time Heidelberg entered the Western final was in 1925, when it defeated River Rouge, of Detroit, 1 to 0, but lost in the National finale when the Defenders, of New Bedford, won at Cleveland, 1 to 0. Andy Savage missed at least 10 wide open goals in that game.

In 1927, Heidelberg again appeared in the Western final after beating the Cleveland Magyars in the semi-final round, 9 to 0. This time it was the Cleveland Shamrocks that felt the power of the local eleven, the Irish going down to a 2-to-0 defeat at Luna Park, Cleveland. Heidelberg won the title that year defeating the La Flamme aggregation, of New Bedford, at the Westinghouse High School Field, 3 to 1.

The next year, Heidelberg was

STOCKS RALLY BUT PACE IS SLOW

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Financial markets displayed a little firmer front today, but most traders continued to maintain a watchful waiting attitude.

Stocks were highly irregular and exceptionally dull in the early hours and the ticker tape was frequently idle. A mild rally later failed to enliven the proceedings to any great extent. There were few news developments of importance, but brokers advised that the market's technical condition had been benefited by the recent reactions.

Grains, cottons, rubber, silver and other commodity indicators mulled about unimpressively. The dollar strengthened in terms of leading foreign exchanges. Bonds had a better tone.

Shares of United States Smelting came back about 3 points, while American Smelting and Cerro de Pasco advanced 1 each. Case, Sears, Roebuck and Montgomery Ward recovered a point or more, but Penney dropped 1. Such issues as United States Steel, Chrysler, American Can, United Aircraft, Goodyear, New York Central and Bethlehem Steel were slightly higher. Most of the utilities and motors were virtually unchanged.

Hopes here of an early settlement of strikes in automotive plants at Toledo were not advanced by word that manufacturers there had started hiring workers to fill the posts vacated by the strikers. It was understood that an attempt would be made to resume operations in full.

Overnight consideration of the President's message to Congress recommending a federal commission for the control of communications, and the introduction of bills to that effect today, apparently did not excite the followers of these stocks. It was pointed out, however, that the message, and subsequent measures, were about in line with expectations and that many problems connected with this section of the public utilities field still have to be solved.

Publication of salaries and bonuses received by officials of the country's largest corporations, while interesting to Wall Street, also appeared to be a neutral factor in the speculative department.

Market commentators called attention to some conflicting phases of the present situation. The administrative program was interpreted in most quarters as designed to stimulate confidence in business, encourage credit expansion and gradually get private industry to lighten the government's load.

Commission house analysts thought that the contrary elements included uneasiness over the stock exchange control bill, indications of some lag in employment, scattered labor disturbances, the various Washington investigations and European uncertainties.

BANK PICTURE BRIGHTENING

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Fifty-one weeks after the bank holiday was established March 4, 1933, there still were 1,673 institutions with deposits of $1,055,855,000 unlicensed today, according to Federal Reserve Board figures.

Official figures showed that 380 National banks with deposits of $365,803,000 were still unlicensed. Fifty-four state member banks of the reserve system were without licenses to operate. They had deposits of $67,937,000.

Total bank deposits of the 14,344 institutions licensed amounted to $31,969,914,000, as compared with about $56,000,000,000 at the peak day of prosperity in 1929.

Reserve board figures showed that there are 5,207 licensed National banks with deposits of $17,213,417,000; 900 state member banks with deposits of $9,734,812,000, and 8,237 state banks, not members of the Federal Reserve System, with deposits of $5,021,685,000.

There were 9,476 non-member banks, other than mutual savings institutions, of which 8,237 were on an unrestricted basis. Total deposits of all non-member institutions amounted to $5,643,800,000, while deposits of those on an unrestricted basis were approximately $5,021,685,000.

Canada Approves Silver Agreement

OTTAWA, Feb. 27.—The Canadian House of Commons has approved by virtually unanimous vote the world silver agreement negotiated in London last June, under which producing nations took steps to stabilize prices.

BOOTLEG LOAN RESTRICTION HELD NEED

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The parade before the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency of bootleg, or outlaw, loans made by non-banking corporations to brokers in 1929, emphasizes the desirability of the proposed reform in the Fletcher-Rayburn bill of restricting such lending operations to banks.

Mr. Rukeyser

The revelation of the details of the loans made by 21 corporations made the front page last week, although the practice was discussed on the financial pages five years ago. The startling technique of adding the total loans made over a period of time out of a revolving fund gives a wrong impression of the amount involved. It is analogous to taking an aggregate of the total purchase of stock in one year of an active trader as an index of his wealth.

BARED LENDERS

It should be recognized that some companies eschewed temptation to make easy money through bootleg loans. The National City Bank in February, 1929, published such a list, which included the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, the General Electric Company, the American Radiator Company and the United States Steel Corporation.

At the time, five years before the politicians recognized the abuse of bootleg lending, I questioned corporate executives concerning the practices. The head of one company said:

"We have never adopted the practice of loaning our surplus funds to the call money market. In fact, we have never in a single instance employed that method, feeling that the resulting additional interest would not cover the detriment to the general business situation by diverting our funds from regular banking channels. Not that, in our own particular case, the funds which were heretofore available were of sufficient proportions to make any appreciable difference, but our objections arose from the standpoint of principle in that we believed that such a custom universally adopted by commerce and industry would lead to trouble and embarrassment."

BALKED BANKS

That forseeing statement, made in March, 1929, was fulfilled in October of the same year. In the panic, the bootleg lenders withdrew their funds ruthlessly and irresponsibly, and left the job of bringing order out of chaos to the New York banks. Previously, the bootleg lenders had interfered with banking efforts to tone down the excessive speculations.

Another executive said:

"The company has for many years never loaned money on call, believing that that work should be left to the banks, who are in a position to watch it more carefully than an industrial corporation."

The spokesman for a vast public utility enterprise, which abstained from bootleg lending, said:

"Our practice is as follows:

"Funds in the treasury of the company are being held for use from time to time in paying for new plant required to take care of the constantly expanding demand for service. These funds are available for temporary investment for short and rather definite periods. In employing them it has been the practice for many years to place them in the highest grade of securities with satisfactory maturity dates. We have found that the purchase of United States Treasury certificates, notes and bonds, and tax anticipation notes of some states, counties and municipalities, fits our requirements. In cases where the maturity dates of any of these securities are beyond the period when the money is desired, we have purchased them under agreements with dealers of the highest standing for their repurchase at definite prices at the dates when the money is desired."

Western Pacific Defers Interest

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—The Western Pacific Railroad Company has deferred interest due March 1 on first mortgage bonds under the 90-day grace period permitted in the indenture and asks bondholders to extend 1934 interest to January 1, 1937.

Junior lien holders have already agreed to extension if 75 per cent of the bondholders co-operate.

Westinghouse Pay Dispute Settled

Settlement of the wage rate dispute at the Springfield (Mass.) plant of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company has been reported to the National Labor Board.

DEVIL'S ISLAND

By GORDON SINCLAIR

CHAPTER XXIV

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad.—Sick people with swollen legs, haggard yellow faces and lose tired mouths were shuffling, single file, into the office of French Guiana's officer of hygiene.

I had to line up with them and take my turn because it was getaway day and I was homeward bound from Devil's Island. Nobody can leave for the United States without a certificate of health.

The doctor took me into his own office, looked into my eyes, stuck a thermometer in my mouth and wrote out a bill of health. Said he:

"Lucky man. Wish I was going."

"How long are you here for?"

"Only two years. The pay is good. The duties are light. But it seems like a lifetime. I don't like the place."

There was a libere with a squeaky wheelbarrow waiting to trundle my kit down the blood-red hill toward the outer world that he would never see again.

Customs men pawed through my gear as on the inward journey. That done, I sat on a stone bench in the shadow of the penitentiary while convicts washed some oxen with a hose.

When they finished cooling the big dumb beasts they sat beside me and smoked.

I was going home.

Home!

The word had a mocking ring for these condemned of France. And after four weeks it still seemed unreal to me that I was sitting on a stone bench under an almond tree surrounded by murderers.

'Believe It or Not'

I began to jot down some of the more astonishing discoveries of this amazing Land-of-Do-Without and they added up to quite a list.

For instance—

The guillotine with its triangular 300-pound blade still lops off convict heads for murder and the executioner—whose first victim was his predecessor—gets a minimum bonus of $6 for a clean job.

It's a sin for a convict to shake hands; even with another convict.

The convict capital sports six department stores, a movie, a hot-cha dance hall and a Masonic lodge of which every member is a Roman Catholic.

Prisoners get exactly the same food as French colonial soldiers, including red wine.

You can get from Devil's Island to Miami in three days.

There is no penitentiary of any kind on Devil's Island and never was.

The Belle of Devil's Island is a Canadian girl, blonde, blue-eyes and 21.

At least 50 of the 5,505 convicts in the colony don't want a pardon, won't take one if they could get it and don't want to escape.

At least 100 of these 5,505 deported desperadoes live in their own homes with their own wives and families and do their own jobs. They wear no uniform and are subject to no discipline beyond reporting to prison officials twice a year. The wives in most cases are creoles or octoroons.

Every convict in the colony is paid.

No convict is ever flogged, put on short rations or fined for any offence whatever.

Dungeons are still in every day use. Sentences to the bear pits, however, cannot be imposed by any guard, ward or penitentiary official. They are imposed by a traveling tribunal of judges. Men waiting sentence are kept in a blockhouse under armed guard. They are chained to the wall like wild beasts and compelled to take their exercise in a courtyard stark naked. While they are out search parties scour their one stone cell for money, poisons, knives or other weapons, and often find them.

Free to Work

First-class convicts can be engaged as workers by any civilian in any town and under special conditions can be taken inland to jungle gold camps. Marcel and Louis Dron, Canadian gold miners, used convict labor in the jungle for six months. No man attempted to escape.

First-class convicts have certain set tasks to do every day. These seldom take more than three or four hours. After that the convicts are free to wander where they please and work for hire. Many of them make trinkets to sell casual invaders.

Convicts who die on the islands are put into a coffin and fed to the sharks. The same coffin is used for every burial. The men who row the boats at burials get better food than other convicts.

One Woman Prisoner

At least one woman spent years and years in the convict camps—as a convict—and died before her sex was discovered.

No effort is made to teach any convict any trade or profession. Nor is any effort made to reform the prisoners. They are put there to be punished.

Nobody has ever escaped from Devil's Island itself, yet there are more escapes from the colony as a whole than from any other penitentiary on earth and a regular syndicate to assist in these breaks is said to exist with branches in all the countries near by; that is Venezuela, British Guiana, Dutch Guiana, Brazil and Trinidad.

The colony was originally intended as part of the French colonial empire having nothing to do with prisoners, but 10,000 of the original 12,000 settlers died the first year from dysentery, yellow or malaria fever, loneliness and terror.

Last month saw the first talkie in the convict colony. It was, of all things, "The Big House."

French Guiana has had 87 governors in 80 years.

Goodbye to Devil's Island

The launch came in and we chugged down to the landing barge. On the tick of schedule the big silver plane glided over the mountains from Brazil and landed in a cloud of spray.

Fritz, the man that Devil's Island couldn't lick, grinned. Then by way of fond farewell he thumbed his nose at me. We hit the blue and streaked for Trinidad.

I thought then of the officials who keep this fabulous place in order. Good fellows all of them. Kindly fellows in spite of everything. They had not welcomed me but, since I'd dropped in unexpectedly, they did the next best thing. They were honest and helpful and frank, the only facts they refused to give were the names of the six unfortunates now held on Devil's Island itself. If my articles have done nothing else I hope they have shown that the 5,505 condemned men are by no means as hideously treated as the world has come to think.

JUNIOR PATROL

Don't be afraid in the dark, fellows!

The wise Chinese have a proverb—"The coward dies a thousand deaths, the brave man dies but once." They mean, fellows, that fear doesn't help. It is wise and cautious in the presence of danger. It is smart to look where you are going. But don't let the dark scare you.

There aren't any hobgoblins. Don't let people frighten you with ghosts. A fellow who is honest and square doesn't have to worry much.

Things may seem dark sometimes, and life pretty hard and tough, but don't let it beat you. Keep right on fighting. Half the fun in life is fighting for the good things. There is more joy about doing good things than there is in eating three big chocolate cakes all at once.

The dark is just the absence of light. Press a switch and the lights flash on. Press a button, and your flashlight will shoot a clear white spear of light into the darkest corner. Everything is as it should be.

Learn to walk carefully in the dark, fellows, so that you won't trip over a chair, but don't be afraid of your own IMAGINATION. Junior Patrol members know better than that. Make your brain work for you not against you.

RETINA, THE ESSENTIAL PART OF VISION

The retina, lining the inside posterior part of the eyeball, a delicate membrane (1/80 inch the thickest), is a highly specialized, most complicated sensory surface of the body. It is built up of 8 layers (above).

The essential sensory structures or receptors are the rods and cones. The rods—four times as numerous as the cones—have in their outer segment a reddish pigment "rhodopsin" or "visual purple," a phototropic substance, which changes with light. The rods report white, black, gray; the cones the colored details. In colorblind persons, the cones are missing, they see only with their rods. In the fovea, the spot of sharpest vision, there are only rods. Night blindness is caused by lack of formation of visual purple. (Gen. Science)

MARIA THERESA ASKING HELP OF HUNGARIAN NOBILITY (1741)

Maria Theresa (1740-1780) succeeded her father, Charles VI, on Habsburg's throne by virtue of the "Pragmatic Sanction."

Prussia, Bavaria, Saxony, Naples, Sardinia contested her rights; the Austrian War of Succession ensued (1740-1748). Fidelity and chivalry of Hungarian nobles, besides English help, saved Maria Theresa's empire though she had to give up Silesia and southern principalities.

To regain Silesia from her arch enemy, Frederick the Great, of Prussia, she involved her country in the Seven-Years' War (1756-1763), gaining nothing.

Allying with her former enemy, Frederick, of Prussia, and Catherine II, Russia, she gained Galicia (first division of Poland, 1772). She forced Bukovina from Turkey (1777). Her reign was energetic and progressive. Her husband, Francis I, had become Holy Roman emperor (1745-1765). Their son, Joseph II, succeeded both. (World History)

BEAUREGARD ORDERS RETREAT AT SHILOH (April 7, 1862)

In his move southward from Forts Donelson and Henry—aiming to cut off the important railroad line Memphis-Charleston as well as to reach the Mississippi—Gen. Grant, heading the Union's western armies, met (April 6, 1862) the Confederates under Gens. A. S. Johnston and Beauregard at Shiloh (Pittsburg Landing on the Tennessee). Though successful at first, the Confederates lost the battle, April 7, after their moving spirit, Gen. Johnston, fell. Gen. Sherman, wounded, had a prominent part in the Union victory. The next Confederate stand, Corinth, yielded a month later.

Meanwhile, Commodore Foote—parallel to Gen. Pope's army—with his fleet moved south on the Mississippi toward Vicksburg.

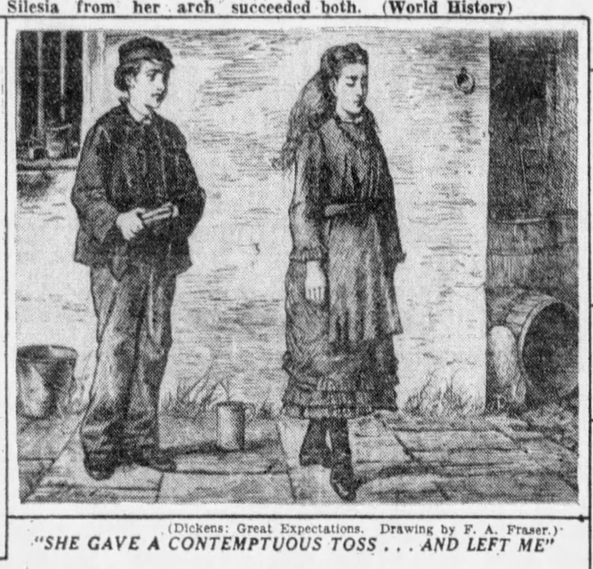
HOW TO FIGHT FOREST FIRES—THE WEAPONS

Tree fire: Shut off air by closing holes with dirt or fell tree, clean ground around, spray water or chemical. Underground fire: Dig or blast ditch to prevent spread. Surface fire: Beat it out with branches, shovels, wet burlap, push back burning material, smother with sand or dirt, plow furrow, clean trail around fire, spray water if available. Crown fire: Stopped only by natural conditions.

When wind is strong, or close attack unsafe from intense heat, backfiring is resorted to. This should be kept as small as practicable. (General Science)



(Dickens: Great Expectations. Drawing by F. A. Fraser.)

"SHE GAVE A CONTEMPTUOUS TOSS . . . AND LEFT ME"

In "Great Expectations" Dickens tells of his own boyhood, masterly depicting the change of the character of the hero under varying fortunes.

As a small boy, Pip's greatest ambition is to be an apprentice of his brother-in-law, Joe Gargery, the village blacksmith. The acquaintance of beautiful little Estella, who laughs at his rustic appearance, fans Pip's ambition for fame and fortune.

Pip, the village boy, wishes then to become a "gentleman." His dreams come true when an unknown benefactor provides him money and sends him to London to be educated. (English Literature)

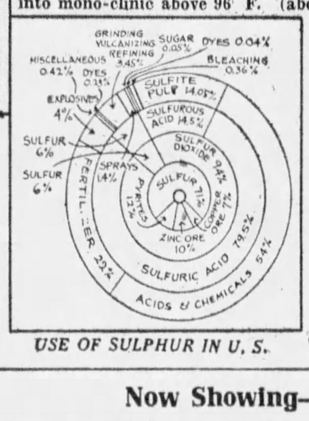
SULPHUR—IMPORTANT NON-METALLIC ELEMENT

Sulphur (S) is found almost pure in volcanic regions (Sicily, Iceland, Japan, Mexico) and around underground saltdomes in Texas, Louisiana. Sulphur occurs in rhombic crystals, which change into mono-clinic above 96° F. (above).



USE OF SULPHUR IN U. S.

Atomic weight of sulphur is 32.06 indicating its atomic structure: 32 protons and 32 electrons, half of the latter being satellites distributed in three shells. Atomic number is 16.

Sulphur is also found in compounds mostly as pyrite (FeS_2), lead sulphide (PbS), zinc blende (ZnS), chalcopyrite ($CuFeS_2$), gypsum ($CaSO_4.2H_2O$), barite ($BaSO_4$), epsom salt ($MgSO_4.7H_2O$). Proteins contain sulphur.

Left: Distribution of 1,500,000 tons of sulphur used in industries in U. S. annually besides 600,000 tons exported.

A Very Real Problem

Sounds quite intricate and industrious when the radio word-bender says:

"We are now going to sing the fulsome praises of rare old Jonathan M. Barleycorn.

"Our listeners, in states in which Mr. Barleycorn is now compus drinkus, are invited to tune out until this delightful program is exhausted.

"We have no desire to break the laws of dry states by launching a community chorus of raucous and intoxicated melody. Nor to mix a contraband cocktail of words, music and juniper berries. Are you listening?"

Now, it's pretty tough when you can't taste it or touch it or listen to it. But we realize that the radio chains have no desire to fracture the laws of sovereign communities.

They could even go a step onward and give us our choice of tuning loose from other programs. When the lady with the well-used voice, known to music lovers as an abrasive soprano, sings to us from a microphone ambuscade, can we also knob her away from the sensitive eustachian channels?

When those two jolly lads about studios scramble through the gaglets of some comedian can we whirl them into oblivion by a few nimble twists of our dexterous wrist? Or must we listen to them because they are plugging chocolate sodas which are legal wherever the foot of white man has never trod in aimless circles?

Are the thuds, cracks, gargles and screams of a broadcast mystery drama to be inhaled through the ears? Or can we knob ourselves into the luxurious silence which is always the highest form of civilization?

Shall the rum listeners alone have their pick of programs? We want to know, because we are accustomed to amuse ourselves by amendment and compulsion.

Let's say we are in Omaha, Nebraska. We could select Kansas. After all, we know that morals are geographic. And we know that a Nashville man will do things in New York he would shoot you for if you did them in his home state of Tennessee.

Nebraska neither voted for nor against repeal. Some states, like Nebraska, were closely akin to the short soldier in the Army chow line—everything is gone and the dishes are washed before the food reaches him. Nebraska didn't have to vote on the repeal question. It was thirty-sixed long before that.

Can a radio bug in Omaha listen to rum row programs? Or can he not? Don't write on both sides of the paper, and don't answer too hastily. Think it over.

Take your time. Even prohibition got a fair trial, and we will give you the same 14 years of mature deliberation. The contest closes February 26, 1948.

City Finances Sound

Facts Indicate Pittsburgh Faces No Serious Difficulties; Credit Is Excellent.

Careless remarks made by Mayor McNair and other politicians to the effect that the City of Pittsburgh is in a serious financial condition are not backed by facts.

Pittsburgh, like other cities, has had its income reduced during the depression years by difficulties in collecting taxes. This has made economies necessary and it may make further retrenchment advisable; but no serious difficulties can be found. In fact, Pittsburgh is in better financial condition than most other American cities. There is no danger of its defaulting on its obligations.

The city owes nothing to banks. The last loan of $750,000 was paid in January. Pittsburgh has borrowed nothing on tax anticipation warrants. It has not gone to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for aid, because a ready market for its bonds exists through normal investment channels. The last offering of the city's bonds was sold to investors at prices to yield from 2.50 to 4.15 per cent by the banking syndicate which bought the issue. Such a rate of interest does not indicate that there is any apprehension about the city in financial circles.

Pittsburgh has an accumulated deficit of $2,500,000 from previous years. Tax receipts and other revenues for the present year can only be estimated. Some estimates place the deficit this year at $2,000,000. The budget of $21,254,549 is being reconsidered by Council.

Unused borrowing power provides ample scope for meeting the old deficit as well as any deficit from the present year. Of course measures should be taken to keep expenses for the present year within the limits of probable income.

In view of these facts, it can only be assumed that claims that the city is in financial trouble are being made for political motives. Such unfounded statements do the city harm and may detract from Pittsburgh's excellent credit standing.

The Snowstorm

Sidewalks Should Be Cleared Without Delay, As the Ordinance Requires

The precipitation in Pittsburgh this month up until Sunday was only .24 of an inch, and the smallest precipitation recorded during February was .74 of an inch in 1907.

(Precipitation is reckoned, by the way, in terms of rain or melted snow; and one inch of precipitation is the equivalent of 10 inches of snow.)

The statement in this column last Saturday that "this promises to be the dryest February in Pittsburgh's Weather Bureau history" was surely justified.

But, thanks to the fickleness of our climate, the promise was not fulfilled. Twenty-hundredths of an inch of precipitation was recorded Sunday and .35 of an inch yesterday morning, thus assuring that the low record of February, 1907, will continue to stand.

Notwithstanding the discomfort, and the numerous expressions of disgust, most people, we fancy, rather enjoyed the unusual experience of a heavy snowfall.

From the standpoint of the numerous rural dwellers who depend upon underground water for their domestic water supply the breaking of the drought was to be welcomed.

But it is desirable that we shall be freed with the least possible delay from the inconvenience, discomfort and even danger of the heavy snowfall.

Sidewalks should be cleared by householders, tenants of commercial property and property owners, including owners of vacant lots, at once, as the law requires; lest the snow turn to ice and be the cause of falls and bodily injuries.

In New York City Mayor LaGuardia has ordered patrolmen to inform all property owners that they must clean the sidewalks, or be haled into court and made to pay for having the work done by the city. The patrolmen are required to report to their precinct commanders the result of their calls at houses—that is, whether the sidewalks are fully cleared or not.

Equal strictness in enforcing the ordinance is called for in Pittsburgh.

Why They Didn't Win

An Excuse Is Found For Housewives' Failure In Baking Contests

A good story with a worth while moral comes in a report from the State Pure Food Bureau.

A number of Western Pennsylvania housewives with fine reputations as cooks and bakers have made a poor showing in recent months in contests at county fairs, church socials and the like to see who could make the best cakes, pastry, and the like. Their products were far from what was expected.

Some of them have failed of late, also, to win the complimentary remarks from their men folks to which they were accustomed.

The Pure Food Bureau seems to have heard about it. At any rate it made an investigation and found that a baking powder was being used which contained, instead of a minimum of 12 per cent of available carbon dioxide (leavening power) as required by national and state standards, less than 8 per cent.

The company involved has recently been convicted by a jury at Franklin of violating the law, and steps have been taken to protect housewives from being imposed upon further.

The moral is that it is dangerous to violate the pure food law.

Dates With Dreams

What Price Romance?

Up at Columbia University they are making dreams come true. They have worked out a system whereby a young man or woman can make a date with the person of his or her dream—or someone mighty close to it.

The university which teaches more things to more young men and women than any other on earth, went in for the dream business while trying unsuccessfully to teach timid youths how to get rid of their terror of blind dates.

Dating for the "Dean's Drag" was slow. The shy ones wouldn't take any chances. Someone hit on an idea. Science to the rescue? Why not? The Intra-University Dating Bureau was the result.

Now, the timid boy describes his dream girl. While talking with that far-away look in his eyes, a smart young girl more concerned with facts than dreams sizes up the dreamer and catalogues him. One by one all are catalogued.

Science does the rest, assigning the dates on the basis of dream requirements.

It looks as though Columbia is sounding the death knell of the blindness of love. Card-catalogue courting is a body blow at romanticism.

Who Said: 'They Never Come Back?' -:- By Nelson Harding

Here's one old-timer who came back,
And what a wallop he can pack!
Although we talk of him as "old,"
The mercury has been knocked cold.

Thermometer is on the floor
And doesn't care for any more.
The very wind of such a blow,
Is quite enough to lay it low.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Not in many years has the metropolis so set aside its anxieties to frolic as it has this winter. Everywhere a rustle of lingerie, the shine of silk, the crepitant crackle of stiff white shirts. And other gallantries of life from the top drawer.

The popular figures of the day are those who can, like the buxom Elsa Maxwell, whip life into a sudden froth. Dressmaking ateliers have driven the sheriffs from the door-steps. And in the sudden White Tie Era the dinner jacket has become extinct.

Almost every big ballroom is filled nightly. Smart dining rooms are an opening chapter from an Oppenheim. And a season that once diminuendoed to six stage plays now has 34 with theatrical ticket agencies tripling their staffs. There are sundry explanations.

Some say repeal. Others the buoyancy of a safe bound out of the depression. While the more lugubrious chant it is the well known fiddling while another Rome burns and point to the excess of hysterical gaity preceding France's plunge to new disaster. The final fling!

Charles Laughton, deserting the cinema at the peak of his American career, is filling London's "Old Vic" in a repertoire of Shakespeare, acting a month for what Hollywood paid him a day. New York's nearest approach to "Old Vic" was the Civic Repertory, a sort of compromise between a theater and a club. "Old Vic" has preserved audience affection through every vicissitude. When bombs were dropping around Waterloo station, crowds at "Old Vic" were cheering "Macbeth."

* * *

I once went to "Old Vic" with Watterson Rothacker. Above us curved the gallery, packed with men, women and children who had paid five pence to hear Aida. They were artisans, laborers and "clarks" and their wives. It was an eddy of the submerged snatching desperately for something fine and soothing higher up.

The most auspicious theatrical flop of the season was George Abbott's self appearance in "John Brown." In one despairing gasp it opened and closed the same night. Abbott is a sterling actor, the play was magnificently mounted and cast. But again proved the play's the thing.

One of New York's bachelors, whose life has been spent in globe trots, recently settled down to a Sutton Place apartment. In showing a friend through his new home, he pointed to an enormous acre-wide bed. "That," he said, "is to get even with all the Pullman and steamer berths."

Harry Silvey and I turned into the Bowery shortly after midnight. The free flops were filled to capacity and the overflow bivouacked in doorways or sprawled along the curbs near embers of scattered gutter fires, all huddled together for warmth. There was a flash-back to a vivid etching in a fey little volume of Missouri childhood; troops rolled in their cloaks beside dead fires, sleeping before battle. Only their battle was Tomorrow!

Among fixations in Broadway's unceasing change remains Jimmy Cunningham, who has stood nightly on the northwest corner of Broadway and Fiftieth street for 25 years. It would be desolating to range through the glittering canyon and not see the grey-haired friendly man who, in the wind, snow and rain, has stood there from 9 until 11 each night, greeting old friends, discussing baseball scores, murmuring sudden wisdoms and responding to the impulses of the cracker-barrel sitter back yonder. He is one of the few Broadway has seasoned but never toughened. The gods, capricious in their gifts, decreed Jimmy should have no particular ambitions save to brighten and sweeten his little corner. At 11 he returns to his rooming house fringing Madison Square. Sometimes we think of Jimmy as the most supremely happy fellow in all the town.

This time of year magazines print yips about spring. Here are a pair of contrasts in a quick roll of the dice. Spring in the city—a hurdy gurdy. Spring in the town—selling enough paper flour sacks to buy a raw coconut from the first April shipment.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

I'm Living in Today!

Rambling through the years . . what a lot of things can happen to you! Bunions . . . neuritis . . . gall stones . . . lumbago . . . hardening of the arteries . . . sooner or later, no matter how safe you play it, some pest will land on you and cause you plenty grief.

All right . . . I can take it. If I've got to have double chins and housemaid's knee, I'll be game. But there's one disease that's not going to make me take the count without a swell, big battle, and that's the commonest of all old-age curses . . .

THE HABIT OF LIVING-IN-THE-PAST.

The day I start doing that I hope someone hustles on the scene with a couple of blackjacks, a sub-machine gun and a gallon of ether and wipes me out complete. For of all the ignoble ailments, and of all the contemptible ends for a regular human that one, to me, is the saddest.

I'm over 50. And life hasn't been any strawberry-waffle for quite some seasons now. Not just my life . . . any life. Life everywhere is 500 per cent more dangerous, complicated and cussed in 1934 than it was 40 or even 20 years ago. And any time I want to sit down and sniffle over those dear, dead years, I can have a perfect sweetheart of a time.

I can remember moonlight and roses ad lib, and beaux by the dozen. The dear old cookie jar. The rose bush over the door. The little red schoolhouse. Honeysuckle 'n' hammocks. Ruffled dimity dresses and Strawberry Sociables on the church lawn. And me, with a 19-inch waist and a bushel of yellow curls, loafing and laughing and loving my way through it all.

Yes, I could certainly have a wonderful time if I wanted to live in the past. I could duck every ugly reality of today . . . sidestep every embarrassing challenge . . . rationalize and sentimentalize myself out of every unpleasant responsibility.

Moreover, I'd make myself plenty popular. For all the other lazy, cowardly oldsters who don't want to face the Present, would applaud my excursions into the land of Yesterday, and indorse my alibis.

Yet, in spite of these manifest advantages, I repeat . . . I believe that Living-In-The-Past is the most contemptible of all old-age diseases.

For Living-In-The-Past is not life . . . it is a deliberate withdrawal from life . . . it is a deliberate choice of death.

YOU'RE AS DEAD IF YOU ABANDON YOURSELF TO MEMORIES AS IF YOU NAIL YOURSELF IN A COFFIN.

Yes, memories are precious. God pity the life that has none of them to turn to! And a loving glance backward, even though it be through tears, is as essential as a brave look forward. But if that backward glance at Yesterday belittles and betrays Today, then it's deadly.

FOR ONE HOUR OF THIS LIVING PRESENT IS WORTH A MILLION YEARS OF DEAD YESTERDAYS.

I wouldn't exchange today, with its confusion and danger and discouragement, for all the faded garlands of the past. For I'm not kidding myself about that past. It isn't alluring because it was really nobler and lovelier than Today. IT'S ALLURING BECAUSE IT MAKES A PERFECT HIDE-AWAY.

Today, I grant you, is a Tough Spot. But it's the best spot we've ever been on. The Riots of 1934 are infinitely braver and cleaner than the Repressions and Resignations of 1884. It may be harder to live now—but more power to you if you can take it! And so, you can have your withered roses, dearie. I'M BETTING ON TODAY!

Sandino Was a Criminal, Not a Patriot

By James T. Williams, Jr.

"WHO so sheddeth man's blood by man shall his blood be shed."

The fate forecast in these words of Holy Writ has finally overtaken the Nicaraguan outlaw, whose atrocious crimes were committed under the stolen but high-sounding title of "General" Sandino.

Cowardice, cruelty and all uncleanness were the polluting and dominating vices that branded this wayward son of a highly respected small land owner in the coffee region near Managua, the capital city of Nicaragua.

The story goes that in his early manhood this wayward son, due to a fight with a neighbor in which he wounded his opponent, left the country and remained for some years in Mexico, working for American firms around Tampico.

At that time, the Mexican outlaw, Pancho Villa, was running his murderous course in his own country. And while the young Sandino never joined Villa's assasins, he apparently tried in later life to duplicate in Northern Nicaragua the heinous crimes that made Villa infamous.

Timekeeper for American Mine Owner

RETURNING from Mexico shortly before the revolution in Nicaragua led by Moncada, afterwards president, Sandino was employed by an American mine owner, a Mr. Butters, of California, as timekeeper in his mine in the mountain region of Northern Nicaragua and quite close to the Honduran border.

With his background of experience in Mexico, he promptly organized the miners into what he called a "union." When the revolution broke out, Sandino marched his "union" to the South to take part in the uprising against the government of President Diaz as a leader under Gen. Moncada.

From that time he seems to have had no military rank of any sort until he suddenly emerged with the self-assumed title of "General" at the time of the signing of the Tipatapa agreement on May 4, 1927, by Henry L. Stimson, the special representative whom President Coolidge sent to Nicaragua to investigate for him the situation in that country.

Gen. Moncada gave Gen. Frank R. McCoy, who supervised the elections of 1928, which brought Moncada from the field headquarters of a rebel chief to the presidency, these revealing facts about Sandino:

Gen. Moncada said that Sandino broke his word of honor that he would lay down his arms after the Tipatapa agreement, by the terms of which President Diaz and Gen. Moncada agreed upon peace and general disarmament preparatory to an honest election.

Instead of surrendering his arms to the armed forces of the United States as he was pledged to do and as Moncada and his other followers did, Sandino took his troops back to the place where his gang of outlaws came from—on the extreme northern frontier of Nicaragua, one of the most inaccessible parts of Central America.

Operated Along Honduras Border

AFTER that, Sandino continued to operate along the mountainous border between Nicaragua and Honduras, having been driven out of the populous region by the Guardia National and the armed forces of the United States into the remote fastnesses of the border country.

Patient efforts were then made through Gen. Moncada and through Sandino's respected and hard-working father to induce him to redeem his promise to his country and turn in his arms and help in the pacification of Nicaragua. But Sandino was reluctant to go back to being a timekeeper. He preferred to be the chief outlaw of Nicaragua to a relapse into law-abiding and self-supporting citizenship.

The heinous crimes and other depredations since committed by Sandino, both against his own innocent and loyal countrymen and against the officers and men of the armed forces of the United States, is a sordid story all by itself. It must be reserved for another day.

It holds a lesson for all Americans in the years ahead.

Ghost of Queen Elizabeth Is Reported to Have Been Seen at Windsor Castle

By Edwin C. Hill

THE ghost of Queen Elizabeth stalks once more through the ancient Saxon Tower of Windsor Castle. Sentinels on duty have seen the red-haired queen promenading the ancient battlements—and according to a tradition which is almost four centuries old, this is Elizabeth's way of warning her beloved England of great events in the making. Not necessarily disastrous, but dangerous; some crises which England must face.

But Windsor Castle is not the only royal residence favored by royal ghosts. Campton Court Palace is even richer in ghostly visitors than the castle at Windsor. Catherine of Aragon is reported still to walk in black attire, bearing a taper down one of the staircases and disappearing through the queen's gate. Anne Boleyn, Elizabeth's mother, has been seen driving down the avenue of Berkeley Park behind four headless horses, driven by headless coachmen. The Old Tower of London creaks and whispers with the ghosts of men and women, violently done to death.

Edward L. Swifte, who was Keeper of the Crown Jewels in the Tower, years ago, made a sworn statement of the following experience:

"One Saturday night in October, about the witching hour, I was at supper with my wife, her sister and our little boy, in the sitting room of the jewel house. That very place was the prison of Anne Boleyn and the ten bishops put there by Oliver Cromwell. I sat at the foot of the table, my son on my right hand, his mother fronting the chimney piece, and her sister on the opposite side.

"I had just offered a glass of wine to my wife when she cried out: 'Good God, what's that?' I looked up and saw a cylindrical figure, like a glass tube, seemingly about the thickness of my arm, hovering between the ceiling and the table. It was like a dense fluid, white and pale blue, like the gathering of a summer cloud. This lasted about two minutes, when it began slowly to move toward my sister-in-law. Then, following the oblong shape of the table, it came to my son and myself, and then passed behind my wife. Suddenly she cried out: 'Oh, it has seized me!' I caught up my chair, struck at the shape and the wainscoting behind it, as the apparition slowly faded."

Strange Testimony Of a Sergeant

ONLY a little while ago a Sergt. Hennessey, of the 60th British Rifles, faced court-martial on charges of drunkenness because he was seen to drive a bayonet into a door, while on duty. This was his official statement to the court, corroborated by seven other witnesses, one a captain, who had seen the same thing at various times:

"I can't help it, sirs, whether you believe me or not, but this is what happened. I sometimes take a drop of gin on cold nights after I have gone off the watch, but neither on that night, nor ever in my life, have I touched a drop while on duty. It was not any too light on the parapet where I was doing my sentry go. The big electric globe is nearly fifty paces from the door where this thing happened.

"As I approached the door I saw something come through it. I ran to see what it was. Well, it was a woman in a long white thing. But that wasn't it. It was her head that was cut off from her body, and was floating in the air above her neck.

"As God is my judge, sirs, that's the gospel truth! The head was all bloody, and the eyes were staring, a most horrid sight! And I drove my bayonet at the thing, and the sharp steel passed right through it and sank into the oak of the door, and there was nothing there.

"Sirs, that is what happened, so help me God; and I'm only telling it because my counsel says I must. I don't expect you to believe it."

But the court, made up of about as sane and skeptical an assortment of British officers as one could have found from Glasgow to Peshawar, did believe him and acquitted him. For they knew their old Tower, the Tower and the unhappy spirits that walk about its vast courts in the stillness of the night.

Queen Christina's Remarkable Career

ONE of the most interesting women who ever occupied a throne emerges from the past through the double medium of the supreme artistry of Miss Garbo and the literary craftsmanship of Margaret Goldsmith. In the talking picture, "Queen Christina," Miss Garbo regains her unchallenged eminence as a fine and sensitive actress of the films, portraying the personality of that strange and baffling woman who was king, not queen, of Sweden from 1644 to 1654. Her picture of Christina is a joy to the eye and to the ear, but is very loosely designed from historical fact—though that matters little enough.

It is Margaret Goldsmith, in "Christina of Sweden" who reminds us of the true personality of this inexplicable woman. She was not at all beautiful, as Miss Garbo must necessarily portray her. She was awkward as a child, not like a shy little girl, but like a gawky boy. She never walked slowly, as a small princess in decorative robes was expected to do. She always seemed in a hurry; her stride was nervous and jerky.

She watched and imitated men before she was 10 years of age. Occasionally, to the horror of her nurses, she was heard to utter an oath, picked up in the stables where she kept her horses.

But there was a reason for this. Her father, the great Gustavus Adolphus, champion of Protestantism, ordered her to be brought up as a boy, and her tutors were directed to instil into her youthful mind the masculine attitude toward life in general. With an extraordinary mind, she was one of the finest scholars of Europe at 14.

She was not a good ruler. Her court was extravagant beyond reason, and she was a bad judge of men. And finally she abdicated at the age of 28, went to Belgium, entered the Roman Catholic faith and spent the rest of her life in Rome, in incessant intrigues and quarrels with most of the kings of her day, and with several Popes. Her end was frustration and pathos, and she died in 1689, at the age of 63.
